CHINA REFUSES PARLEY TO END WAR WITH JAPS

Insists Nippon Must Withdraw First.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, March 4.—Quo Tai-chi, Chinese vice minister of foreign affairs, tonight denied that a round table conference of Japanese and Chinese representatives is scheduled to convene soon to discuss a settlement of the Shanghai question.

QUO TAI-CHI.

"The calling of such a conference is conditioned upon Japan's carrying out an agreement of mutual withdrawal of troops in order to avoid further clashes and bring about an immediate cessation of hostilities," he said.

"Since the voluntary Chinese withdrawal Tuesday night, the Japanese have been taking advantage of our withdrawal and have pushed on, pursuing our forces beyond a distance of 15 miles.

Japs Forget Promise.

"The Japanese military have conveniently forgotten their own acceptance of the league of nations' proposal for a truce by a mutual withdrawal. Japan accepted that proposal, but as long as the Japanese ignore this fact and the fact of the Chinese withdrawal and continue to pursue our troops instead of carrying out their pledge a round table conference is entirely out of the question."

An official Chinese report tonight claimed that the Japanese are pouring 35,000 more troops into the port of Liuho, on the Yangtze river, for the purpose of outflanking the Chinese position along the Shanghai-Nanking railway, near Kunshan.

The report also said the Japanese had landed troops in the Pootung area, across the Whangpoo river from Shanghai, with the object of attacking Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province. It was claimed that Japanese military officers have declared their intention to occupy all territory between Shanghai and Nanking and Shanghai and Hangchow.

Says Battle Rages On.

Mayor Wu Teh-chen of the Chinese city alleged that the Japanese offensive continued last night along the entire Nanziang-Kating-Liuho front. The arrival of truckloads of Japanese wounded from the front testified to the severity of the fighting, which is still in progress, he said.

Mayor Wu also said the Japanese had landed more forces near Laoliuhochien, about 40 miles northwest of Shanghai. This is more than triple the distance to which the Japanese originally claimed they would limit their activities.

Japanese military authorities issued a statement today giving a tentative four point outline of the Japanese agenda for the proposed round table conference.

The Four Points.

The four points are:

1. Japan has no territorial ambitions in Shanghai or elsewhere in China nor is she harboring any scheme to create a Japanese concesion at Shanghai.

2. Japan, however, reserves the right to claim from China damages caused by the present conflict and demands strict suppression of anti-Japanese activities.

3. Arrangements for a truce must be based on Japan's second note of warning issued on Feb. 18 by Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda, then Japanese commander at Shanghai. However, since the sphere of activities has since been considerably enlarged, the point to which Japanese troops will be withdrawn will be considerably farther from the foreign settlement than was originally intended. A neutral zone must be created about Shanghai, this zone to be patrolled by an international army.

Seeks Permanent Solution.

4. While the round table conference is an emergency measure for the solution of the present emergency, Japan is prepared, in case the other powers are agreeable, to discuss a permanent plan for settlement of all basic questions relative to Shanghai and so assure a lasting guarantee of the safety of the settlement and its foreign residents.

The Japanese today continued to consolidate their military control of the area about the international settlement. They established strong naval units at strategic positions fac-

DRY FOES ACT TO GET G. O. P. REPEAL PLANK

'No Contributions,' Is Plan Adopted.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

Nationally prominent Republicans who long have ranked high among their party's cheerful givers closed their pocketbooks yesterday and said:

"Not another cent from us for campaign funds until the party takes an honest stand for the repeal of national prohibition and the ending of its waste, scandals, and iniquities."

These Republican rebels are lawyers, financiers, industrialists, and public officials who came from as far east as New York City and as far west as the state of Washington for an all day session in Chicago.

Trying to Save U. S.

In the course of the twelve hours of deliberation at the Blackstone hotel by these delegates to the conference of the Republican Citizens' Committee Against National Prohibition, C. T. Revere, New York City, a descendant of Paul Revere and a noted economist, said to the grave assemblage in the crystal ballroom:

"I think that you men and women are doing a great deal more than trying to save the Republican party. I think you are trying to save the country."

The convention's specific action was the signing by the delegates of a declaration of independence in which they pledge themselves to make no more contributions to the Republican party until the party has placed a repeal plank in its platform.

Not an Idle Gesture.

This declaration was no idle gesture. Already the organization has received pledges from 7,844 former contributors to the Republican war chest that they will give no more unless the party takes the demanded action. Contributors who have informed the rebel organization that they will continue their gifts number 739.

Contrasting these figures during the signing of the declaration of independence, Delegate Allen V. Junkin, St. Paul, Minn., said:

"It is true that any army marches on its stomach. It is truer still that a political party gets nowhere without its pocketbook. Our returns show that the party faces a hard march on a thin wallet."

Committee Is Named.

The convention appointed these delegates to take measures for the nationwide circulation of the declaration and for further action which will stop money contributions unless the demands of the rebels are met:

Thomas W. Phillips, Butler, Pa., anti-prohibition Republican candidate for governor of Pennsylvania in 1930, who, by polling 300,000 votes, defeated the regular Republican nominee; Mrs. Vincent Healy, Chicago; George W. Dulany Jr., Chicago; G. Decker French, Davenport, Ia.; Max Epstein, Chicago; Raymond Pitcairn, Philadelphia; Benjamin Franklin Affleck, Chicago, and Seymour Wheeler, Chicago.

Benjamin Rush, Philadelphia, descendant of the rebel Rushes of the American war of independence, was elected treasurer of the movement, thereby being intrusted with the unique task of raising money to prevent the raising of money.

Pledge Faith in Constitution.

The declaration opens with reaffirmation by the rebels of "devotion to and abiding faith in the federal constitution of our fathers and in the humane and eternal principles that gave birth to the Republican party, which for more than half a century has been the rock against which successive waves of sectionalism, socialism, and fanaticism have dashed in vain."

Then comes this demand for a display of courage by the party in the present crisis:

"We believe that the Republican party has the virility and should have the courage to beat back the tidal wave of prohibition hysteria, which now threatens to submerge state's rights, property rights, and individual rights; and to this end we dedicate our best endeavors."

Amendment Is Denounced.

The eighteenth amendment and its results are thus denounced:

"We affirm that prohibition is wrong in theory, has been ghastly in results, and that the millions of our citizens who by voice and vote have indicated that they are opposed to sumptuary laws preclude the possibility of its success. During the last twelve years the effort to enforce prohibition has never advanced beyond the stage of an ignoble experiment. It has been most prolific in the production of discord and treasury deficits. It has promoted graft and

TOKIO ASSASSIN KILLS BARON DAN, FINANCIAL CZAR

TOKIO, March 5 [Saturday]. —(AP)—Baron Takuma Dan, managing director of the vast Mitsui commercial interests, died shortly after noon today from wounds inflicted by an assassin. He was attacked as he alighted from an automobile in front of the Mitsui bank. Whether he was stabbed or shot could not immediately be learned from the police authorities.

The assailant, who was arrested at the scene of the attack, was identified as Goro Hishinuma, 21, whose home is in the Ibaraki prefecture, a rural district north of Tokio.

The baron was widely known among American business men with important interests in the fast east. He came to the United States in 1921 as the leader of a group of Japanese business men whose mission was to improve commercial relations between the two countries. The house of Mitsui is by far the richest business organization in the oriental world.

Although the motive of the assassin is not known, it is common knowledge that leading financial houses have been under criticism in connection with what is called dollar speculation at the time the gold embargo was enforced. The public believed that such transactions were made at public expense.

Deneen Helps Clear Name of Banker Suicide

Mrs. Harriet Lackowski appealed to ex-Senator Charles S. Deneen yesterday in her fight to vindicate her husband, Frank E. Lackowski, former banker, who committed suicide last Tuesday night following a court hearing before Circuit Judge Feinberg. A former secretary of the banker, under questioning by the judge, told a story which branded Lackowski as dishonest and unfaithful to his wife. Mr. Deneen agreed to represent the widow.

Mrs. Lackowski, an attractive woman with a gentle voice, went to Deneen's office from the north side cemetery where she saw her husband buried. Following a consultation Mr. Deneen announced that if due proof could be established for the widow's charges it should make "a startling case." He declined to disclose his plans or permit his client to be interviewed, pointing out that she was under subpoena to testify when Judge Feinberg on Monday resumes his investigation of Lackowski's affairs and of the defunct Second Northwestern State bank, of which he was president

Court Record Missing.

Earlier in the day Joseph Pleck, formerly attorney for the bank, encountered obstacles in his effort to procure a copy of the answer Lackowski made to a civil suit filed against him more than a year ago by the secretary, Miss Harriet Shosky, a record on which Mrs. Lackowski is depending to clear her husband. A visit to the Superior court clerk revealed that Miss Shosky's bill was on file but that Lackowski's answer was mysteriously missing.

Mr. Pleck then called on Attorney Edgar J. Cook, counsel for Miss Shosky, for the loan of the only available copy, one which Mr. Cook is said to have kept for a year. An argument arose over court rule 4, which specifies that all copies held by lawyers shall be returned after three days and as the upshot, according to Mr. Pleck, Mr. Cook refused. He finally obtained the record from Attorney Angus Roy Shannon, counsel for Judge Feinberg in his bank investigations.

At 11 a. m. Attorney Pleck and Attorney Shannon went over the record in the Shosky suit, as Mr. Shannon had promised to do in order to bring Lackowski's defense to the attention of the court. Late in the afternoon Judge Feinberg said he had not yet found time to read the record.

Judge Defends Hearing.

Discussing the case informally in his chambers, the judge defended his conduct of the hearing and sought to dispel the widow's contention that it was the developments at Tuesday's hearing which drove Lackowski to drown himself that night in the Lincoln park lagoon. The judge said he had known Lackowski for many years and had previously granted him favors.

"John Bain took securities from trust funds and was exposed, but he didn't commit suicide," the judge remarked. "Andrew Dressel gave unsecured loans to gangsters like Terry Druggan. He didn't kill himself either. I can't see how this hearing would cause Lackowski to take his life."

The judge, who is a candidate for state's attorney, indicated that he held no brief for Miss Shosky.

At a hearing concerning the Central Oak Park State bank yesterday the judge learned that a $120,000 trust fund organized by the stockholders to keep the bank open was still intact. Deciding that the fund should be given to the depositors, he instructed the bank receiver to so apply it, making possible a 40 per cent dividend.

VIRGINIA IS FIRST TO RATIFY ABOLITION OF LAME DUCK RULES

Richmond, Va., March 4.—(AP)—The senate of Virginia today voted, 32 to 0, to ratify the proposed amendment to the constitution of the United States for the abolition of "lame duck" sessions in congress. A resolution was presented by Senator John W. Eggleston of Norfolk, who said Senator Glass had suggested that Virginia should be the first state to ratify.

LATE BULLETINS IN SEARCH FOR LINDBERGH BABY

New York, March 5 (4 a. m.).—The Lindbergh case developed a new mystery last night. It is the whereabouts of Col. Lindbergh. He was reported early in the night as having taken a plane for Hartford. He was said by Werner Newhause, manager of the Princeton airport, to have taken off in Newhause's plane, piloted by Harold Kail, from a private field. More than an hour after Newhause made his statement John J. Toohey, secretary to Gov. A. Harry Moore, said Lindbergh was at home asleep. At 3 a. m. Maj. Charles A. Schoeffel of the New Jersey state police reiterated the statement.

Hopewell, N. J., March 5 (3 a. m.).—The mystery of Col. Lindbergh's movements is suspected of being a plan to draw off the reporters and give the Lindberghs an opportunity to treat directly with the abductors in accordance with the joint plea of the parents.

New York, March 5.—(4 a. m.)—There is an unconfirmed rumor here that Col. Lindbergh is flying to Niagara Falls where, it was reported, the stolen baby had been located.

Hartford, Conn., March 5, 6 a. m.—(AP)—State's Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn told newspaper men that Henry Johnson would be "held on the strength of his own story." Police Chief Peterson and Sergeant Mahoney of Englewood, N. J., arrived at the county building at 4:25 a. m. today where Johnson was being questioned and joined in the quiz. Questioning of Johnson was discontinued shortly after 5 a. m. until 11 a. m. The recess was taken without any further statement being made by authorities.

Boston, March 5, 3 a. m.—(AP)—Massachusetts state police headquarters radioed all barracks early today to stop "a roadster carrying three men and a baby." They said they were asked to halt the car by Hartford, Conn., police. Massachusetts authorities were advised it was "headed for Springfield after changing registration plates at Weathersfield."

LONDON, March 5 (Saturday).—(AP)—The Daily Express said this morning the relatives at Glasgow of Miss Betty Gow, nurse for Charles Augustus Lindbergh Jr., have refused to talk of the kidnaping of the baby lest it provoke "gang vengeance" on Betty.

R. B. DICKINSON, CEMENT CO. HEAD, ROBBERS' VICTIM

Robert B. Dickinson, 51 years old, of Lake Forest, vice president and general manager of the Marquette Cement company, was kidnaped early this morning by two men in front of the Swedish club, 1253 North La Salle street, robbed and thrown from their car in front of 1420 Elston avenue. He lost a $1,000 ring, a $100 watch and $25 in cash.

Dickinson was emerging from the club with E. P. Rich, 4751 Drexel boulevard, a consulting engineer, when the bandits seized them and forced them into a taxicab. Rich fought himself free and the robbers drove away with Dickinson.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 5, 3 a. m.—(Special.)—Henry (Red) Johnson, sailor boy friend of Betty Gow, nursemaid to the stolen Lindbergh baby, was arrested in Hartford, Conn., last night.

New Jersey state troopers rushed to Hartford by automobile and airplane to question Johnson as a suspect in the kidnaping.

The arrest of Johnson was followed by electric activity. Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey ordered state troopers to proceed to Hartford. One group departed by automobile and Inspector Harry Walsh of Jersey City started from Newark airport by airplane.

Sweetheart of Nurse.

Johnson's name had figured in the kidnaping for two days as the sweetheart of the Gow girl nursemaid. He had been a yacht hand on the craft of Thomas W. Lamont, a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Lamont was a close friend of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, grandfather of the kidnaped child and likewise a Morgan partner.

Johnson admitted he had visited with the girl on Sunday and Monday, and had telephoned her on Wednesday, the day after the kidnaping.

Found by Police.

Johnson was first located in Hartford yesterday afternoon by police who had been searching for him since he vanished from his home in Englewood, where the Morrows live, some time last Tuesday.

District Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn of Hartford considered his catch of great importance and, after questioning, the sailor-sweetheart of the young nurse telephoned Gov. Moore, who has been directing the search for the kidnapers of the 20 months old infant.

Johnson was picked up in West Hartford at the home of a brother. Hartford authorities reported they found an empty milk bottle in the green sedan in which Johnson arrived at his brother's home.

Find Duplicate of Card.

About the time Johnson was being questioned in the Hartford police station by Prosecutor Alcorn, who helped to send Gerald Chapman to the gallows, a postcard and letter addressed to Col. Lindbergh were found in the postoffice in Hartford. The card was addressed in pencil and was a duplicate in handwriting of the card mailed in Newark the day after the kidnaping which said the baby was safe.

The letter, addressed to Mrs. Charles Lindbergh, Hopewell, N. J., was not opened but sent on to its destination.

The postcard, addressed to "Chas. Linberg, Princeton, N. J.," said: "Baby still safe. Get things quiet."

The card was printed and the J was reversed, as in a previous card received by the colonel.

Term Clew Important.

Hartford authorities were careful about revealing what Johnson had told them, but they were frank in declaring they had come upon an important clew.

Henry Johnson is known to have "kept company" with the Lindbergh nurse for more than three years.

John J. Toohey, Governor Moore's secretary, upon being informed of the capture of Johnson by Hartford authorities, said he was told Johnson admitted telephoning the girl Sunday and Monday nights of last week and had a "date" to meet her Tuesday, the day when the Lindbergh baby was snatched from his crib and taken down a ladder and spirited away.

Throughout the entire investigation which from time to time has centered about the Gow girl, the Lindbergh and Morrow families have continued to express complete confidence in her.

Cancels Date with Nurse.

Johnson, instead of keeping the Tuesday engagement, telephoned the girl at Hopewell, according to Toohey. All Toohey could get from Mr. Alcorn was that Johnson had admitted telephoning to Miss Gow on Wednesday.

When Johnson was first held for questioning yesterday he told the police he had left Englewood and gone to Hartford because he believed he could get a job there. Englewood, N. J. police had been looking for Johnson for two days and said his landlady at the rooming house where he lived reported Johnson had not slept there but that he had said nothing to her about giving up his room.

The arrest of Johnson supported the theory that the kidnapping had been an inside job. It was recalled that the kidnappers had been aware of every movement of the Lindberghs Tuesday night, that they had known just when and how to enter the house. They also had utilized a window with a warped shutter through which to spirit the baby and throughout the entry into the nursery and subsequent passage through the grounds the Lindbergh watchdow had not barked once.

Question Suspect's Brother.

While Johnson was being questioned by the Connecticut authorities police interviewed his brother Fred and searched the latter's furnished room in Brooklyn. Fred Johnson said the last time he saw his brother was either Thursday or Friday of last week, when he told him he was going to visit the other brother in West Hartford.

Fred, who also is employed on a yacht, told the police that his brother had shared his room with him until April of last year, when he moved to Englewood, not far from the Morrow home, where Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh spend most of their time when they are not traveling or staying in their country home.

Arrest Surprises Lamont.

Mr. Lamont was greatly surprised at Johnson's arrest, the secretary told his caller. The spokesman for Mr. Lamont was inclined to make light of the arrest and the idea that Johnson was involved in the kidnaping. He said he knew Johnson had been friendly with Miss Gow, but did not know whether they were engaged.

A nation-wide hunt followed revelation that authorities were interested in a gangster known as "Scotty" Gow, who might have some family connection with the nurse bearing the same name. Last night the investigators had been unable to establish the identity of "Scotty," and it was said at the Lindbergh home that Miss Gow "is out as far as any suspicion is concerned."

Mary Rogers, whom Chicago police suggested be questioned in the kidnaping, turned up in Asbury Park yesterday and satisfied police of her whereabouts on the night of the kidnaping. She was told the police did not want her for further questioning.

Lindberghs Sign Plea.

The pledge of the Lindberghs to meet and treat with the kidnapers anywhere on any terms was made as a last, frantic move yesterday. They signed a typewritten plea and forwarded it to Gov. Moore's office for release to the press.

At first there was every indication that the state of New Jersey would forget its slogan of "Jersey justice" and give tacit approval of the Lindbergh immunity pledge. Official opinion appeared to hold a willingness to do anything to end the torture of the father and mother and bring their baby back.

The Mercer county prosecutor, Erwin E. Marshall, hastened to add his promise of immunity. The Lindbergh estate lies partially in Mercer county. Hunterdon county, however, contains the major part of the estate, and the question of jurisdiction at once arose.

State Attorney General William A. Stevens was appealed to and immediately made it clear that the kidnapers need expect no mercy from the state. Regardless of any bargain Col. Lindbergh may make with the abductors, said Mr. Stevens, official New Jersey will continue its efforts to apprehend them and send them to jail for life. The attorney general said he would take personal charge of any prosecution that may result from the search.

Mr. Stevens said New Jersey "certainly will not grant immunity to those guilty of the crime which has shocked not only this nation but the rest of the world as well."

Col. Lindbergh, himself, appeared to be wavering in his surrender last night. It was proposed by advisers to suspend all police operations for a period of 12 or 20 hours. Detectives would be sent back to their precincts, state troopers would return to their patrols, radio and police teletype activities would be quieted, and conditions would be returned as nearly as possible to those of last Tuesday night when the baby was stolen.

Wants Troopers to Stay.

The proposal was turned down by Col. Lindbergh. It was his attitude that he had already given his pledge that no harm would come to the kidnapers and that if the abductors were afraid to meet that pledge they would be likely to regard the withdrawal of troops as a trap.

And so last night the white stone house on the top of Sourland mountain continued to be a fortress garrisoned by a hundred armed men.

There was a persistent report that Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton university, old friend of the Lindberghs and of Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow, grandmother of the stolen boy, had been designated by Col. Lindbergh to negotiate with the kidnapers.

Dr. Hibben denied the report, but admitted he had urged that a guarantee of immunity be given to the kidnapers. While he was not acting as an intermediary, Dr. Hibben said he stood ready to do all in his power to help the Lindbergh family.

Hunt Continues Unabated.

With the nation's greatest man hunt continuing unabated, importance was attributed to a report that investigators were searching in Jersey City and Newark for the kidnapers. This information came on the heels of a report that three men belonging to the Purple gang of Detroit were being sought as the kidnapers.

The same authority also stated that until a late hour last night the note which was left in the baby's crib was the only communication Col. Lindbergh had received from the kidnapers. Of the thousands of letters which have been received from all parts of the country, he said, none had been found to have any resemblance of apparent connection with the first ransom note, the contents of which have never been definitely made public.

"Scotty" Gow Search Fails.

The search for "Scotty" Gow ranged far and wide. Several persons with the name of Gow were picked up only to be released after they proved they were in no way involved in the kidnaping. A man known as "Scotty" Thomas was picked up in Wyandotte, Mich. He went with police to La Salle, Mich., where he was confronted by a man who believed him to be "Scotty" Gow. He proved he was not the man.

There were reports that a "Scotty" Gow worked on a rum runner that plied between Amherstburg, Ont., and Detroit about two years ago, but no trace of him had been found last night. The "Scotty" Gow wanted by the police had been a member of the Purple gang.

Miss Betty Gow, the nurse, who the police insisted tonight was not under suspicion, came to the United States about four years ago. She worked in various reputable homes and hotels in the west as housemaid before she joined the Lindberghs nineteen months ago upon the recommendation of Miss Elizabeth Morrow, Mrs. Lindbergh's sister.

Mary Rogers, the former Evanston, Ill., waitress, in whom Chicago police professed interest, walked into the Asbury Park newspaper office yesterday to deny any knowledge of the case. Miss Rogers said Asbury Park police knew where she lived and that she had talked with them and had been told she was not wanted. The woman admitted having a previous police record, but said she had been trying to "live a respectable life in Asbury."

Admits Adopting Baby.

Miss Rogers satisfied questioners as to her whereabouts on recent nights. Joseph Bassone, who lives at the same address occupied by Miss Rogers, accompanied her to the newspaper office. She admitted she had once adopted a child from the cradle home in Evanston, but said she had returned the baby when she learned she could not keep it because of her police record. She insisted the adoption was legitimate and said she never had associated with kidnapers in New Jersey.

The radio again was utilized by the Lindberghs last night when the parents' appeal to the kidnapers was read in five foreign languages. This was done, it was said, at the request of intimate friends of the Lindberghs. The broadcasts were French, German, Spanish, Italian, and Yiddish. The original ransom note, it was learned, contained two words in German and one letter in German script.

Report Promise in Note.

There was another unverified report that the ransom note had contained a promise by the kidnapers to communicate with the family in "two to four days," counting the night of the crime.

There were gang roundups reported from Detroit, Philadelphia, Newark, Jersey City and other cities. In Detroit it was reported the search was being made for an unnamed woman, wife of a kidnaper now serving a prison term, and described as the brains of her husband's gang. The police reported that every member of the gang had been hiding out since the kidnaping of the Lindbergh baby.

Last night Gov. Moore was asked to confirm a growing belief that Col. Lindbergh had made progress toward establishing contact with the captors of the baby. The governor insisted there was no foundation for such belief.

Little New, Governor Says.

"The case is practically the same as when it opened," said the governor. "I am convinced the kidnaping is the work of shrewd, cunning and hardened criminals and it is certain they had correct information about the routine in the Lindbergh household. Everything we know at this point suggests a carefully conceived and executed plot."

Gov. Moore expressed confidence in an ultimate solution of the crime and the safe recovery of the missing baby. He said Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were showing remarkable courage in the face of disheartening news.

Information at Gov. Moore's office revealed that more than 1,300 persons had been questioned or checked upon in the last three days and that 325 had been examined at the scene of the kidnaping. Most of those questioned at the Lindbergh home were servants, neighbors and workmen who had helped to build the home.

Hunt for Kidnaper Leads to Hartford

J., where Harry (Red) Johnson, sweetheart of Betty Gow, the Lindbergh baby's nurse, lived. (2) Hopewell, N. J., town near Lindbergh residence, where Johnson was with Betty Gow Sunday and Monday nights. (3) Trenton, N. J., from which hunt for kidnaped baby and kidnaper was directed. (4) South Orange, N. J., from which card was mailed to Lindberghs telling them baby was safe. (5) Newark, N. J., from which similar card was mailed. (6) Hartford, Conn., in the postoffice of which card similar to the other two was found after Johnson was arrested at West Hartford, Conn.

LINDBERGHS OFFER IMMUNITY IN PLEA TO SON'S KIDNAPERS

New York, March 4.—[Special.]—Without any word from the kidnapers of their baby, Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh issued a public appeal to the abductors in the following form:

"Mrs. Lindbergh and I desire to make a personal contact with the kidnapers of our child. Our only interest is in his immediate and safe return, and we feel certain that the kidnapers will realize that this interest is strong enough to justify them in having complete confidence and trust in any promise that we may make in connection with his return.

"We urge those who have the child to select any representative they may desire to meet a representative of ours who will be suitable to them at any time and at any place that they may designate.

"If this is accepted, we promise we will keep whatever arrangement that may be made by their representative and ours strictly confidential, and we further pledge ourselves that we will not try to injure in any way those connected with the return of our child.

"ANNE MORROW LINDBERGH."

BRITISH POLICE ENTER LINDBERGH SEARCH; SCAN CRIME RECORDS

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, March 4.—[Special.]—The British police took a hand for the first time today in investigations concerning the missing Lindbergh baby and in three cities inquiries were set afoot in response to an urgent request from New Jersey police.

These inquiries, it is understood, concern a number of Britons who have been resident in the British isles, but are now in the states. Scotland Yard refuses to disclose the nature of the inquiries or to say whether the British criminal investigation department has been able to assist the New Jersey police by supplying the records of any individuals who might know something about the baby's whereabouts. It is known, however, that the police were following certain lines of inquiry in Glasgow and London and in one of the midland centers.

Meanwhile it came as a great surprise to British newspaper readers to learn the Lindbergh family had employed so many Britons in their household. Curiosity naturally was aroused here concerning the antecedents of Miss Betty Gow and Glasgow folk were discussing their townswoman who so suddenly sprang to fame as the nursemaid of the famous baby. She sailed from Glasgow about four years ago.

Increase Guard Around Thomas Manville Home

New Rochelle, N. Y., March 4.—[Special.]—Reports of repeated threats against the home and members of the household of Thomas F. Manville Jr., heir to asbestos millions, resulted today in an increase in the guard which has done duty around the Premium Point home of the millionaire for the last few weeks.

MINE UNION LEADERS ACQUITTED.

Benton, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—Al Metten, formerly president of local union 4069, United Mine Workers of America, and Joseph Rogers, former financial secretary, charged with embezzling $700 from the union, were acquitted by a jury today.

LINDY KIDNAPING CASE BRISTLES WITH PUZZLES

Score of Questions Are Unanswered.

New York, March 4.—[Special.]—With the public uninformed as to the actual procedure in checking up on suspects in the Lindbergh kidnaping case because of the necessity for official secrecy there are countless questions that apparently remain unanswered. Among the more important are:

How did the kidnapers know that the baby was alone and unguarded at the time they chose for seizing him?

What circumstances can logically explain why no one was within earshot of the baby for almost one hour, in view of the fact that he was ill?

By what channels did the abductors know that the Lindberghs would remain at Hopewell two days longer than was their usual week-end custom?

How were they fully aware of the exact location of the nursery—even of the unlocked window by which entry was effected?

Why Didn't Baby Cry?

In view of the baby's known fretfulness in the presence of strangers, why was there apparently no outcry from him when he was taken? Were his cries muffled?

Who knew that the guard had been withdrawn from the Lindbergh property, and when this had been done?

Had the Lindberghs received any visitors in the days immediately preceding the kidnaping? Who were they and what was their status at the Lindbergh home?

Had the Lindberghs received any communications even remotely bordering on threats prior to commission of the crime, or had any serious disputes involved the family with any one?

Who knew what time Col. Lindbergh would arrive home Tuesday from New York City? He had a speaking engagement in New York for 6:30 p. m., failed to keep it, yet did not arrive home until 8:30. Did the kidnapers learn of this, and if so, how?

Colonel's Motives Obscure.

Why did the kidnapers fail to take with them any of the baby's clothing or blankets?

What is Col. Lindbergh's real purpose in having state troopers keep traffic moving on the public road near the estate, announced by him as "so as not to attract attention"?

If the baby slept alone all night, why did the kidnaper enter between 7:30 p. m. and 10 p. m. instead of waiting until Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh were asleep? Had he figured on boldly attempting to escape by the 10 p. m. train from Hopewell, knowing that police would expect him to use an auto?

Did the kidnaper's path, as shown by footprints, indicate that he knew the terrain? Did he evade obstacles in such a way as to indicate that he carried a flashlight?

Why did the Lindberghs' dog fail to bark?

3 Convicted in $50,000 Kidnaping at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., March 4.—(AP)—Ralph Sheldon, gangster, Louis Frank, and Jessie Orsatti were found guilty in the $50,000 E. L. "Zeke" Caress kidnaping case tonight.

SWANSON FLIES EAST TO CONFER ON BABY SEARCH

Aroused Chicago Making Every Effort to Help.

So eager was Chicago to help in the search for the kidnaped Lindbergh baby that three of its officials left yesterday for New Jersey and every public agency had pledged its services wherever they can be used.

LIEUT. CUSACK.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson and his chief investigator, Pat Roche, left by airplane late in the afternoon to attend a conference in Trenton, N. J., called by Gov. A. Harry Moore. Mayor Cermak sent Lieut. William Cusack, who for years has been assigned to kidnaping cases, to attend the same conference and tender his services.

Governor Sends Appeal.

Gov. Moore had sent telegrams as follows:

"Entire country shocked at Lindbergh baby kidnaping. Imperative that coördinated efforts be made to apprehend abductors and restore child. Have called conference my office at state house Trenton for tomorrow, Saturday, at 11 o'clock, of police officials of leading American cities. Regard it as plain duty of every one to coöperate. I earnestly urge you to send a representative of your department best qualified to assist."

A specific request was made that Roche be sent. The United Airlines contributed a plane and pilot to take him and Swanson there and they went to the airport after the prosecutor sent the following message to Col. Lindbergh:

"As president of the National Prosecuting Attorneys' association I am personally attending meeting at Gov. Moore's office Saturday morning. Not only the entire forces of my office, but that of the National Prosecuting association will give every aid in their power."

Says Baby Is in Niagara Falls.

Early this morning Town Hall police revealed their investigations of Charles Knudson, alias Harvey Hanson, of 816 Sheridan road, who was arrested after he had made a telephone call to the Lindbergh home on Wednesday. In his call, which he admits, he advised that "for any further information call Bittersweet 0662, in Chicago." This call led to his arrest.

According to Alexander Jamie, of the Secret Six, Knudson says he received a letter Thursday from a Mary Konner, 2816 South avenue, Niagara Falls, N. Y. She wrote, he says, that she had the Lindbergh baby and that the child was now in her brother's house. She asked Knudson to send her $2,500 and both could then make $50,000. According to Knudson, the Konner woman is a former nurse in the Lindbergh home.

Police sent word of his story to Niagara Falls authorities. They admitted they were not convinced of the authenticity of Knudson's tale. Niagara Falls police found the address there given by Knudson was a vacant lot.

Schoemaker Receives "Clews."

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker received a multitude of alleged clews over the telephone and in telegrams and he had every one investigated.

"We are investigating every possibility," Chief Schoemaker said. "It's a good thing the public is so on the alert. The intense interest in the case is bound to result in the discovery of the child sooner or later."

"Confidential information" which he could not reveal, was being investigated by Thomas J. Callaghan, chief of the United States secret service. Postal inspectors were watching the mails.

Walter A. Deacon of Monticello, N. J., here on a business trip, said his New Jersey license plates had resulted in his car being stopped dozens of times in the last few days. The presence of a baby in an automobile brought in a telegram from Princeton, Ill. It turned out that the car was occupied by an Evanston doctor.

FEDERAL AGENTS JOIN IN HUNT FOR DEJUTE YOUTH

Suspect Released When Witnesses Clear Him.

Niles, O., March 4.—[Special.]—The federal government today offered its aid in the hunt for abductors of 11 year old James Dejute, son of a well to do Niles contractor, and the search was renewed with vigor. It was said the department of justice has offered the same aid as given Charles Lindbergh.

Mayor E. C. Ferguson and Police Chief Charles Nicholas expressed gratification at this action, since the Niles authorities have been handicapped by lack of funds, with its police force working part time.

A suspect arrested by Youngstown police was released after witnesses said he was not the abductor. Witnesses were unable to identify a photograph of a second man. The boy's father emphatically denies he has communicated with the abductors. He resents the publicity given the case and believes it has frightened the kidnapers so they are afraid to send any ransom demands.

Only one clew was uncovered today when a Warren, O. woman said two men came to her rooming house last Saturday and asked to rent a room. They drove a tan coupé similar to one used in the kidnaping. She said one man explained he would bring his son to live with him. When she asked the other man if she had not seen him before they drove away and failed to return.

Hunt Car Thieves as Kidnapers

Rockford, Ill., March 4.—(AP)—Two men and a boy who abandoned a stolen automobile here today, stole another car and fled, were sought throughout northern Illinois and eastern Iowa tonight on the possibility that the boy was James Dejute. Witnesses told police the lad answered the description of the Dejute boy.

OFFER PRAYERS TOMORROW FOR BABY'S RETURN

New York, March 4.—[Special.]—Prayers for the safe return of the Lindbergh baby to his parents, Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, will be offered in Protestant and Catholic churches on Sunday.

Cardinal Hayes, who returned today from a month's visit in Nassau, announced that prayers would be offered on Sunday in St. Patrick's cathedral. The text of the prayer will be announced later.

The Right Rev. William T. Manning, Episcopal bishop of New York, made public the text of a prayer to be offered in the churches of the diocese and by the people in their homes. The prayer follows:

"O God, the Father of All Mankind, we turn to Thee for Thy divine help in this great grief which has come to the home of Charles and Anne Lindbergh and has shocked and stirred our whole people. Give grace and strength, we pray Thee, to the suffering parents; send forth thy holy angels to protect their child and save him from harm; grant that he may be restored safely and without delay to his home, and soften the hearts of those who are guilty of this deed, that they may repent and see the full meaning of their crime.

"We ask this in the name of Him who took little children into his arms and blessed them, Thy Son, Christ, our Lord. Amen."

LINDBERGH BABY SAFE, WIRELESS MESSAGE SAYS

New York, March 4.—[Special.]—A report of the interception of a wireless message in Morse code reporting the Lindbergh baby safe was transmitted by the New York state police at Albany to the New Jersey investigators, but efforts to trace the origin of the message were futile.

The message as repeated over the New Jersey police teletype system was as follows:

"Capt. J. J. Lamb, in charge of the investigation at Hopewell, received notification of state police at Albany that Chief Radio Operator William Garrett of American Airways at Albany airport, while in communication with Newark airport between 6 and 6:45, was interrupted by signal Q. S. T. in Morse code. This is an obsolete signal which means 'All safe; stand by.' Then followed in Morse code 'Lindbergh baby safe.' Acknowledge via N. B. C. Albany state police notified Sergt. Riley of Troop G of New Jersey state police at Latham's Corners, a substation. Garrett is known as a reliable man."

LINDBERGHS' COURAGE SINCE THEFT OF BABY DRAWS ADMIRATION

Hopewell, N. J., March 4.—[Special.]—The courage and calm of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh since their baby was stolen has drawn admiration from every one who has been with them or seen them. Mrs. Lindbergh has kept much apart from the hurly-burly of the hunt, but the problems of a home transformed into a police station, with strangers coming and going every hour of the day, have occupied her.

Troopers at the house said she was suffering from a cold and that a physician has been called. But there has been no sign of breakdown. Until today the weather has been warm and fine, but Mrs. Lindbergh has not been seen out of the house.

The colonel, however, has been continually active. He has rested less, if possible, than has Mrs. Lindbergh. He takes part in every conference and makes frequent short trips.

This morning Lindbergh took a walk alone, save for the small black and white terrier, the little dog that did not bark the night of the kidnaping. He is a friendly pup, looking up at strangers and wagging his tail.

Tonight the colonel again took a short walk, this time with Mrs. Dwight Morrow, who arrived Wednesday and is remaining with her daughter. Besides Mrs. Morrow, Col. and Mrs. Henry Breckenridge are staying at the house.

DE VALERA WINS TWO MORE SEATS IN THE IRISH DAIL

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, March 4.—(AP)—First election returns from Sligo-Leitrim, where the voting was postponed because a local candidate was shot before the general election, showed tonight that the Fianna Fail party of Eamon de Valera had won two seats and the government party one.

Four seats remained to be filled and the counting was proceeding under the proportional representation system.

The new returns made the parties stand thus: Fianna Fail, 70; Government, 54; Independents and Farmers, 15, and Labor, 9. This gave Mr. de Valera and his labor allies a lead of 10.

LADDER BECOMES SIGNIFICANT AS LINDBERGH CLEW

Trenton, N. J., March 4.—[Special.]—The frail pine ladder discarded in the brush about fifty yards from the Lindbergh home on Sorrel mountain and used to gain entrance to the second floor nursery from which the infant Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. was kidnaped is the most likely clew the authorities have in their possession, it was learned today from persons who have spent the last two days working on this angle.

The ladder has been inspected carefully, painstakingly by lumber experts who can judge a piece of wood blindfolded by the very feel and smell of it. Contractors and master carpenters have viewed it, handled it and given their opinion that it was constructed by an expert mechanic, an individual extremely proficient at the carpenter's trade.

To the detectives who first inspected it for fingerprints there appeared to be nothing unusual about it. But the lumbermen have discovered something not readily recognizable to those outside the business. They have found it is made of a peculiar North Carolina pine sheeving rarely used in these parts. No such timber was used in the home. None has been used in other recent construction of major importance in Princeton or in the Hopewell valley.

MAKING HUSBAND DRUNKARD COSTS CONCERN $20,000

Los Angeles, Cal., March 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Ruth Wheeler, who sued the Shell Oil company for $250,000, charging it made a "drunkard" of her husban, a former employé, agreed to a settlement of $20,000 today.

Mrs. Wheeler claimed Joseph C. Wheeler, her husband, was forced to entertain customers of the company with liquor, became addicted to its use, and was discharged in March, 1928.

Superior Judge H. M. Parker Wood today approved a settlement of $2,500 each for the two Wheeler children, Cary, 8, and Pierce, 5, but held he was without authority to approve the company's agreement to pay Mrs. Wheeler $15,000. Her attorneys said, however, she could sue if the company failed to keep the agreement with her.

GIRL EATS LUNCH AT OHIO SCHOOL AND DISAPPEARS

Columbus, O., March 4.—(AP)—Anxiety grew into alarm late tonight as no word came from 10 year old Martha Ford of Columbus, missing since she ate her lunch at school at noon.

The child, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Ford, is a pupil in the 4-A grade at the McGuffey public school. She ate a lunch her mother took to her at noon, and a few moments later, other pupils said, slipped away while her teacher was absent from the room momentarily. When she failed to return her parents and police were notified.

TINY ECONOMIES IN HOUSE VANISH AS SENATE ACTS

Much Talked Of Savings Waste Away.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—[Special.]—Such cheese paring economies in government expenditures as have been voted by the house up to date are dwindling away as the result of revision of appropriations upward in the senate and offsetting outlays of public funds approved by the house.

As passed by the house, the department of agriculture appropriation bill provided for expenditures for the fiscal year 1933 aggregating $175,408,814, which was $10,834,591 less than the President's budget had recommended. The senate appropriations committee added $1,783,832 to the house bill and the senate itself, which now has the bill under consideration, is increasing the total still further.

The house voted $50,446,432 for the interior department, which was $6,273,920 less than the budget estimate. The senate committee increased the total $4,424,322. Amendments that will be offered by senators when the bill comes up will, if adopted, wipe out entirely the small saving voted by the house.

Activities Not Curtailed.

Many of the apparent house economies are illusory. Almost all the saving in department of agriculture appropriations was effected by reducing by 9 millions the allotment of federal funds to the states for highway construction. Virtually no curtailment of the activities of the department proper was effected.

And as to the road building economy some members of the appropriations committee admitted that under the statutory obligations to the states it will be necessary to appropriate the 9 millions in a deficiency bill at the next session of congress, thus wiping out the present apparent saving. But that will be after the presidential election in which the Democrats are preparing to point with pride to the economy record of the Democratic house.

Similarly, of the $54,750,000 the house appropriations committee cut from the budget estimates for the independent offices $50,000,000 was taken from the $150,000,000 allotment for loans to veterans on adjusted service certificates. The committee admitted that unless economic conditions improved it is likely to be necessary to vote a deficiency appropriation for such loans at the next session. Thus, it falls out that the real curtailment of the activities of those offices amounts to only $4,750,000.

Reductions Wiped Out.

In the 1933 appropriation bills passed so far, the house has effected apparent reductions aggregating $132,841,434 from the 1932 expenditures. At the same time the house has passed a bill authorizing an extraordinary disbursement to the states of 120 millions for highway construction in the name of unemployment relief and an additional $12,500,000 for forest reserve trails and roads.

Notwithstanding this evanescence of their economy accomplishments, the Democratic leaders in the house are boasting of their record up to date and talking of effecting a horizontal reduction of an additional 100 millions by resolution after the passage of the last of the appropriation bills.

The senate appropriations committee recommended an increase of $4,915,142 in interior department appropriations and a decrease of $490,820, which made the net boost in the bill as passed by the house $4,424,322. The largest increase, $3,174,000, was accorded the reclamation service. The national park service was given $1,003,000 additional. The principal decrease was $400,000 for Howard university, the government supported college for Negroes.

Wilbur Upsets Pruning.

Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur voiced the protests of the federal bureaucracy against such pruning as the house had given his department budget. He succeeded in getting the senate committee to restore the two millions for the Hoover dam in Boulder cañon which the house had chopped off the ten million asked in the Hoover budget.

Dr. Wilbur condemned rather comprehensively the savings voted by the house, and disclosed that he does not contemplate any permanent curtailment of the central government's activities.

The secretary said that "to add to unemployment by the wholesale discharge of trained and expert people would be unfortunate in normal times, but under present conditions it is distinctly harmful."

So He Gets the Money.

Thereupon the committee not only wiped out the Hoover dam reduction but put back $374,902 of the $404,500 the house had cut out of the Indian affairs budget and restored to $694,000 the appropriation for the Vale, Ore., reclamation project which the house had reduced to $20,000 and wiped out the house $500,000 reduction on the Yakima, Wash., project.

Likewise the committee restored $100,000 the house had cut from the item for topographic surveys and $100,000 of the $119,500 house reduction for gauging streams. The house reduction of $200,000 for surveying public lands the committee cut in two.

During senate consideration of the department of agriculture appropriation bill, Senator William E. Borah [radical Rep., Idaho] procured an increase of $27,136 to restore market news service to Boise, which the house had eliminated. At the instance of Senator Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.] the senate wiped out the $25,000 house reduction for farm management work in Montana. The $145,000 appropriation for control of insects affecting man and animals Senator Hubert D. Stephens [Dem., Miss.] had raised to $155,000 to provide for warfare on the buffalo gnat. Senator Tom Connally [Dem., Tex.] procured restoration of a $10,220 item for the San Antonio experimental station.

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, March 4.—(AP)—Showers of black sand fell from a clear sky over villages in the province of Rio Negro, southwest of here, today. They apparently originated from volcanic manifestations somewhere in the Andes.

STRICKEN

Archduke Otto of Hapsburg.

BRUSSELS, March 4.—(AP)—Archduke Otto of the Hapsburgs, young pretender to the Austrian throne, was ill of chicken pox and appendicitis today at Steenockerzeel castle, the family home, near here.

No alarm over his condition was expressed in the announcement from the castle, however. He spent a good night, it was said.

The appendicitis developed after an attack of influenza, from which all the members of the former royal family have been suffering for several days.

3,125 PUPILS GO HOME IN BERWYN SCHOOL CLOSING

Its length, said Enoch W. Martin, superintendent of the district, will depend upon the success of a drive to sell $120,000 worth of tax anticipation warrants to parents of the children. Members of the Parent-Teacher organizations of the district, under the leadership of Attorney Otto Jaburek, will start a house to house canvass on Monday to sell the warrants.

At a meeting of the Des Plaines school board last night it was announced that $6,000 of the required $15,000 fund to keep schools open had been raised or pledged. The money is being raised through the sale of tax anticipation warrants. School officials believe the village schools will now remain open until the middle of May at least.

CRIPES, FELLERS! NO KNOTHOLE IN 1933 FAIR FENCE

When the circus came to town in the old days it was the American boy's tradition to crawl under the canvas. And there were knot holes in the fences of all ball parks. But the 1933 fair will be a poser for modern boyhood. According to an announcement by World's Fair officials yesterday, work will begin soon on a nine foot fence, three and a half miles long, without a knot hole in it, to inclose the exhibition grounds. The fence will be built of solid sheet metal.

Mae Clarke, Film Actress, Removed to Sanitarium

Hollywood, Cal., March 4.—[Special.]—Mae Clarke, movie actress, has been removed to a sanitarium as a result of a breakdown occasioned, according to her parents, by too arduous work in front of the camera. Visitors are not allowed to see her.

SCHOOL BUDGET A THIRD ABOVE PEAK REVENUE

Trustees Fail to Explain Where They'll Get Taxes

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The school budget of $90,180,000 adopted last Wednesday appropriates a third more taxes than the board has ever been able to collect, even in the heyday of prosperity. The taxes appropriated are for the year of 1932, which will probably be collected in the latter part of 1933 or in 1934.

JAMES HEMINGWAY

Virtually every tax expert has predicted that the taxes for 1932 will be lower than those for 1929, collected last year, or for 1928 or 1927. The board's budget shows that the school trustees expect that nearly 60 per cent more taxes will be collected for 1932 than have been collected for 1929 and 77 per cent more than was collected for 1928.

Appropriations Are Listed.

The taxes which the board has appropriated for 1932 may be summarized by school board funds as follows:

Fund.	Taxes.
Educational	$51,143,006
Building	19,014,707
Text book	1,311,359
Pensions	1,311,359
Playground	819,599
Bonds and interest	6,488,888
Total	$80,088,918

"What is your reason for believing you can collect a third more taxes than you have ever been able to collect?" Trustee James Hemingway, chairman of the board's finance committee, was asked.

Trustee Hemingway's Reply.

"Let me say first," he replied, "that I have not attacked D. F. Kelly; my criticisms were against the Kelly committee. That tax levy had to be put in the ordinance. Because it is appropriated is no reason that it will be spent."

When asked where he expected to get $80,000,000 this year, Mr. Hemingway repeated the answer he had made to the first question. The only way the board can obtain $80,000,000 for this year is to sell tax warrants anticipating the collection of the 1932 taxes, but the board has been told in effect by the Kelly committee that comparatively few warrants can be sold on a $90,180,000 budget. The difference between the budget total and the $80,000,000 the trustees hope to receive in taxes is what the board expects to get from rents and other sources.

Previous Tax Collections.

As a contrast with the $80,088,918 in taxes which the board proposes to levy for 1932, the board obtained $51,239,806 in taxes for the year 1929. These were the last taxes collected. For 1928 the board obtained only $45,324,068 in taxes.

The 1927 taxes provided the board with its largest tax income. These were paid in 1928, when prosperity was at its height. In taxes for that year the board obtained $55,316,180. It also received in that year back taxes and insurance taxes which totaled $3,871,879; so the board chalked up as 1927 taxes an aggregate of $59,288,060. Yet it has appropriated a third more in taxes for 1932.

But the eight trustees who passed the budget know more about the schools, according to their leader, Trustee Savage, than do those who have tried to advise the board. However, no trustee has yet predicted where the board will get the money to keep the schools operating this year.

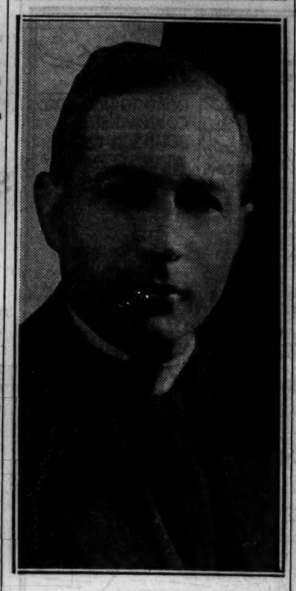
NEW PASTOR



The Rev. Dudley Scott Stark, D. D.
[Bachrach Photo.]

The Rev. Dudley Scott Stark of New York arrived yesterday to assume the rectorship of St. Chrysostom's Episcopal church, 1424 Dearborn parkway, and to occupy the church's pulpit for the first time tomorrow. He succeeds Bishop Stephen E. Keeler of Minnesota.

The new rector came to Chicago from New York where, for seven years he has been vicar of Holy Trinity chapel, which is connected with St. James parish. Before that he was rector for six years at St. Mark's church, Mauch Chunk, Pa. He is a graduate of Trinity college of Hartford and the Episcopal Theological seminary of Cambridge.

St. Chrysostom's during the last three years has twice given its rectors to the Episcopate. The Rt. Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott was elected bishop of Lexington, and the Rt. Rev. Dr. Keeler was elected bishop coadjutor of Minnesota last summer.

DIVORCEE SLAIN BY MYSTERIOUS GUNMAN IN HOME

Mrs. Anna Flickinger, 45 years old, a divorcée, was shot and fatally wounded last night by a mysterious gunman in her apartment at 6237 South Park avenue. The murderer lost his derby hat on the rear porch of the apartment as he fled. It bore a New York trade mark and was the only clew.

MRS. ANNA FLICKINGER.

Before dying at the Washington Park hospital, Mrs. Flickinger told Woodlawn police that her assailant was a burglar whom she found in the apartment. She said she had been conversing earlier with F. B. Penny, a clerk living at 1725 East 53d street. A few minutes after Penny left the burglar stepped out of a closet where he had been hiding, she said. She grappled with him and he fired.

Police found the closet door open. They also learned that the neighboring apartment of Frank Pound had been ransacked. Penny, on being questioned, said he was about to drive away in his car after leaving Mrs. Flickinger's apartment when he heard the shot. He was ordered questioned further.

COMMITTEE O.K.'S SALES TAX RATE TO OFFSET DEFICIT

Other Details Will Be Speeded Through.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—[Special.]—Two and a quarter per cent was agreed on by the house ways and means committee today as the rate for the manufacturers' sales tax, which will form the basis of the new tax bill designed to raise an additional $1,100,000,000 in federal revenues.

The sales tax is expected to bring in between 600 million and 625 million dollars of the additional money needed to meet the deficit of 1¾ billions looked for at the end of the fiscal year 1933.

Next in size and importance will be the sum of approximately 250 millions to be raised by restoring the 1924 rates for individual and corporate income taxes.

The vote by which the committee settled on the 2¼ per cent rate showed a substantial majority in favor of obtaining needed revenues from the more general tax, rather than from excise taxes on specific commodities.

At a later meeting other details of the tax bill were decided upon in the hope that the final phase still under consideration—that of the excise taxes—may be decided and the bill reported to the house tomorrow.

WITHALL OUT OF RACE FOR SCHOOL BOARD'S BUSINESS MANAGER

Ernest Withall, 15th ward politician and appointee of the former city administration as business manager of the board of education, said yesterday that he would not be a candidate for reappointment when his term expires March 15.

Among those being talked of as successor to Mr. Withall is John Howatt, chief engineer for the board since 1913. Asked if he would accept, Mr. Howatt said: "Yes, if it is offered me, but I am going to make no campaign for the office." The salary of the business manager is $12,000 a year, and that of chief engineer, $8,500. For the office of secretary to the board the incumbent, Charles E. Gilbert, will be a candidate for reappointment.

PHONE COMPANY WILL PAY TAXES OF $4,652,000

More of 1930 Bills Are Sent Out.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Illinois Bell Telephone company made arrangements yesterday to pay $4,652,000 in taxes today to County Treasurer McDonough. This will be the largest single payment on the 1930 taxes to date.

A. R. Browne, treasurer; Kenneth F. Burgess, general counsel, and H. W. Paddock, tax attorney for the company, called upon the treasurer's office yesterday for the percentages of individual government taxes which may be paid by tax warrants. The company officials annonced later that about half of the total payments will be in warrants and the other half in cash. Of the total, $4,356,000 represents personal property and $296,000 is the levy on 10 parcels of real estate.

Mail More Bills Today.

The county treasurer will start mailing out real estate tax bills for all property in the townships of Hyde Park, South Chicago and North Chicago today. The number of parcels and the taxes for each town are as follows:

Town.	Parcels.	Taxes.
Hyde Park	100,766	$27,405,893
South Chicago	29,152	40,113,392
North Chicago	14,291	14,645,058
Totals	144,209	$82,164,344

Among the larger bills is one for the Youngstown Steel and Tube company. Their real estate taxes in Hyde Park are $115,830.41. The Ford Motor company, which has an assembly plant on the Calumet river near Hegewisch, is asked to pay $44,324.87.

The White City Amusement company, with a park at 63d street and South Park avenue, will be asked to contribute $33,645.55 toward the cost of the local and state governments. The Interstate Iron and Steel company is to be assessed $69,338.36, according to the tax records of Hyde Park.

Bill to Montgomery Ward.

Montgomery Ward & Co. at Chicago avenue and the north branch of the river has been assessed for $135,761.49 of real estate taxes.

The Illinois Steel company has a plant at South Chicago, valued for taxing purposes at $8,354,096, and will be asked for $556,326.10 in taxes upon it.

The Pullman Car and Manufacturing corporation is chalked up with $124,695.08 in taxes in the Hyde park record. The Products Coke corporation will be asked for $81,714.96 in real estate taxes.

Items on North Side.

On the North side, tax volume 478 and item No. 25, the Northern Trust company is charged with $33,607.69 in real estate taxes. The records do not indicate the location of the property except by the techinal legal description.

The Michigan Boulevard Apartment corporation, which is shown as 54 East Forty-seventh street, has a real estate tax of $41,507.28. Melvin L. Strauss, trustee, has a tax of $57,938.33 on a Hyde park property.

COUNTY NURSES UP IN ARMS AT $10 A MONTH PAY

Will Take Appeal to Commissioners.

The 200 graduate nurses of the county hospital were up in arms over the $175,000 cut in the county appropriation which will compel them to work for $10 a month if they continue on their jobs. As graduate nurses they are getting $90 a month.

The nurses have been told by Miss Laura Logan, their dean, who is head of the Cook County School for Nurses, that the only way in which the reduced appropriation can be met is for the nurses to sign up for post-graduate courses and receive $10 a month. They were told that they must do this by March 21 or quit the county service entirely.

Will Appeal to Board.

The nurses work in three shifts daily, so it was impossible for them to take concerted action yesterday, but three of them acted as a committee and said they would carry their case directly to the county board.

"We are living now four in a room and our food is none too good," said one of the three spokesmen, "so you can see what it would mean for us to try to get along on $10 a month. We don't even get free hospital attention when we are sick. We must pay for services which the county patients receive free.

May Be Reduced to $5.

"All the nurses who feel they cannot stay for $10 a month will be forced into the ranks of the unemployed. Besides, we have no assurance we will get $10 a month. The most recent group of post-graduates coming in say they are to get only $5 a month."

The nurses have not been paid for three months. "It really is a desperate situation," said Miss Logan. "The nurses have no one to speak for them, so they are getting the worst of it in the county budget. They need a defender."

Gun Gang Holds Up Score in Bakery and Gets $4,000

Six bandits, armed with a submachine gun, shotguns and pistols, staged a $4,000 robbery last evening at the plant of the Pie Bakers of America, 1751 West Austin avenue. More than a score of employés were intimidated. The gunmen drove up in a large car. Three of the men, one carrying a shotgun and the others revolvers, entered the office and threatened Melvin Slager, 2013 10th avenue, Maywood, the manager; Frank Scheicher, 5148 Parker avenue, and Harry Richardson, 3209 Franklin boulevard, clerks, and about fifteen drivers. The robbers took $4,000 from the cash drawer and escaped.

Loses $600 a Month

Judge Harry B. Miller entered an order in the Superior court yesterday reducing from $900 to $300 the alimony which Mrs. Mary C. Llewellyn, society horsewoman and owner of Sunset farm at La Grange, receives from Paul Parks Llewellyn of Lake Forest and Rectorstown, Va., whom she divorced in 1924.

A month ago Mrs. Llewellyn sought a rule against her husband to show cause why he should not be jailed for being $5,050 in arrears on his alimony payments. She got an injunction restraining the Central Republic bank from paying him the income on his share of the trust estate, estimated at $10,000,000, which was left by his father, the late Cyrus Llewellyn.

Attorney Robert E. Cantwell Jr. then sought a rule to show cause against Mrs. Llewellyn. He charged on behalf of Llewellyn that Mrs. Llewellyn has misapplied $17,400 which her husband had paid since 1924 for the support of their daughter, Isabelle, 15 years old.

Both contempt actions were dismissed yesterday. Attorney Cantwell told the court that his client's income had been reduced because of depreciated securities and the loss of his position as general manager of the Interstate Steel company.

WINS DIVORCE AND ORDER FOR BRANDY'S RETURN

Mrs. Helen Larkins, 6333 Kimbark avenue, yesterday told Superior Judge Joseph Sabath that she had missed her husband, Henry, after he deserted her in April, 1930, two years after their marriage. Even more, she said as she testified in support of her divorce bill which charged desertion, she missed the $800 which he had taken from her savings.

"I'd like to have the money back, judge," she added, "but most of all I wish I could get a bottle of Napoleon brandy which he took with him. We'd planned to open the bottle on the anniversary of our marriage, Aug. 14, 1933."

Judge Sabath granted the decree and incorporated an order for the return of the money and the brandy.

Will Watch Clouds Roll By; Preach on Them, Too

The Rev. Dr. C. Oscar Johnson, pastor of the Third Baptist church in St. Louis, will deliver two sermons tomorrow, one in Chicago and the other in St. Louis, using an airplane to carry him between the two cities. He will appear at the North Shore Baptist church here first, and then return to St. Louis for the evening services. His subject at St. Louis will be "Watching the Clouds Roll By."

ALDERMEN HOLD UP DISCHARGE OF 2,479 EMPLOYES

Seek Other Ways to Save $6,500,000.

The 2,479 city employés whose dismissal was recommended by Mayor Cermak as an economy measure were assured yesterday that they are in no immediate danger of losing their jobs. Instead, for the present at least, the finance subcommittee under Ald. John S. Clark [30th], which is drafting the city's economy program, will seek other ways of saving the $6,500,000 which Mayor Cermak says must be pruned from the 1932 budget.

ALD. CLARK.

The aldermen passed a second motion urging, instead of each taxing body in the county cutting its budget 25 per cent to conform with expected revenue, that the various governments coöperate to eliminate least essential services, regardless of by which government they are performed. The 25 per cent cut was recommended by the Kelly citizens' committee, which set the actual tax collections on the 1929 levy as the basis for 1932 revenue estimates.

Opposes Uniform Cut.

"Why apply an arbitrary 25 per cent reduction to all governments," said Ald. Clark, "when some governments may be performing nonessential services? They may be able to cut their budgets more than 25 per cent, thus sparing the essential services performed by other governments. It will be all the same to the taxpayers, provided the aggregate of reductions reaches the desired figure."

"Yes," said Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th]. "The park boards could afford to close their golf courses, for instance, if by so doing they saved the city from decreasing fire and police protection."

The subcommittee requested other local governments to coöperate with the city's finance committee staff in an effort to determine which are the least essential services and may best be dispensed with.

Oust Employés as Last Resort.

The finance staff was also instructed to draft a resolution for presentation to the full finance committee on the job cutting proposals.

This resolution will provide that no employé will be laid off immediately and that the subcommittee will study the estimates of city revenue for the year and determine other possible economies, the job slashes being held as a last resort. The aldermen pointed out that they don't know how far their economies must go until they study the revenue estimates.

COUNTY BUDGET FACES ITS FINAL BATTLE TODAY

$200,000 Still to Be Slashed.

The thrilling spectacle entitled "Making the County Budget," which has been drawing record crowds for many weeks, is scheduled for its final and probably its most exciting performance this afternoon. They were dusting off the "Standing Room Only" sign in the county building last night.

At 2:30 p. m. today the county board will meet to pass the 1932 budget. When the members adjourned last night they were still $200,000 short of meeting the $37,000,000 "economy total" which they have fixed as their maximum figure. The 1931 budget totaled $42,000,000. Slashing of this last $200,000 is expected to create the interesting climax. The board has been legally advised that the budget must be passed before midnight.

Board Restores 170 Jobs.

The tentative "economy" budget drafted a week ago called for the dismissal of 553 employés and many other drastic slashes. In the last few days the commissioners have restored 170 positions in order to meet the demands of department heads. The budget as it stood last night called for the elimination of 373 jobs.

Some observers have declared that certain members of the county board do not wish to adopt a budget before the primaries in April. A number of commissioners, however, declared last night that the ten votes—two-thirds of the board—necessary for passage had been assured.

During yesterday's session one job was returned to the controller's office, twenty extra jobs to the county treasurer, thirteen to the highway department, eight to the recorder, and fourteen to the sheriff.

Sheriff Wants Full Force.

Some of the department heads, however, were far from contented. Sheriff Meyering insisted that he have the full force he had last year. He indicated that he will keep all his employés, in defiance of the board, and mandamus the commissioners for their salaries.

State's Attorney Swanson also refused to accept a $30,000 cut from his contingent fund of $100,000, but the commissioners made the slash anyway.

"We'll probably be indicted for doing it," remarked Mrs. Glenn E. Plumb, a commissioner, "but we've had our share of trouble already."

"There is far more waste in the membership of the county board than in the state's attorney's office," protested State's Attorney Swanson. "You could get along better with three commissioners than with fifteen."

"We could!" agreed Commissioners Amelia Sears and Peter M. Kelly in unison.

About $400,000 was paid yesterday to county employés and pensioners in overdue salaries and pensions.

RELIEF DRIVE LAGS; OUTLOOK CALLED GLOOMY

Chairmen Cite Perils of Failure.

Gloomy prospects for the ultimate success of the sale of state tax warrants as a means of carrying on the emergency relief work faced the six divisional vice chairmen yesterday as they gathered at the Chicago club with Philip R. Clarke, chairman, to review the campaign. They have some good prospects left, they announced, but there is far from enough money in sight to assure raising the quota.

Failure to dispose of the $18,750,000 issue means that the public will be compelled to dig into its pockets for gifts of cold cash to continue feeding the starving—or that the aid to families and to homeless men and women must cease. To date only $10,812,000 of the total has been sold, with yesterday's results standing at the discouragingly small figure of $51,300.

Put in Best Efforts.

"Our workers have been putting their best into this drive," was the opinion of the six vice chairmen, Harvey T. Hill, Clarence W. Sills, Fred A. Preston, B. J. Cahn, David A. Crawford, and John F. Gilchrist, "and there is no good reason why they should not be given support. Our forces are determined to clean up the job in short order if they are given reasonable encouragement, but they can't force potential buyers to go down into their pockets for a high grade and profitable investment.

"Many corporations and individuals that are in a position to buy generously of the sound 6 per cent securities are for some unexplainable reason holding back. Their support is essential if the campaign is to be a success, and we strongly urge them to come forward at once and enable these workers to get back to their own business.

Will Be Up to Public.

"It might be well to point out now that unless emergency relief money is raised through sale of these revenue notes the public will have to go into its pockets for outright gifts. Either that, or a collapse of the entire relief movement—and I hesitate to say what that would mean."

N. C. Naylor, head of the railway supplies group, reported 99 per cent of its quota attained. Other divisions are hovering near their quota marks.

Panhandle Despite Relief Cards; 2 Given Fines

Henry Denecamp, 33 years old, and Frank Dierich, 42 years old, were fined $100 and costs each yesterday by Judge Edward B. Casey in the Town Hall court for panhandling.

DEMOCRAT RALLY DRAWS ARMY OF HORNER WORKERS

Leaders Make Appeal for Party Loyalty.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Speakers at the second big rally of Democratic workers at the Hotel Sherman yesterday declared that the fight in their party primary is strictly an organization fight, just that and nothing more.

Michael L. Igoe and Bruce A. Campbell, anti-organization candidates, have attacked the method used in the selection of Judge Henry Horner as the regular entry for the governorship—an endorsement by the state central committee.

"Not Fight Against Horner."

"But neither of them has questioned Judge Horner's record, qualifications or fitness," said Clayton F. Smith, chairman of the managing committee, at the close of the meeting after other speakers had alluded to this situation.

"It is not a fight against Judge Horner they are making. It is a fight against the organization because it followed the approved, established practice of making up a ticket balanced as to geographical, nationalistic and other lines which must be considered in politics."

The workers from the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth, and Tenth congressional districts did not reach the total of 3,000 tallied for the first six districts on Thursday, but they overflowed the Sherman ballroom and amplifiers were in place on the mezzanine floor outside for the benefit of those who could not get in. It was estimated that in the two meetings the regulars showed an army strength of 5,500 precinct captains and jobholders ready to take the field against the independents.

Stresses Party Loyalty.

Judge Horner again talked on the subject of party loyalty, saying that he would not have been a candidate, would not have tried "to wreck the party" if some other candidate had been indorsed.

"Not anywhere on the long trail of thirty years' party service," he said, "is there a record of one act of disloyalty. If some one else had been indorsed you would have seen Henry Horner in the front rank fighting for him."

He spoke of other leaders who had been denied indorsements this year and in other years, but remained loyal to the organization. He also told of his plans for carrying his fight downstate next week.

"I shall tell them," he said, "that all Chicago is asking for is a governor who will not be unfair to any section of the state, who understands Chicago, who will aid in obtaining home rule for Chicago, and who will lead the legislature to give Chicago a square deal in its own necessities."

Courtney Urges Harmony.

"We are bound to win unless we make a mistake," said Senator Thomas J. Courtney, candidate for state's attorney, "and the only mistake we can make is to let some outsider break the organization slate. And mere success by a small margin in the primary with a substantial vote for the opposition will mean discord for a long time to come. A decisive, overwhelming victory will mean peace and harmony in the party for years to come."

Campbell will be in Chicago today to look over his recently opened headquarters in the Great Northern hotel. He is expected to pick his campaign manager soon. William L. O'Connell recently declined that post.

Judge Horner, Senator Courtney, and other regular organization entries for the Democratic primaries will be guests and speakers at a luncheon of Democratic women in the ballroom of the Hotel Sherman this noon. Mrs. Elizabeth Conkey, national committeewoman, said that 1,500 reservations had been made.

Quiet in G. O. P. Camps.

Comparative quiet prevailed in the five hostile camps of the Republicans. Gov. Emmerson arrived in Chicago and it was reported he held several conferences intended to aid the candidacy of Omer N. Custer, but inquiry brought a response that there was "no news in them."

Harry Olson, former chief justice of the Municipal court and a lifelong Deneen follower, issued a statement and made a radio speech last night in support of Edward J. Brundage for the Republican nomination for governor. One of the points he stressed was that because of the nature of the problems before the next state administration Illinois needs a lawyer, particularly one versed in the statutory construction of the state machinery, as its next governor.

"A condition, not a theory confronts the party in November," he said at the close of his statement. "To succeed it must have a liberal candidate. Such a candidate is Mr. Brundage. If the Republican party fails in November on the governorship, down will go all other worthy candidates, with the consequent encouragement to create in Chicago a Tammany that will last a generation."

NORTHUP OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR ATTY. GENERAL

John E. Northup, first assistant state's attorney and candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, opened his campaign last night at a 48th ward meeting. If elected, he said, he will make it his business to see that every dollar of state money is properly expended and that any misappropriation of funds is followed by civil suits for the recovery of the money.

"I'll not shrink from exercising the full powers of the office as well as all the duties," Mr. Northup said. "I'll trace every dollar of tax money and see that the public gets full value."

The candidate reviewed his legal career of thirty years, twelve of which were spent as a prosecutor. The prosecution of T. J. Crowe and the other sanitary district graft conspiracy defendants, which resulted in guilty verdicts against Crowe and three others, was an unpleasant duty, he said, but he had not dodged it.

CANDIDATE IS A BROTHER OF SPIKE O'DONNELL

Thomas F. O'Donnell, brother of Edward [Spike] O'Donnell, ex-convict and south side gangster, announced yesterday that he is the Thomas F. O'Donnell whose name will appear on the Democratic primary ballot as a candidate for the nomination for United States senator. This O'Donnell served a sentence in the Waukegan jail for violation of the prohibition act after his brewery at Fort Atkinson, Wis., had been seized. He said he was blinded by acid during a gang war.

OPENS CAMPAIGN AT SCENE OF HIS FIRST TRIUMPH

Little Julius Kabaker was the republic's first "city clerk." APPEALS COURT ORDERS OLIVER TO PRISON AT ONCE

Ex-Assessor Absent as Warrant Is Issued.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday issued an order commanding the forthwith imprisonment of former Assessor Gene G. Oliver. Oliver more than a year ago was sentenced to 18 months in the penitentiary and fined $7,500 by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward for income tax dodging.

The conviction was confirmed by the Appellate court last December and a time limit set for Oliver to file a petition in the Supreme court for a writ of certiorari and a review of the case. Such a petition was filed, but the Supreme court, now being in recess until March 14 and having failed to act on the petition, yesterday's action by the Appellate court leaves Oliver no recourse but to go to prison and start serving his sentence.

Oliver Not at Home.

Some of his friends intimated last night that he may choose to dodge being served with the arrest warrant, which is now in the hands of United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer, until after the Supreme court has acted on his petition. A telephone call to his home in Chicago Heights brought a response that he was "out of town" and his whereabouts were not known.

The former assessor was indicted by the federal grand jury in November, 1929, charged with failure to pay income taxes amounting to $41,000 and with filing a false statement of his income during the years 1926, 1927, and 1928. During his trial, which lasted three weeks, United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson submitted proof that Oliver had received "at least an aggregate of $458,008 during the years mentioned and that he did not file returns for his total salary of $27,000 covering that period."

Evidence of Tax Fixing.

Evidence at the trial tended to show that Oliver "fixed" taxes.

If Oliver gives himself up at the federal building or is found by deputy marshals, he will be sent to Leavenworth penitentiary next Friday, Marshal Laubenheimer said.

INCOME TAX STAFF AT TRIBUNE SERVICE OFFICE INCREASED

The increase in persons seeking advice in filling out their income tax forms at THE TRIBUNE public service office at 1 South Dearborn street has been so marked recently that it was found necessary to assign a second deputy collector to the task. Two revenue agents will be added to the staff next week. March 15 is the deadline for filing returns. Andrew A. Shultz, a deputy collector, who has been at the office since Jan. 18, said yesterday that 4,997 persons had filed their returns so far this year, and that a total of 5,700 persons had been given advice and consultations. The deputy collector just added to the staff is Joseph Radomski.

TORTURE BANDIT TRAMPLES HANDS OF HIS VICTIM

A torture bandit, angered over his victim's protestations that he had no more money, forced him to lie on the floor last night, and then jumped on the victim's hands with hard soled shoes.

Jack Levy, son of Nathan Levy, owner of a dry goods store at 3535 Chicago avenue, was in the store when two robbers entered. He gave the robbers $82 from the till. The gunmen then went to the rear of the store, where they held up Max Sapstein, 6904 Cornell avenue, and his wife, Sally, daughter of Nathan Levy. The robbers took her rings, worth $1,200, and $42 and a ring from Sapstein.

One bandit forced Jack Levy to lead him upstairs to the Levy home. There he terrorized Mrs. Levy and Cele, 20 year old daughter, who was ill in bed. When Jack declared there was no more money the robber ordered him to lie on the floor, hands outstretched. Levy obeyed and the robber jumped upon his hands.

LEAPS IN RIVER, THEN CALLS FOR AID UNTIL SAVED

Despondent because he had been out of work for three days, Arthur Meltzer, 35 years old, 6926 Odell avenue, leaped into the Milwaukee river in Milwaukee yesterday. Then he yelled for aid until he was rescued by the crew of a fire boat.

Meltzer told the Milwaukee police that after making up his mind to commit suicide he wrote two notes. One explained he was distracted because of debts and lack of employment and the other requested that the finder notify his wife of his death.

Until Tuesday, Meltzer said, he was employed by the Firemen's Fund Indemnity company as an insurance solicitor. The Milwaukee police held him in technical custody last night.

FIND EX-AUDITOR SHORT $484,573; ARREST ORDERED

Trick Against Brokers Is Disclosed by Suit.

A search for Griffith Lloyd, former brokers' auditor and more recently the operator of a Colorado Springs aviation company, was begun yesterday when Circuit Judge Joseph Burke entered a finding ordering him to return $484,573 embezzled, according to the opinion, from R. E. Wilsey & Co., stock brokers at 120 South La Salle street. Judge Burke's finding set aside a release from liability which, the court ruled, the brokerage concern had been tricked into giving Lloyd. The court ordered Lloyd's arrest.

The decree also dismissed a complaint which Lloyd filed against the Wilsey company last August, seeking the return of $15,000 worth of securities held under a trust agreement entered into at the time the Wilsey company released Lloyd from liability. The Wilsey company's cross bill seeking an accounting by Lloyd of his alleged peculations was filed subsequent to Lloyd's suit. Immediately afterward he fled from the jurisdiction of the court.

Master Returns Finding.

Hearing of the evidence was referred to Master in Chancery Jacob Arvey, and it was upon his findings that yesterday's decision was based. His report stated that Lloyd manipulated the Wilsey company's books to cover his embezzlements.

For many years, it was stated, Lloyd was employed as confidential auditor of the Wilsey company, was in charge of the cashier's cage, and was authorized to issue checks against the concern's accounts. In May, 1930, the master's report states, R. E. Wilsey, president of the company, and William Bradshaw Egan, vice president, became suspicious of Lloyd. Investigation disclosed that he had opened two accounts with Stein, Alstrin & Co., brokers.

On Oct. 29, 1929, it was learned, Lloyd deposited a $95,200 check drawn against the Wilsey company on his own account for the purchase of 1,400 Cities Service company stock at $68 a share. On the books of his own company Lloyd entered a spurious sale notation which purported to show that the block of stock had been sold to his wife, Sarah, at $20.50 a share. The difference between the buy and the sale or $66,500, the report charged, had been pocketed by the auditor.

Gets Release for $80,000.

Confronted with this evidence and other manipulations which revealed that he had taken $170,000, Lloyd agreed to return $80,000 from his brokerage accounts if the Wilsey company would grant him a complete release. When the money was returned the release was executed and Lloyd disappeared. Soon afterward when his accounts were examined it was discovered, according to the master's report, that he had embezzled a total of $573,901.

Lloyd was known to have been in Colorado Springs several months ago, but he has disappeared, according to the Wilsey company officials.

ORDERS ARREST OF WEALTHY MAN IN DIVORCE CASE

Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude yesterday forfeited a $1,500 ne exeat bond posted by Charles W. Fricks of the Congress hotel, wealthy head of an auditing company, and issued an attachment for Fricks' arrest.

A week ago Mrs. Kathryne Fricks, 10 East Elm street, filed notice that she would appear before Judge Trude yesterday to ask temporary alimony pending hearing of her divorce bill. She charges her husband was "a modern Brigham Young," asserting that he was guilty of misconduct with thirteen women.

Attorney Frank B. Teed, representing Fricks, presented a telegram from his client yesterday stating that he was sick in bed in Springfield. Judge Trude ruled that the excuse was insufficient, but set a motion to set aside the bond forfeiture for next Friday, when the alimony petition will also be heard.

Ex-Convict, Freed of Auto Deaths, Held as Bigamist

A coroner's jury yesterday absolved Ralph Rutkowski, 43 years old, alias Root, a former convict, from responsibility in the deaths of his wife, Mrs. Hazel Root, and her 10 years old daughter, who were killed when his automobile plunged from a viaduct on Feb. 16. Root, however, was held by Capt. Willard Malone of the Cragin police for Blue Island authorities on a charge of bigamy and wife abandonment.

POLITICAL USE OF PUBLIC FUND IS LAID TO HYDE

Democrats Make Attack on Hoover Record.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—[Special.]—Charges that Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde diverted public money to political uses were shouted out on the senate floor today by Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Democratic leader.

It was by no means the only anti-administration tirade of the day in the congress for the Democrats welcomed the third anniversary of Mr. Hoover's inauguration to pick his record apart and jump on the pieces.

Nor was Senator Robinson's effort entirely without political flavor, for the basis of his charges against Secretary Hyde and of his defense of his own party was the 132 million dollar road construction bill recently passed by the house under the urging of the Democratic leadership.

Called "Pork Barrel" Bill.

It was this bill that Secretary Hyde, in a statement last Sunday, said had been "railroaded through" and he called it a "pork barrel" proposition. The secretary's error, according to Senator Robinson, was that he sent his statement out all over the country in franked envelopes under the guise and with the funds for the department's "market news service."

"There is, of course, no objection to the secretary entertaining any views he wants concerning the house Democratic leadership," declared Senator Robinson. "But there arises a question of ethics when he undertakes to carry on his political campaign by the misappropriation and false and unjust and improper use of public money.

"If he, or any one here, is lacking in the moral principle and the intelligence required to see the truth of that statement, I am unable to find language which can be properly spoken here to describe his lack of comprehension and intelligence.

Says Money Is Wasted.

"We are wasting money by appropriating large general funds for wholesale publicity purposes, if it is to be used by a secretary of agriculture whose ethical standards are so at variance with those commonly understood as such as to be beyond comparison."

Senator Robinson pointed out that the pending appropriation bill for the department of agriculture carries three and a half million for publicity purposes.

"It is immoral and indecent to use public funds for partisan political purposes," he declared. "It cannot be justified when done by any one, no matter whether he be a Democrat or a Republican.

"And when a member of the President's cabinet resorts to methods of the character of which I have described and persues the policy of using trust funds that have been amassed from 20 cent wheat and 5 cent cotton, he puts himself in such a position that no one in this body dare rise to defend him, unless he wishes to mark himself with indelible infamy."

Harrison Joins Attack.

The anniversary speech contributed by Senator Pat Harrison [Dem., Miss.] was less angry but equally vigorous. The Democratic senator went back to 1928 campaign days. The Hoover campaign was a whispering campaign, he said.

"It has now been transformed into a whimpering campaign," he went on, "and before November next it is going to be a weeping campaign."

Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee, interrupted.

"Is the senator sure," he inquired, "that it will not be a gnashing of teeth campaign among the Democrats?"

Mrs. Willebrandt Brought In.

The place once occupied by Mrs. Mabel Willebrandt as head of the "petticoat brigade" or "gumdrop battalion" was now being taken by Mrs. Dolly Gann, the vice president's sister, said the Mississippi senator. Mrs. Willebrandt, once so dry, he recalled, is "now too tired from her efforts at getting farm board loans for the President's friends out in California who make this concoction, Vine-Glo."

The Republican "full dinner pail," said the senator, "has become just an empty can."

RITCHIE RENEWS HIS CAMPAIGN IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Raps G. O. P. and Pleads for State Rights.

GOV. A. C. RITCHIE. [H. and E. Photo.]

The Marylander, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, spoke this morning to the South Carolina legislature, and tonight he delivered an address at a George Washington bicentennial meeting.

Advocating return to the states of the functions of government, Gov. Ritchie said:

"If the political mind and ingenuity of one state conceives of this or that possible change, it can put it to the test of experiment and others can copy. If they do not all copy or cannot all agree, that is their right. Not to respect it and to force it on them through the medium of a central government is a nullification of their rights."

Referring specifically to national prohibition, he said:

"My concern is not at all whether the country is to be wet or dry, but how, in this land of diversified peoples and conditions, can government best deal with the problem.

"My observation is that our greatest progress toward temperance was made before we mixed morals, politics, and legislation all up together."

Gov. Ritchie charged that the Republican administration "promised an early recovery when the worst was still to come; erected tariff barriers which heightened the collapse; resorted to the 'world-wide' alibi, and "blamed our troubles on peoples across the sea."

The speaker assailed the tariff, declaring it had "destroyed" America's export trade, "and encouraged American manufacturers to migrate abroad, there to employ foreign labor when home labor was out of a job."

He opposed cancellation of foreign war debts and urged a policy of governmental economies instead of "eternally looking for sources of new revenue."

YOUTH SEIZED IN DANCE HALL.

George Dunn, 22 years old, 745 South State street, said to have become angry when a taxi dancer failed to keep a date with him, was arrested and charged with malicious mischief yesterday after he had kicked out a window at a dance hall at 29 East 7th street.

NOT CANDIDATE

MELVIN A. TRAYLOR.

EX-COP, TWO PALS NABBED IN $5,000 ROBBERY OF BANK

Vincennes, Ind., March 4.—[Special.]—Grover Griffith, 45, identified as a former lieutenant of railway police at South Bend, Ind.; J. J. Stevens, 45, South Bend, and Tom Clark of California were arrested here this afternoon as the bandits who earlier today had robbed the Flatrock bank of Flatrock, Ill., of $5,000.

The men were arrested by Vincennes patrolmen when they drove their small gray automobile over a bridge leading from Lawrenceville, Ill., to Vincennes. A large sack of money, believed to be the entire amount of the loot obtained in the robbery, was recovered.

Two bandits with slouch hats pulled down over their foreheads entered the bank this morning, scooped up all the bank's cash, locked two officials and a customer in a vault and fled west in a gray Ford sedan.

Kenneth Snapp and Frank Milam, Vincennes officers, warned that the bandit car was speeding toward the Indiana line, stood guard at the bridge and seized the trio as they attempted to cross. Although the three were armed, they offered no resistance. Griffith was found on the floor of the machine covered up with a blanket. Officers said that he played "dead" until jerked from the car.

Betas Try Dog Stealing; Caught; College Peeved

Greencastle, Ind., March 4.—[Special.]—Its an old custom at De Pauw university that every neophyte of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity steal a dog. Today an irate citizen hailed four Beta pledges into city court alleging they had attempted to misappropriate his Fido. As a result university authorities have ordered a drastic revision of fraternity initiation horseplay.

TRAYLOR PULLS HAT OUT OF RING; TALKS OF TAXES

Levy on Income Fairest, He Tells Kentuckians.

Frankfort, Ky., March 4.—(AP)—Melvin A Traylor, who left the Kentucky mountains as a boy and made his fortune as a banker in Texas and Chicago, told the Kentucky general assembly today he is not a candidate for President.

Referring to Traylor booms launched in Kentucky and Texas, he said, "No normal American could be other than pleased that his friends should think of him in such terms," and then added, "I am grateful; but I have not been, am not now, and do not expect to become a candidate for political office."

Then he launched into the subject of taxes on which he had been invited to address the general assembly, now struggling to increase taxes and reduce expenses. He said, "Our government horse has thrown a shoe and gone exceedingly lame" after a ten year "joy ride."

Urges Thrift and Economy.

Thrift and economy, he said, "should be practiced first in the home, then progressively developed in our local and state affairs, and finally in the federal treasury."

The question of taxation, he said, "is primarily one of reducing future expenditures" rather than to get more revenue, and added: "The tax dodger who declines to assume his fair proportion of the cost of government and the tax striker who refuses to pay taxes levied and assessed against him, constitute the greatest menace to American government today."

The financier was applauded when he said the problem "of leadership is not alone one of economy but of so adjusting local, national and international relationships with other countries of the world so as to restore the purchasing of these commodities to where they were when the debts which now burden us were created."

He termed an income tax "if properly drawn and fairly safeguarded, the most just of all methods of taxation." After discussing the merits and disadvantages of a sales tax he said: "Personally, I believe that a general sales tax, in conjunction with a proper income tax, offers an inviting field for exploration, and I am inclined to think possesses possibilities for the solution of many of our tax problems." He was applauded when he said an income tax should be in place of other taxes and not an additional one.

Gov. Ruby Laffoon held open house for Traylor in the state reception room of the capitol after the address. Later they lunched at the executive mansion and, escorted by a motorcade of citizens from his native county, he went to his boyhood home at Columbia, where a celebration was scheduled in his honor tonight.

LEGION OPENS DRIVE AGAINST PACIFIST WORK

The American Legion yesterday inaugurated a campaign throughout the United States to combat the efforts of pacifists who are attempting to cripple the army and navy and further legislation to permit the naturalizing of aliens with the stipulation they will not have to bear arms in the nation's defense.

Conferences with city and state Legion officials were held in Chicago with the intention of mobilizing 25,000 patriotic speakers to address school and college groups. In particular the campaign will be directed against the Griffin bill, now before congress, which would permit the naturalization of aliens refusing to bear arms.

"The speakers," Russell Cook, national director of the Legion's Americanism committee, said, "are to be mobilized as a counter movement to the army of professional pacifist speakers who are taking every opportunity to address schools and colleges in their campaign to weaken the national character."

CHINA REFUSES PARLEY TO END WAR WITH JAPAN

Insists Nipponese Must Withdraw First.

ing both the British and American lines.

This created a curious situation, since the British and American forces, which before last Tuesday had their machine guns trained against the Chinese, now have them trained on the Japanese positions.

The Japanese placed strong detachments of marines about the Japanese Toyoda cotton mills, about 100 yards from the American lines, and another strong force with the quarters of the Japanese Tungwen college, which is only a few hundred yards beyond the point where the British and French defense lines meet.

Total casualties to date of the Japanese naval landing forces were announced as 800 killed and wounded.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

SHANGHAI, March 4. — (AP) — The rumble of artillery in Taitsang, 25 miles to the northwest, and a Nanking government announcement that the Chinese had rejected the latest Japanese peace terms, today disturbed the rehabilitation of war weary Shanghai.

Official Chinese advices from Taitsang late in the day said the Japanese 11th division had attacked the Chinese forces there and that a severe battle was under way. The Chinese were putting up stiff resistance.

Low Wen-kan, Chinese foreign minister, was the authority for rejection of the new Japanese series of demands, which have been characterized by the Chinese as meaning simply a complete surrender.

Japs Deny New Fighting.

Japanese military and naval officials denied that fighting was taking place around Taitsang, despite reports from travelers that they had heard the rumble of artillery. The same authorities said they did not care to discuss the rejection of the Japanese demands by the Chinese.

If China has rejected the Japanese demands, the Japanese military officials expressed the opinion that the situation was deadlocked and that the military would likely maintain its defense lines around Shanghai indefinitely.

In the absence of the din of war in this immediate vicinity the city began to note opening shops and started out to survey the devastation in Chapei, Paoshan, Woosung, Kiangwan and other nearby points. What to do with the hundreds of thousands of homeless refugees encamped within the international settlement and the French concession gave relief societies and authorities a pressing problem.

Among the refugees are 125,000 women and 20,000 children mill workers as well as many hundreds of wounded Chinese soldiers. These are receiving two meals a day and other care from settlement people through Chinese relief organizations.

League Demands Japan Take Her Troops from Shanghai

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, March 4.—Japan had a bad day at the league of nations assembly. The assembly, bothered because of the persistence of hostilities at Shanghai, tonight unanimously voted for what passes in Geneva as a hot resolution.

Overruling Japanese objections with a gusto, it asked among other things for a definite withdrawal of the Japanese army and called for a special commission of military, naval and civilian authorities of the powers chiefly interested at Shanghai to supervise it.

The ink was barely dry on the draft of this resolution before the United States was formally invited to participate in the work. The invitation was handed to Hugh R. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, and was sent on to Washington.

Asks Both to Stop Fighting.

The resolution first calls upon the governments of China and Japan "immediately to take measures necessary to ensure that orders which, as it has been informed, have been issued by the military commanders on both sides for a cessation of hostilities, shall be made effective."

It "requests" second, that other powers which have special interests in the Shanghai area inform the assembly of the manner this is done.

And third, it "recommends" that China and Japan enter negotiations with representatives of these powers "for conclusion of arrangements which shall make definite the cessation of hostilities and regulate the withdrawal of Japanese forces."

It was not the resolution so much as the mood in which it was passed and the manner in which the Japanese objections were "steam rollered" that made tonight's proceedings notable.

Japanese Kick Vehemently.

The Japanese kicked. They wanted "arrangements" for their withdrawal changed to "conditions" and they also wanted the Chinese forces mentioned.

Naotake Sato, Japanese representative, who did the protesting, stuck to his point until he sensed the hostility in the air. When he arose again, far from pressing his amendment or referring to his mention of Chinese troops which every one had energetically ignored, he smiled and said he would accept the resolution. He managed, however, to spread a certain disquietude by saying that Japan is attending the assembly under reservations.

Then China had her turn.

China Stresses Dangers.

"I am sorry to have to ask you to take your eyes away from the mirage which is being conjured by the Japanese delegation," Dr. W. W. Yen said, producing telegrams to the effect that the Japanese are pouring in troops near Woosung, have landed 35,000 men with tanks and cavalry to outflank Chinese positions forty miles west of Shanghai on the railway to Nanking, that others have landed on the west bank of the Whangpoo river and are ready to strike in the Hangchow region, that eight Japanese transports entered the Yangtze river this afternoon, and finally that severe fighting is in progress.

He stressed the dangers of the situation, with two forces facing each other with no guarantees not to start fighting again. He insisted that the assembly take action itself for, he said, if everything is left to the two military commanders why should China have asked convocation of the special assembly?

Dr. Yen's revelations whipped the assembly from its lassitude. When Sato answered that the new Japanese troops were merely reinforcements asked for some time ago, he got a snicker. He aroused the assembly by claiming that only at a Shanghai conference did Japan care to discuss withdrawal of troops instead of making withdrawal a condition of such a conference.

RUSSIA ADMITS PREPARING FOR WAR WITH JAPAN

Charges Tokio Harbors "Provocative Aims."

MOSCOW, March 4.—(AP)—Soviet Russia admitted today that she was concentrating an army near the far eastern Siberian border to defend herself "against a Japanese attack."

The admission was made in the government organ Isvestia and was inspired by a statement of the Tokio foreign office on Feb. 29.

As published here, the foreign office statement quoted the Japanese consul in Vladivostok as saying that soviet Russia was concentrating large bodies of troops and munitions there and predicting a "collision" soon between Japan and Russia.

Charges "Provocative Aims."

Asserting that the Japanese information was obtained from "foreigners" in Vladivostok, the newspaper said that the Japanese report clearly showed "Specific provocative aims" and that it was unnecessary to deny the prediction of a collision.

"It is much more interesting to note that Japanese politicians are trying to use information from 'poisoned wells' instead of being more attentive to facts as exemplified in our peace policy," Isvestia said.

"We have no reason to conceal the fact that conditions in the far east, emphasized by such facts, compel the soviet union to strengthen its defensive capacity and the safety of its border, particularly by increasing the army near the far eastern borders. The most we can do is to adopt all possible measures to defend our frontier against outside attacks."

Charges Invasion Plot.

This first official admission that Russia is engaged in defensive maneuvers was also inspired by documents attributed to high Japanese military officials. These documents, the newspaper said, proposed not only the invasion of Siberia but a combination with other nations in an attack on the soviet union.

One of them, as quoted by Isvestia, read:

"I [person unidentified] consider it necessary to assume a firm policy with relation to the soviet union and to be ready to start war at any moment. The first purpose of such a war must be not only to protect Japan against communism, but to occupy the soviet Far East and eastern Siberia."

Another quoted document:

"Taking into consideration the armed forces of the soviet union, war must begin soon. Any delay would make conditions more favorable for them and I consider it necessary that the empire start a war against the soviet union as quickly as possible. There must be propaganda to attract the western neighbors of the soviet union so that it may be destroyed inside and outside by means of the White guards and other anti-soviet elements."

Says Russia Is Unprepared.

A third:

"Considering the general conditions, we may conclude that the soviet union is unable to carry on a war at the time. The present is very favorable for our empire to decide the problem of the Far East." The newspaper recalled that the Russian proposal for a pact of nonaggression with Japan has gone unanswered for two months.

Isvestia also saw a movement in Japan "looking toward violation of the fishing concessions in the soviet Far East."

The newspaper concluded:

SAYS AIR MAIL CONTRACTS ARE LET TO FAVORITES

Congressman Puts Blame on Postal Officials.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4. — [Special.]—A member of congress today charged the postmaster general with "devising" specifications in air mail contracts, so that "only the favored" air lines could successfully bid for the government's mail subsidy.

It was Representative Melvin Maas [Rep., Minn.], himself an aviator holding army, navy, and transport licenses, who made the assertion before the house postoffice committee during the final session of the committee's investigation into the air mail situation.

Congressman Explains It.

The committee had questioned every witness as to whether or not the line he represented had obtained mail contracts after competitive bidding. Those who held contracts told the committee in every case that they had no competitor for the advertised contract.

When the committee began to evince amazement that apparently there was so little actual competition for the government's mail subsidies, Representative Maas, who is not a member of the committee, but who has attended the sessions regularly and who testified yesterday in connection with the investigation, declared he could explain it.

"The postmaster general," said Mr. Maas, "has always been able to devise specifications in the government contracts, so that only the favored operators could properly submit a bid. The specifications have been so drafted as to eliminate operators the postoffice department does not want to obtain contracts."

They're Not in Kindergarten.

"Do you mean to say you think the department does this intentionally," a committee member asked.

"Well," Representative Maas replied, "they're certainly not in kindergarten over at the postoffice department."

Meanwhile the house was wrangling over whether or not to give the postmaster general the full $20,000,000 air mail fund he asked for, or to cut the fund to the budget figure of $19,000,000, the vote finally being in favor of the latter by 92 to 74. An amendment proposed by Representatives Miles C. Allgood [Dem., Ala.], slashing the air mail appropriation to $10,000,000, exactly half of the department's requested amount, was voted down.

Turkish Envoy Murdered by Clerk with a Grudge

MARSEILLES, France, March 4.—(AP)—Server Djemel Bey, Turkish consul general here, was shot four times and killed today by a 23 year old consulate clerk, Ahmed Osmann, who then ended his own life. Police were informed that the consul had complained of the clerk's inefficiency and that Osmann had been nursing a grudge against his chief.

41 ARE INDICTED BY U. S. FOR RUM PLOT IN INDIANA

Residents of Muncie and Anderson Named.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 4.—[Special.]—Striking at liquor conspiracies alleged to have widespread ramifications in technically bone dry Indiana, the federal grand jury here today returned twenty-eight indictments against persons living at Anderson and thirteen naming residents of Muncie. Indictments were suppressed in the case of those not yet in custody.

For three weeks the grand jury has been investigating reports of operations of a liquor gang which formerly had headquarters on a farm near Anderson, where a huge still was found by federal prohibition agents. It was so large that dynamite was used by the agents to destroy it after they had seized necessary evidence.

Those named in the Anderson indictments included John Bronnenburg, alleged operator of the still; Edna Boyer, Roscoe Hartman, Earl Hoel, Joel Melcher Jr., son of the city garbage collector; Russell Rigsby, Bert and John Stinson, Robert Thrawley, and Rex and Otto Whitehead. All allegedly were involved in manufacture, transportation or sale of liquor.

Only two names, those of Corbett Johnson and Fred Kuebeck, were announced as being under arrest in the Muncie phase.

Several persons from Indianapolis also were indicted for liquor violations. They include Claude Bittroff, Bene Hinton, Reuben S. Windisch, John C. Farlay, and Homer S. Tison.

JAPANESE CHASE 'BANDITS' TOWARD SIBERIAN BORDER

Advance Beyond Area Promised Moscow.

[Copyright: 1932: By the Associated Press.]

TOKIO, March 4.—A Japanese brigade in northeast Manchuria left Imienpo today over the Chinese Eastern railway and arrived in Hailin. The brigade, under Gen. Amano, was en route northward for the express purpose of putting down insurgents against the new federated Manchuria. The Japanese planned to proceed on foot from Hailin.

On Feb. 28 Russia granted Japan permission to use the Chinese Eastern railway for a limited number of troops. At the same time she closely questioned the Japanese ambassador in Moscow as to the purpose of their movement.

Sets Limit on Operations.

The Japanese envoy at that time said soviet rights would be respected and that the Japanese government did not wish to transport troops beyond Imienpo, or Hailin at the utmost. The branch railway does not run beyond Hailin.

Reports from Hailin today said the insurgents there had fled before the Japanese arrived and that the Japanese prepared to advance to Ninguta.

Meanwhile there came other reports of insurrection against the Manchurian federation formed under Japanese auspices. A Rengo (Japanese) news agency dispatch from Manchuli said a revolt against Gen. Ma Chan-shan's Heilungkiang regime had occurred and that Manchuli and Hailar in that southern province had been seized by the rebels. Gen. Ma only recently agreed to join the new federation.

Boy Emperor Spurns Post.

Mukden dispatches today said Henri Pu-Yi, one time boy emperor of China, who was selected to head the new independent Manchuria, had declined the office for a second time.

It was added, however, that he was merely complying with the old Manchu custom of twice refusing high honors with self-depreciation before accepting them when offered a third time.

A committee of thirty representatives of various Manchurian districts made the second offer to Pu-Yi near Dairen today, and the third and final delegation was expected to leave Mukden as soon as the second committee returned there.

Thinks "War Is Over."

As for the Shanghai situation, Japanese government officials reiterated their confidence that the "war is over" in China in spite of Chinese activity in Geneva.

Officials said they believed the 19th route army was so shattered it could not return to the conflict and that Gen. Chiang Kai-shek of the Nanking regime would not be likely to assume a hostile attitude at this time.

Japan, officials said, was looking for results from a Shanghai round table conference through negotiations with the league of nations at Geneva.

HUNGRY CHILDREN'S CONTRIBUTIONS SLID TO $81.41 FOR A DAY

The encouragement occasioned by the $266 in contributions to the Hungry School Children's fund on Thursday proved only momentary. Yesterday's total slid down to $81.41, although more than 10,000 needy children in 342 public schools are depending upon the fund for their noonday meal.

OFFICIALS SEEK CAUSE OF JOLIET CONVICT'S DEATH

Will county authorities and officials of the Joliet penitentiary are investigating the cause of the death of Joseph Carraco, 40 years old, inmate of the prison.

Carraco collapsed yesterday morning in the visiting room while he was chatting with his mother, Mrs. Mary Carraco; his brother, Robert, and a brother-in-law, F. Redici, all of 1046 West Austin avenue. He was taken to the institution's hospital, where he died ten minutes later.

The visitors had taken food to the prisoner. They said last night that all had partaken of this and that there was nothing in it that could have made Carraco ill. They complained that they had not been allowed to see him after he was led from the visiting room.

A post-mortem examination by Dr. C. J. Carlin, prison physician, and Dr. E. A. Kingston disclosed small clots in the heart, but the doctors were not certain these caused death. An examination of the contents of the stomach was ordered.

Carraco was sentenced to one to ten years for larceny and entered Joliet in November, 1928. His relatives said they had been assured he would be released on parole in the next six months.

CHINESE OBSERVE 'VICTORIES' WITH BIG CELEBRATION

SHANGHAI, March 5 [Saturday.]—(AP)—Chinese sections of Shanghai reached great heights of enthusiasm today celebrating victories over the Japanese that never happened.

The excitement started yesterday, when numerous Chinese brought out firecrackers laid in to celebrate New Year's day and participated in a belated observance of that holiday.

This morning newsboys rushed through streets and cried out sensational reports that that 19th route army had recaptured Nanziang, killing hundreds of Japanese. Another report was that Liuho had been retaken and a Japanese warship sunk.

These reports were groundless, but the Chinese populace was gullible.

U. S. TO TAKE PART IF CONFERENCE IS HELD IN SHANGHAI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 4.—The announcement from Geneva that the league of nations assembly had approved a resolution urging cessation of hostilities at Shanghai and the withdrawal of Japanese troops following a round table conference to be participated in by the other interested powers was favorably received in administration circles tonight.

Immediately after Hugh Wilson, American minister to Geneva, had telegraphed a report of the league action to Washington, Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson conferred for several minutes with President Hoover. Later it was said no action would be taken by the United States government tonight.

Officials indicated that Nelson Johnson, American minister to China, and Admiral Montgomery M. Taylor, commander in chief of the American naval forces in the Asiatic, would represent this government at the round table conference if the negotiations reach that far.

THOUSANDS OF ORPHANS LEFT IN WAKE OF WAR

One British woman alone was caring for 80 of them whose parents and families vanished during the hostilities.

Thousands of them are being cared for by other citizens of the international settlement as well as possible, but heads of charitable organizations feared that unless some arrangement were made they would gradually grow up into a horde of wild urchins such as once swarmed over Russia.

Find Frank Rehm Estate Is Reduced to $4,000

The estate of Frank A. Rehm, formerly vice president of Grommes & Ullrich, wholesale liquor dealers, amounts to $4,000, it was disclosed yesterday when his will was offered for probate before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to Probate Judge Horner. Attorneys explained that Mr. Rehm formerly was quite wealthy, but he had lost it in market ventures. Mr. Rehm shot and killed himself in his apartment at the Drake hotel on Feb. 17.

KEEPING UP WITH U.S. IS EXPENSIVE, AUSTRALIA FINDS

Nation Gambles to Become Another America.

BY QUENTIN POPE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SYDNEY, Australia, March 4.—Wealth in Australia comes from the land. That fact has been the most significant in the development of the commonwealth for it has bred the impulsive, reckless spirit which has placed the country where it is today.

Little is known of the influence of climate on character, experts say, but in this laboratory in the Pacific a fine experiment is progressing. Here in a semi-tropic environment, for the first time in history, a Nordic race is trying to work out its destiny. Inevitably the geographical conditions have begun to mould the race which has been set down in one of the sunniest spots in the world.

That sun has proved the inspiration and downfall of the Australian. It has moulded physically a tall, spare, and muscular nation, mentally a sports loving and lazy race and financially a nation of reckless gamblers.

Small Rainfall.

Living has been hard in great stretches of the country. Droughts are frequent. Out of Australia's 2,900,000 square miles more than 2,000,000 have an average annual rainfall of less than 20 inches a year. Australians have come to the stage where they take the cash and let the credit go.

Linked with this recklessness has been an intense national pride. Australians see themselves as controllers of the only island continent in the world, the only highly educated people who could be a rival to the United States. Early they determined that the continent should be kept inviolate for the white race.

This movement is no new thing—it dates back sixty years at least—and its claim that Australia must be kept from the colored peoples began as a prejudice, and, although repudiated by left wing Laborites, was incorporated into a definite national plan. It was a body of doctrine which aimed to make this new country the America of the southern hemisphere.

U. S. Appealed to Australia.

The appeal of the United States to Australia was something that was greater than similarity of speech and tradition, than sharing the same literature and ideals. It was the appeal of similar standard of living. The Australian lived well while London allowed him, and the United States produced the goods he needed. This is the explanation of the fact that in spite of one of the world's highest tariffs American goods worth $493,000,000 entered Australia in the four years, 1928 to 1931, alone. A favorable balance of trade for the United States totaling $428,000,000 was established.

Australia wanted movies and automobiles and gasoline. She became one of the most movie-ridden, motorized countries in the world, yet retained a tariff of British conservatism. The cry of "state rights" is an example of this. So is the habit of issuing short-dated security to cover a deficit. Curiously, this was imitated from the British treasury. Grafted onto the base of the toiling primary industries there was now a great unhealthy civilization which made immense demands on overseas markets for satisfaction of its wants and was unable to pay for them itself. Farmers caught the spirit and were on hand when the government made gifts.

Industry Slackens.

At the same time industry was slackening. "Every week in which there is a public holiday my business is run at a loss," declared the owner of an emporium. There are twelve such weeks in the Australian's year. Besides this labor was growing more fretful. According to figures furnished by Col. W. D. Holgate, prominent coal operator, coal industry strikes totaled 2,923 between 1919 and 1929 and cost the industry $30,000,000 in wages and $10,000,000 in profits. At the same time the influence of cheap money was immense.

Obtained ostensibly for development, loans were usually spent in interest payments overseas while exports credits, established by the agricultural, pastoral and mining industries, were released to finance imports, the loan credits being finally used up in streams of merchandise, much of it consumption goods and much of it coming from the United States.

This explains the resentment with which Australians have greeted suggestions from politicians and economists that it was time to trim ship. It meant nothing to them that the commonwealth satistician had calculated that productive efficiency had risen only from 982 in 1916 to 1,014 in 1927, or about 4 per cent, while the "felt" burden of interest had marched from 1,000 to 1,842 or 84 per cent. There was plenty of money in the banks, they argued and it was up to the politicians to get at it.

Radicals Given Chance.

Thus the first impulses at the time of crisis were to give the radicals their chance. In the major states, New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland and South Australia, Labor ruled until recently when the Queensland government was defeated. It was characteristic, too, that E. G. Theodore, a man who had reported five successive deficits on the Queensland railroads when he was minister there, should find, as federal treasurer, that the way out was to inflate the currency, and should get some support from economists.

Australia, said the Australians, is all right. There are unlimited possibilities of development inland once water was discovered in some miraculous manner, they said.

Even today there are many who are satisfied that the fall of the country is due to the unreasonable refusal of London to lend money any longer and that the British financiers who have advised Australia to accept her lot and live on her lessened income were merely acting the creditor's part, or worse still, were attempting to break down the tariff to widen the world market for British goods.

GIRL HELD ON HOLDUP CHARGE.

Miss Nannie Leslie, colored, 18 years old, 2026 Emerson street, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,000 by Police Magistrate Harry H. Porter in Evanston yesterday for knocking down and robbing Miss Mattie Nelson, 60 years old, 1004 Washington street, Evanston, on Feb. 27.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

LEGISLATION AGAINST KIDNAPING.

The cruel ordeal which Mr. and Mrs. Lindbergh are passing through will have, it is hoped, some practical results in the improvement of means of protection from a form of criminal enterprise the records show is increasing. In a survey undertaken for the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce its director says that "kidnaping is the feature crime of today" and has shown an alarming increase in recent years, though the records are very inadequate. A questionnaire sent by the St. Louis police department to 948 cities has been answered by 502 reporting 285 cases. Conviction had been obtained in only 24 per cent of these cases, and the survey analyzes the defects of present laws upon which police action and prosecution are based.

All but four of the important cities are within 100 miles of one or more state boundaries. In many cases foreign boundaries can be reached within this distance "or shore limit jurisdictions can be passed a few miles at sea." Continuous pursuit is hampered by legal formalities, and the chamber of commerce therefore sponsors two bills now in the federal senate to simplify, strengthen and expedite proceedings in kidnaping cases. Senate bill No. 1525 makes it a federal crime to transport a kidnaped person from one state to another. The proponents of the bill believe that it will enable local and state officers to have the prompt assistance of federal officers able to follow the trail persistently. The inability of states to compel the appearance of witnesses in other states is another weakness which this bill will correct.

The survey says: "Kidnaping cases ordinarily involve a gang of eight to twelve men. Frequently the actual abduction is perpetrated by criminals brought from other cities to render their identification difficult. The victim is then transported to another state to delay and hamper the process of detection and capture, which permits the kidnapers to hold their victim and negotiate for ransom. In the process of obtaining ransom kidnapers threaten the family by mail, stating that if their demands are not met the victim will be tortured or murdered." The opinion is given that under the proposed new federal laws these movements and processes can be broken up, to say nothing of the deterrent effect of making capture and trial more efficient by removing present difficulties and complexities inherent in local or state action.

While too much is not to be prudently expected from this legislation, it is evident that a simplification in procedure which will permit the most expeditious action and unimpeded pursuit, free from unnecessary legal complications, is desirable and will make kidnaping less popular as a money making enterprise than it is now. That proposals for extreme penalties are in the interest of possible victims is doubtful, and the question should not be answered under the influence of popular excitement and indignation. Few crimes are more detestable than kidnaping, but, to insure the most effective methods of discouraging and punishing it, only practical considerations should control in legislation.

ROCKFORD REVOLTS.

The mayor of Rockford, who with other municipal officials fought the passage of the Hunter law, has instituted legal proceedings to test its constitutionality. This act clearly discriminates against the cities in the distribution of funds obtained from the gas tax, and Mayor Hallstrom points out that Rockford paid in 1931 and will pay in 1932 approximately $250,000 more in indirect taxes and fees for maintenance of township, county, and state highways than in the entire cost of city government, including schools. After the state has drawn over a million dollars from Rockford in gas taxes and fees, Mayor Hallstrom complains that the state now offers to pay $5,000 annually for maintenance of its streets.

The case will be followed with great interest not only in Rockford but by taxpayers in all the cities of the state. City people, who bear heavy taxes, are all for good roads and do not begrudge the country district just benefits derived from a proper policy of road development. But there has been no proper policy. Our road program has been a scandal ever since Len Small made it an instrument for his political profit. There are miles of roads in Illinois built solely for political purposes which are not economically justified and would never have been built if the taxpayers of the cities had not been mulcted ruthlessly to build them. The road scandal is the chief example of the evils of an unconstitutional system of representation which prevents the taxpayers of the urban districts from protecting themselves from the injustice and oppression of unscrupulous politics. It is to be hoped the revolt of Rockford indicates that the urban population throughout the state is waking up to its own vital interest in establishing equal representation. Chicago has had largely to make this fight alone, although it is a fight for all the cities. If, instead of permitting their representatives to band with country members to defeat the claims of justice to Chicago, they would join in the struggle for justice for all, a victory for constitutional representation could be soon won. As long as the cities can be divided against themselves they will be exploited unjustly.

WILKERSON BEFORE THE SENATE.

Frank J. Loesch went before the senate subcommittee which is sitting in hearings on the nomination of Judge James H. Wilkerson for the Circuit Court of Appeals to explain what a refusal to confirm would mean to the most lawless elements in the country. Mr. Loesch did not need any introduction to the senators who heard him. They knew him as a member of the Wickersham commission, as head of the Chicago crime commission and as the irrepressible fighter for law against criminals and corruption.

Mr. Loesch said that there should be no misunderstanding in the minds of the senators. The failure of the Wilkerson nomination would be interpreted as a setback for the judge who had given the most formidable criminal organization in the United States its coup de grace by his judicial refusal to recognize compromises which even the federal department of justice was willing to make.

In consequence Capone and his principal associates are either in the penitentiary or are under sentence. Mr. Loesch is thoroughly informed as to the gangsters, their influence in government, their former immunities and their political connections. His knowledge of them is not derived from legend and hearsay, but comes from direct contact. No more expert witness could have appeared before the committee. He told the senators that the rejection of the nomination would be construed as the political punishment of a judge who had given gangland a paralyzing blow. Such a conclusion is unescapable. Any other reasons assigned to a decision that he is not qualified for the proposed promotion in the federal judiciary will be quite futile. They will make no impression, for sincerity or good faith, against the outstanding fact that the judge who broke the power of the most dangerous gang in the United States has been denied a natural and merited advance in his judicial career.

A LOAN FOR THE NORTH SHORE.

The Chicago, North Shore and Milwaukee railroad—the North Shore line—has asked the interstate commerce commission to approve a loan to it of $2,500,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The money is desired to meet maturing bank loans and notes.

This is a request which seems to deserve a sympathetic hearing. The North Shore is one of the few electric interurban roads which has found it possible to exist in competition with the steam lines, the buses, and the private automobile. It nearly went under when interurban lines all over the country were being junked, but it managed to survive, to win not long ago the medal awarded annually for achievement in the field of electrical transportation.

The comparative success of the North Shore is to be attributed in large part to the determination of the management to give as good service as its resources permit. Today the fastest train between Chicago and Milwaukee is a North Shore train which makes the run in just 100 minutes. If a railroad which is making a fight for business in a period of depression is not warranted in receiving help from the government agency it is difficult to see what kind of railroad ought to be helped.

MONEY WASTED.

A so-called Relief Bulletin is published by the Russell Sage Foundation. It consists of rather extensive tables and charts which show that more money was spent for poor relief in 81 cities in 1930 than in 1929 and still more in 1931 than in 1930.

A reading of the bulletin discloses nothing which wasn't pretty generally known before the bulletin was issued. What it may have cost to collect the information, to prepare the material for publication and then to print and distribute it is not stated. That is to be regretted because it is the only thing about the bulletin that is worth knowing.

Russell Sage knew the value of a nickel. It seems pretty clear that those who are administering his philanthropic foundation don't. The fact that in a time of widespread distress money could be frittered away on such bureaucratic nonsense as the report in question is of considerable importance. It suggests that the enormous sums at the disposal of the foundations may be creating a new monasticism with all the evils inherent in the old one.

Editorial of the Day

WORLD'S LARGEST ARMY.

[The Boston Herald.]

What country has the largest army?

France? No!

Russia? No!

Well, according to the league of nations' armament year book, copies of which have reached this country, China is the foremost military power in the world—at least on paper. In January, 1929, the Nanking government claimed 1,800,000 men under arms. This was to be reduced gradually to 800,000, but an unofficial report in the World almanac confirms the first estimate, placing the total in February, 1930, at 2,500,000.

As China's population is 400,000,000, this does not seem unbelievable. But to understand China's present military impotence one should remember that it is also the country with the largest number of generals! The apparent indifference of the Nanking government to the fate of the 19th route army now valiantly defending Shanghai is a forceful illustration of the lack of unity in responsibility and command. If all China acted together there would be no question of the outcome of the present hostilities. But China, being China, won't.

At the other end of the armament list come those minor countries which are so small that military pretensions are futile or which depend on a larger nation for protection. The grand duchy of Luxemburg has probably the most economical army, for it "possesses nothing more than a police force exclusively for the maintenance of order and has no armament suitable for use in war."

Panama, which relies on Uncle Sam to fight its battles, confines its military expenditures to "the salaries of a general and two majors and the cost of a military band." Albania has a navy which runs a close second to the famous Swiss armada. It has a total of 184 tons of ships which are manned by 141 officers and men. If China would emulate the ways of these economical little countries it might be happier. Anyway, it would be a lot more peaceful.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

SAY IT WITH BOXING GLOVES.

It seems the only way. The Democrats are getting madder and madder at each other. The convention is only three months off and nary a rainbow in the sky to say the storms are over. If things keep on like this the convention will simply get into a deadlock until the November election is over and Mr. Hoover will get the job because there was no opposing candidate.

There is only one thing to do!

Let the warring leaders in the Democratic party fight it out in a nice, genteel manner with eight ounce gloves in the arena at the Stadium, Marquis of Queensberry rules, ten rounds or to a decision, no hitting in the clinches, and strangle holds barred. The winners of the first fights would then be matched with each other and the contests would continue until one man finally remained as the victor and the nominee of the party for the presidency. The candidate who stands second in the contests would, of course, become automatically the nominee for Vice President.

Program of the matches:

First Event—Heavyweight Class.

SMILEY ROOSEVELT of Albany

vs. YOUNG SMITH of New York.

Both boys members of this club.

Second Event—Welterweight Match.

DIXIE RITCHIE of Maryland

vs. BATTLING LEWIS, the Illinois Whirlwind.

Both boys members of this club.

Middleweight Class.

vs. ROARIN' BILL MURRAY, the Oklahoma Marvel.

Special Heavyweight Class.

NUTE BAKER, the Ohio Wonder, vs. MYSTERIOUS YOUNG of New York.

Both boys members of this club.

HILLBOY TRAYLOR, the Chicago Thunderbolt, vs. TERRIBLE BYRD, the Virginia Creeper.

Both boys members of this club.

Other contests will be added to this splendid bill as they develop. It is expected that at least a dozen more interesting fights will be scheduled before this great fistic political carnival takes place in the Stadium, June 27th. There will also be many lively free-for-all tussles in the gallery, as well as among the delegates. Come and bring your boxing gloves with you. Remember, the winner of the contests will be the nominee of the Democratic party for President of these United States.

(Notice—Republicans not admitted.)

BICENTENNIAL.

She went down to the gates of pain
In woman's usual way.
No bugles blew, no heralds called,
No bells were rung that day.

And when the gates were safely passed,
When she had surely won,
She only looked as mothers do
Upon her new-born son.

She only saw a downy head
Pressed close against her breast.
She did not see an Eagle's wings
Go soaring to the west.

She only saw a baby hand,
And held the fingers tight.
She did not see an Obelisk
High-pointing, proud and white.

She touched his little tiny feet
And wondered at them then.
She did not dream of Valley Forge
And footsore bleeding men.

She dressed him in his linen bands,
In homespun simple way.
She could not know a Flag would be
His covering some day;

That cities proud should bear his name,
A name all men would bless;
But, oh! perhaps she sang a bit
In humble happiness.

ANNE HIGGINSON SPICER.

AWAY UP IN WISCONSIN the Indians say that spring is here because the bears and their young have quit their winter hibernations and are now roving the woods. It is, indeed, interesting to note how people in cold countries watch eagerly for nature to reveal in her manifold works the coming of the glad springtime. We are waiting eagerly to find out if the bears have ceased their winter hibernations in Loz Onglaize. To us, accustomed to the genial tropical weather of a Chicago winter, it is almost matter for regret that Spring glides into Chicago as easily as a bone dry plank into a Republican platform. Ah, what a climate! What a climate!

"WE HAVE ALREADY FOUND," said Dr. Beebe, the deep sea naturalist, "creatures that shoot a luminous substance out of their mouths and answer all the descriptions of medieval dragons." That sounds like Democrats who are running for congress. But after they get to Washington they change into sweet cooing turtle doves.

OF A CERTAIN WOMAN.

Love has strewn her pathway with dead dreams,
Dispirited dry leaves that faintly stir
With mournful melody when memory breathes
Upon them like a cautious whisperer.
They are lost hapless things that cannot feel
The warm sweet sap of hope in them again
Or turn to dust beneath serene white snows
Of cool forgetfulness that cancels pain;
Immutable forever, they surround

ADELAIDE LOVE.

"GENEVA.—(AP)—China demands that League of Nations act immediately to halt further advance of Japanese army in Shanghai area." Ah, a wonderful philosophic people the Chinese, but with no sense of humor. R. H. L.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

ATHLETIC TYPES.

THE kind of athletic competition for which a man should prepare is determined by his type of body build. If he has a certain conformation he can hope to make himself a good football player provided he will work hard enough at the job.

Drs. F. A. Schmidt and C. B. Sputh have a valuable, highly scientific book on the subject, "Physiology and Exercise," in which they say that the bodily conformation of a given person will fall into one of six classes. There are some in-betweens, but observation and study can generally assign these to one of the six types.

After a man reaches about 17 years of age there is little he can do to change his bodily lines so as to shift from one type to another. Some change is possible if the process of training is begun in childhood, but not even that possibility is great. As a rule the type of body build is fixed when the child is born and no radical change can be brought about. However, a person of a body build of a type fitted to one athletic sport can acquire some proficiency in another, although he can never become a topnotcher or even a second-rater.

Furthermore, a person with a body build that does not belong to any type; that is, a poor specimen, while he can never become a topnotcher or a second-rater in anything can acquire proficiency enough to get pleasure out of play or to satisfy moderate expectations. The so-called all-round athletes who achieve reputation as such really excel in two sports, and occasionally in three, and are passably good in a few besides. There is never an all-round athlete in the sense that any one is a topnotcher, or even a good runner-up, in as many as a half dozen fields.

Drs. Schmidt and Sputh insist that a fine or even a superb physique of the right type for a given contest is not a sufficient equipment. For instance, a first class prize fighter must be built right, but a prize fighter who is built right may be a dub. He must have the will to win, an appetite for competition, a willingness to take punishment, courage, a capacity for instantaneous decision and quick reaction, a good muscle sense, an eye for distance, time and harmony, good coördination, and endurance and wind.

Some of the body types and the kind of athletics for which they are suited are given by these gentlemen as follows:

The short, heavy men are good shot putters and excel in other weight events. If they are good baseball players they excel as batters. They seldom field well, and they are slow on bases. Some good wrestlers are of this type. If they play football they play at guard or center.

The long distance runner is usually short, the middle distance runner is very tall and slender, and the sprinter is often a short man.

Boxers are usually of middle height, with good shoulders and back muscles best developed at the sixth thoracic vertebra, about the mid-chest, from top to bottom. The current opinion as to the best boxing type puts too much stress on the leg muscles. The heavy muscled prize fighter may have been all right fifty years ago, but he wins no fights under present day rules.

The swimmer has a deep, broad chest and broad shoulders. His shoulders, chest, and abdomen make a triangle with the base above.

PAIN IN THE LUNGS.

Mrs. M. writes:

1. What do you believe to be the cause of intermittent slight pains or "catches" in the lungs when breathing? This occurs frequently between the shoulder blades, but sometimes further down, but always in the back. I am in good health and do not cough.

2. Is palpitation of the heart a symptom of organic disease, or do you believe it due to the fact that I am nervous?

3. Will you name some symptoms of goiter?

REPLY.

1. The most frequent cause is rheumatism of the chest wall. Neuralgia of the wall ranks second in frequency.

2. It means nervousness of the heart. This may be due to overuse of tobacco or coffee, to organic heart disease, goiter, or nervousness.

3. Nervous heart, general nervousness, trembling of the hands, excitability, and, sometimes, diarrhea, lump in the neck; prominence of the eyeballs.

NEITHER IS WELL DEFINED.

Mrs. L. I. M. writes: Does acidosis mean the same as hyperacidity? If not, will you explain the difference?

REPLY.

Neither term has a well defined meaning. Most people say "hyperacidity" when they refer to a sensation of too much acid in the stomach, and "acidosis" when they mean too little alkali in a tissue, or in the body as a whole.

WATER MAINS.

Chicago, Feb. 21.—Friend of the People.]—The city has just completed a water main connecting Homan avenue and Central Park avenue on 107th street. What we would like to know is if the people on 107th street will be allowed to tap in on this main for our water supply, as we have only wells now and have been told that we would not be allowed to procure water from this main.

C. A. G.

This new water main being laid in the south side of 107th street from Homan to Central Park avenue is not completed, nor is it connected at either end. The surface water which is covering the street and prairie has stopped the work for the present. However, if we have freezing weather to form ice the men will be able to complete the work before spring. This water main is being laid to serve the people along 107th street between Homan and Central Park avenue, as well as the people west of Central Park avenue.

A. A. SPRAGUE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

VOLUNTEER POLICE OFFICER.

Chicago, March 1.—[Friend of the People.]—It has been my ambition all of my life to be an officer of the law. I believe I am adept for such work and I am now on the present eligible list of policemen. I am working three days a week. Can I volunteer my service through these hard times? There would be four days or nights I could give, including Sunday, to the city. E. M.

In regard to the inquiry as to whether the writer could serve as a volunteer police officer during his spare time, please be informed that this cannot be arranged as I have no authority to make any such appointments. JAMES P. ALLMAN,
Commissioner of Police.

NOT LEGALLY JUSTIFIED.

Chicago, March 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A friend and her son [the son being a minor] went to a credit clothing house to purchase an overcoat for the boy on the deferred payment plan, giving $5 down payment on same. The firm took the money and told the woman that she owes another credit house money and that they will forward the money to them. It is true that they are in arrears with this other firm, but the question is, can this firm keep the money for the purpose stated? B.S.L.

If you mean that the second clothing house applied the $5 to a previous account without the authority of the purchaser we would consider this legally not justified.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

SHANGHAI, Aug. 29.—It is reported that the Chinese, joined by 5,000 Coreans, have beaten back the Japanese army with heavy loss to Kaiseng, forty miles north of Seoul. The Chinese are still advancing.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 29.—A dispatch was received at the navy department from Commodore Carpenter at Nagasaki announcing his arrival at that point. He has just taken command of the Asiatic squadron and sailed on the Monocacy from Nagasaki to Chemulpo to join the Baltimore, which will be his flagship. The Charleston sailed on Aug. 26 from San Francisco to Yokohama.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 30.—There is much uneasiness at Tientsin owing to the fact that numbers of young and undisciplined recruits are arriving there. Foreign residents are arming and combining for mutual defense. France, Germany, Great Britain, Russia and the United States are sending warships to Tientsin.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 31.—A Tientsin dispatch from Chinese sources says fourteen Japanese ships, with 4,000 troops, are attacking Port Arthur. The Chinese garrison, numbering 5,000, and the Chinese fleet have been ordered to attack the Japanese.

LONDON, Sept. 2.—The Standard's correspondent in Berlin telegraphs: "The war party of which Prince Tching is the head has, I learn, got the upper hand in China, which means that the struggle with Japan will be prosecuted with vigor. A large army is now gathering near Peking. Half of this army will guard the capital while the other half will march to Corea." A dispatch to the Times from Shanghai says the Chinese report that on Aug. 30 the Japanese troops made a reconnoissance in force on Port Arthur. They found the landward defense too strong and retired without making an attack.

28 YEARS AGO TODAY

TIENTSIN.—There has been a three days' bombardment, at intervals, of Port Arthur on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The Japanese ships first fired from a range of fifteen kilometers distant from the forts, and then reduced the distance to seven kilometers [about four and one-third miles].

LONDON.—News of a naval battle off the Miaotau islands between a Russian and a Japanese warship, in which both ships were sunk, reached Tengchow. It is declared that all on board the Russian cruiser went down with the ship. Two hundred men off the Japanese warship were picked up by junks. The rest perished. According to the Sevastopol correspondent of the Daily Graphic, Admiral Skrydloff has learned privately from Port Arthur that the Russian battleship Retvizan lies in such a position as to block effectually the exit of the battleships from the harbor, the passage being practicable only for cruisers. Japan is closely guarding all movements of troops. Vague dispatches, however, indicate that the army in northern Corea is constantly growing in numbers. A Shanghai dispatch states that the Japanese have occupied Port Lazareff roadstead, on the east coast of Corea, north of Gensan. A large fleet of transports, convoyed by warships, passed Tsushima island, in the Strait of Corea, on Thursday, bound for the east coast of Corea, presumably Gensan or Port Lazareff.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 5, 1916.

PARIS.—The extent of the preparations made for the capture of Verdun are revealed by L'Eclair, which asserts that every day during the first week of the bombardment the Germans expended more than 400,000 projectiles. The total fired now exceeds 3,000,000.

PARIS.—The fourth day of the battle for possession of the little village of Douaumont, to the northeast of Verdun, has closed with the Germans in possession of the village but with the French holding the dominating heights to the south. The village—now smoking ruins of less than fifty houses—has been the scene of the most terrible fighting of the war. Eyewitnesses say that nothing at Charleroi on the Marne, along the Yser, or in the Champagne equaled the sacrifices which the troops of the crown prince already have made for the little group of ruined houses which lies a little northwest of Fort Douaumont. Unofficial estimates say that the French losses in dead, wounded, and missing will reach 30,000. The Germans, who have been on the offensive against strongly consolidated positions for the greater part of the time, are supposed to have lost many more men.

WASHINGTON.—Efforts of the administration leaders in the house of representatives to obtain an indorsement of President Wilson's policy in the submarine controversy with Germany failed. So strong was the sentiment in the house favoring the adoption of a resolution of warning to Americans to shun armed merchantmen, and so great was the opposition to the proposed tabling of the McLemore resolution under a gag rule, as proposed by the administration, that the leaders did not dare to bring the matter before the house. After a protracted conference the Wilson lieutenants decided to postpone action until next Tuesday.

VERY UNFAIR.

Davenport, Ia., March 2.—Your editorial which appeared in the March 1 issue, in which you stated that the ex-service man who believes in the final payment of the adjusted compensation is in the racketeering class, was read with considerable interest.

I feel that it was very unfair and not up to the usual TRIBUNE standard in that it resorted to personalities of a scurrilous nature. I wish to state that there are thousands of ex-service men out of work who would be relieved to a great extent by the payment of this compensation. It is difficult to understand why this relief measure should not be taken care of with the same nobility of spirit with which the Boulder dam is being financed to the tune of approximately $165,000,000, and the Columbia river agitation, which is receiving the administration's approval, and the millions spent upon the Mississippi improvements, which is somewhat questionable in the minds of some of the leading engineers.

This editorial brings to the writer's mind Kipling's famous poem, "Tommy Atkins."

A MATTER OF DEFINITION.

Chicago, March 2.—Of course, in these times everything is a racket unless you are for it. Your editorial in Tuesday's TRIBUNE, March 1, 1932, was a surprise to me, as it must have been to many ex-service men, because THE TRIBUNE was one of the first papers to establish an office where the soldier could come and make out his application for adjusted compensation; in fact, could get any legal advice that he might desire.

The following figures are from Col. Leonard E. Ayres of the general staff, U. S. A., in May, 1919: 2,086,000 men went overseas; 1,390,000 men fought in France; 1,200,000 Americans took part in the Meuse-Argonne battle. You stated that less than 2,000,000 men went out of the country and that only 300,000 saw active service.

When the bills were passed by congress to reimburse the manufacturing corporations for losses, or rather for the amount of profit they did not get, were they loco? If so, they will be loco now as you state. If Representative Patman is sponsoring a bunch of racketeers now, just what was it called when the returns were to go to the big fellow. EX-SERVICE MAN.

PAUPERIZING THE VETERANS.

Chicago, March 2.—Your editorial, "Into the Abyss," should give us a good scare and lead to economy in government expenditures, and I want to call to your attention another case of unnecessary expense. The Hines Memorial hospital cares for ex-service men who are indigent and sick, but it also takes care of thousands of men who are well able to pay for medical service and whose illness is not related to war service. In other words, the government is competing with the physicians in general practice.

I am a physician, and I want to see the ex-soldier taken care of if he is ill and cannot pay, but I believe if he has money that he should pay his physician. I am an ex-service man, but the government does not provide me with free legal service, living quarters or free groceries. There are plenty of patients with good incomes who are at Hines hospital, and this can be proven by investigation. Why should the government assume this burden and thereby increase its expense, and at the same time take away the private physician's fees? M. D.

THE BONUS.

Chicago, March 2.—Being an admirer of courage, I must applaud your display of it in so viciously attacking Representative Patman's bill for the payment of the remaining 50 per cent of the veterans' adjusted service certificates. But I cannot agree with your views.

Let us trace the history of these certificates. At the end of the war congress agreed that they owed the veterans at least a part of the money they lost by giving up their jobs and joining the fighting forces at $30 a month. Whether they ever reached the front lines or not was no fault of their own, and your editorial treatment of this phase was positively insulting to many men who were prevented from going into the front lines.

Now to get back to the history of the certificates. Instead of congress then and there paying the agreed amount of $1 and $1.25 a day respectively for home and foreign service, they postponed payments for 20 years [really 27 years after the war] until 1945, and increased the amounts by a table of the amount of paid up insurance these sums would buy.

About that same time the railroads, war contractors, foreign government, and others were being reimbursed in cash for their alleged losses. Then why were we told to wait 20 years for ours?

The veterans as a whole want to be fair about bankrupting the government to pamper every whim. In some respects veteran relief may be carried too far. But in this particular instance it would only be the better part of fairness for congress to pass the Patman bill, especially since the last congress broke the ice by increasing the loan privilege. If this bill is not passed the interest will almost wipe out the principal by maturity.

Our public debt can stand this increase and the money will act as a direct stimulus to business. I think the American public would prefer this kind of relief to such as the Reconstruction Finance corporation. ANDREW GRIESEMER.

PERSONAL PROPERTY.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—I just received my personal property tax bill for the year 1930. I have been living in three small rooms. I have three overstuffed chairs, one table and an obsolete radio set in the living room. The dinette has a table and six chairs. A bed and dresser and three rugs are the rest of my personal property, all bought ten years ago. I am to pay $20.22 for the privilege of using this meager furniture.

I have never had the pleasure of meeting an assessor, nor has one ever been to my apartment, and I do not understand how they can assess a man's property when they don't take the trouble to find out how much personal property he has.

How this bill will ever be paid is a mystery to me. I have been employed only part time for a year and a half, and am behind with all my bills. If the assessors assess the wealthy in proportion to the amount of my bill, the school teachers, politicians, etc., need have no further worry over money matters.

L. R. D.

ON WISCONSIN.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 25.—Your editorial on the redistribution of wealth in the bolshevik state of Wisconsin failed to include a suggestion as to how the rascals at Madison should spend the pelf plucked from the few solvent citizens of Badgerdom. The writer urges the erection of spacious poorhouses in each county. I am, unfortunately, a taxpayer in the ghastly community called Superior. Once hailed as a threat to Chicago's commercial and industrial supremacy, this dire burgh has dropped in population during the last three decades and from second in the state to seventh. Crucifixion of capital and enterprise has taken its toll. Yet for three successive years my taxes have increased. NED ALVORD.

FINLAND'S HOME GUARDS READY TO SUPPORT REVOLT

Rebel Leader Talks to President Over Phone.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 4.—[By airplane to Tallinn, Estonia, to avoid censor.]—In the event of a showdown between the Lapua revolt movement and the Finnish government, both the home guards and the population will support the Fascist rebels, according to home guard officers who were interviewed today in districts surrounding the capital of Helsingfors.

Officers said the home guards are remaining neutral at present in the conflict and that they intend to act as a buffer between the government and the Lapuamen. But if the government ordered them to fire on the Lapua they could not answer for the action of their commands or even for the obedience of the officers, they said.

Officially, the Finnish government remains in control of the country, but its jurisdiction ceases 50 miles from Helsingfors, and Lapua outposts already are within 30 miles of the capital and are in control of highway traffic. Roads leading to the city are heavily guarded by hidden field pieces, and some regiments already are behind barbed wire entanglements put up during the war with the communists 14 years ago.

Chase Rebels from Town.

A band of rebels seized the town of Jyvaskyla today, but were chased out by home guards by sundown. It was reported the rebels numbered less than 200.

Vihtori Kosola and Maj. Gen. Marttl Waelenius, leaders of the rebellion, are in hiding near the capital. Kosola, who has been attempting to get into direct communication with President Pehr Evind Svinhufvud, talked to the chief executive over the phone today. Their conversation was lengthy, but the outcome is unknown at this time.

President Svinhufvud has the affection and faith of the entire country, but the rebel leaders claim that he is surrounded by officials who will not permit emissaries of the Lapuans to approach him.

"We are therefore perfecting the mobilization of our army to force the government to accede to our demands," rebel leaders said.

Both the Lapua and leaders of the home guards object to the present government. They insist that in its efforts for neutrality it has been leaning backward to protect the Socialists and their communist friends from the Lapua.

"We are doing everything to prevent bloodshed," they said. "But the first casualty will result in the entire country rising behind the Lapua party, which represents the same element of the population which won the war against the Reds."

Plans to Attack Capital.

Men close to Kosola say he intends to attack Helsingfors. Observers declare a showdown of strength between the government and the Lapuamen is near. The government will attempt to save its shattered prestige while the Lapua is determined to force the government's resignation.

The Finnish government played its trump card to avert a civil war last Tuesday when the 70 year old president, Svinhufvud, assumed the duties of commander-in-chief of the Finnish army and home guards and commanded the mobilized Lapua to return to their homes. With the arrival of another infantry regiment from Abo, the defenses of Helsingfors have been increased to three regiments of infantry and a battalion of tanks and armored cars. Ten thousand home guards can also be mobilized within 20 minutes in Helsingfors.

Reports reaching Helsingfors from western Finland reveal that the Lapua mobilization is continuing successfully. Although the Lapau are concentrating in towns located on railroads leading to the capital, thus far no attempt has been made to interrupt the transportation of troops to Helsingfors.

The government temporarily has abandoned efforts to capture Kosola and Gen. Wallenius.

The Finnish Socialist party is depending upon the government to protect its organizations from the Lapua, which demands the liquidation of socialism in Finland, according to Mikko Erich, Socialist leader in the Finn parliament. He said that Finland has 400,000 Socialists who are loyal to the government and that the party opposes any surrender to the Lapua demands.

102 YEARS OLD TODAY

MRS. ESTHER BEERS.

Saw City as Swamp

Along with the other events of the past that Mrs. Esther Beers will recall today on her 102d birthday will be the time 92 years ago when her father, John Salisbury, looked over the muddy acres of the village of Chicago and allowed the place was too marshy for him to live in.

The Salisbury family of seven drove on in their covered wagon to Crystal Lake, the end of their journey from New York. Mrs. Beers lived there until her marriage to Dr. E. A. Beers, when they moved to McHenry. She came to Chicago 25 years ago.

EXIT THE GIGOLO! HIS TAKING WAYS REMOVE GLAMOUR

Paris "Tribe" Vanishing; Too Light Fingered.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 4.—Exit the gigolo! The slick haired tribe that once haunted the night clubs of Monmartre and the Champs Elyses is rapidly vanishing. Up in central police headquarters on the Ile de la Cite the files in the "G" section of the morality squad are getting dusty.

Only one case involving the professional activities of gigolos—and that concerned an American woman who thought he was a physician—has been reported in the last five months. Formerly there were several cases of "gigolage" a week. Moreover, the gentlemen, themselves, who are all known to the police, have dropped out of sight.

Profession in Decadence.

Hard times, of course, is thought to be the main reason, but these have only increased the numbers of the gigolo's female counterpart. Why, then, is the male of the species disappearing?

Police do not know exactly. They think that the notorious weakness of gigolos for carrying off little trinkets, suc has jewelry, handbags, and even money to remember their clients by has a great deal to do with it. The gigolo technique became too formalized and fell into decadence. There was no mistaking the individual once he had been seen, while the prey grew more wary from experience.

Then, too, the gentlemen of the morality squad point out there are gigolos and gigolos. Technically the term should apply only to professional dancers hired by night clubs to act as partners for unescorted feminine customers. In popular parlance the word is used in a broader and more disreputable sense.

Some Still Are Active.

It is only the first category that is disappearing, police are sorry to report. The second oldest profession in the world continues to be exercised, but it flourishes only under guise of amateurism, more in drawing rooms and boudoirs than on public dance floors. Besides it is becoming fashionable to make an honest boy out of him. Police headquarters have no statistics on the number of husbands who draw an allowance from their wives.

Perhaps the honest, 100 per cent professional gigolos are giving up in disgust over what they regard as a conspiracy in restraint of trade. Or perhaps they are all married off by now. Anyway they are disappearing.

EARL CARROLL KISSES 25 GIRLS GOOD-BY; DELAYS SHIP'S SAILING

New York, March 4.—(AP)—Earl Carroll, show producer, stood on the gang plank and kissed 25 girls from his revue good-by before sailing for Europe tonight. The procedure delayed the Ile de France's departure five minutes.

A process server, who boarded the ship in time to hand Carroll a subpœna in a $60,000 rental action involving his new theater, was not kissed.

Carroll said he would spend four weeks in Europe gathering new material for a production.

DRY FOES ACT TO GET G. O. P. REPEAL PLANK

"No Contribution" Stand Urged on Party.

The outstanding demand of the rebels is voiced in these words:

"We demand that the Republican platform of 1932 contain a plank pledging the passage of a congressional resolution for the submission of a proposal to repeal the eighteenth amendment, which resolution shall be submitted for ratification by conventions of the people in the several states in acordance with article V of the constitution."

Reports Assail Prohibition.

A large part of the all day session was given to reports on the workings of prohibition in various states of the Union.

Reporting on Minnesota, Delegate Junkin said:

"In my state we feel this problem very acutely and, although I speak without rancor, I must tell you that the resentment which the infamies of bogus prohibition have created is directed more against Mr. Hoover than against the Republican party. I am satisfied that Minnesota will go Democratic this time if our party does not meet the situation with a satisfactory repeal plank. If it does not we can no longer hold our young people in line.

Tells Burden of Waste.

"Minnesota is building stockades to hold the prohibition violators. Our jails won't hold them any more.

"Meddlers and neighborhood tyrants in our midst are pestiferous as never before. They have brought the hateful system of boycott into play. W. C. T. U. units are passing resolutions that they will not patronize this or that wholesale or retail house or this or that professional man unless those firms and individuals declare themselves drys."

Mr. Junkin described the Anti-Saloon league as "the first big time racket" and epitomized its program as 'Damn the constitution—except the eighteenth amendment.'"

Andrew R. Sherriff, Chicago, and Harold Pitcairn, Philadelphia, brother of Raymond Pitcairn, founder of the rebel organization and for many months the giver of two-thirds of its funds, submitted to the intent assemblage divergent views as to how the present situation can be met successfully. Mr. Sherriff said that remedial measures are "a matter of very delicate procedure." Mr. Pitcairn was for "war"—short, sharp, and immediate.

Calls Amendment Mistake.

Speaking as a legalist, Mr. Sherriff said:

"The 18th amendment is a very grave mistake in our constitution and should be removed from it. Our business is to devise something constructive, suggestive, and progressive in order to get the Republican party out of a desperate dilemma which is apt to lead to its destruction. Demand for repeal of the 18th amendment is not enough. There must be something beyond that demand. We must give the party an easy place to land on.

"The whole difficulty that the cause of genuine temperance is meeting is that the repealists want to tie the hands of congress. We must trust congress to determine questions of regulation as they arise from time to time. We can demand repeal until we are blue in the face, but we shall get nowhere unless we accompany that demand with our approval of the reservation of large discretionary powers to congress."

Reads Resolution Text.

Mr. Sherriff then read a joint resolution which he drafted and which was introduced in the national house of representatives by Morton D. Hull [Rep., Ill.] on Jan. 5 and referred to the judiciary committee. That resolution proposes the repeal of the 18th amendment and the following substitution for it:

The congress shall have power to restrict and to prohibit the manufacture, sale, transportation, importation, and exportation of intoxicating beverages and narcotic drugs, throughout the United States and all territory subject to its jurisdiction; but this grant of power shall not be construed to limit the power of the several states to make or enforce any laws not conflicting or inconsistent with the exercise of the aforesaid power of the congress.

Mr. Sherriff was listened to with deep respect and close attention, but the majority of the delegates were for more radical action than he thought wise.

"It is," said Harold Pitcairn, "no time for compromise. The time for compromise has passed. The time has come for war. The only solution is to take the whole problem from congress and give it to the states."

Country Is 48 Sovereignties.

"But," shouted Randolph W. Childs, Philadelphia, counsel for the rebel body, "one thing is basic! This country is not one sovereignty. It is forty eight different sovereignties, and I say to congress, 'Take your hands off our business!'"

Shaking his head, Mr. Sherriff said: "It is a matter of more delicate procedure than that."

"In any case," interjected Raymond Pitcairn, "not one cent for the Republican party unless the party comes out for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. I am in touch with contributors who formerly gave all the way from $1,000 to $10,000 to the party's campaign funds, and one of them gave far more than $10,000. But now they are emphatically refusing to make any contributions."

Little Persuasion Needed.

Lucius Wilson, Chicago, spoke up dryly, saying: "It's not going to take much eloquence today to induce anybody not to subscribe to the Republican party or the Methodist church."

Mr. Revere, who is an economist, uttered withering remarks on what he called "the wicked waste of bogus prohibition."

"We should," he said, "be getting two and a half billions of revenue a year from liquor, and a congress that is giving us some of the most fantastic legislation ever devised in the history of the world should drop fantasticalities long enough to take account of that fact and to act upon it. It will—perhaps—take account of the fact when the next income tax returns come in. The decrease is going to shock the country. Meanwhile, two and a half millions of possible excise are going to the enrichment of gangdom."

Telegram from Beck Read.

The delegates received a telegraphic message from a statesman who is acclaimed as "the greatest constitutionalist in congress." It came from Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.] and one of its phrases set the rebels cheering. "The historic party," Mr. Beck telegraphed, "which freed the slaves, and which must free the people from this bondage of a mocking prohibition, cannot endure half dry and half wet."

Mr. Beck's colleague in congress, Ralph Horr [Rep., Wash.] came from the national capital to address the delegates.

Representative Horr gave the delegates first hand news of conditions in the city of Washington.

"We have," he said, "a speakeasy within one block of the White House. Some have been found on government property. Wine bricks on sale at bargain prices are advertised with flaming banners within a few blocks of the President's mansion. Go into the homes. An afternoon tea in Washington, D. C., is in reality a cocktail party to which your wife and daughter and mine are invited.

Cowards in Legislatures.

"This law has made cowards of your legislators and executives. The Anti-Saloon league, through its powerful lobby, has driven the legislator against his will. Those religious racketeers Bishop Cannon Jr., Dr. Clarence True Wilson, Scott McBride and others are dragging the church down with them. Slowly but surely the church of God is being brought into disrepute by the efforts of such men.

"Chicago may think she is acquainted with racketeers, but Washington, D. C., can teach her a thing or two about religious racketeering. These gentlemen I have just mentioned know their racket and do not misjudge their power at the capitol."

Dr. Church Assails Hoover.

Dr. Samuel Harden Church, president of the Carnegie institute, Pittsburgh, came from that city to sign yesterday's new declaration of independence and to tell the delegates what he thought of Mr. Hoover. Here are phrases from his appraisal of the President:

"If the June convention nominates Mr. Hoover as a bone dry candidate on a bone dry platform the country will suffer four more years of crime, graft, drunkenness, and public shame.

"He permits these tyrannical laws to be operated though they cannot be enforced.

"He is sending 1,200 men and women to prison every week for prohibition offenses.

"He is calling for bigger and better prisons and more judges, so that he can increase the number of convictions.

"He is unable to see the fire for the smoke.

"He sees the foundations of our civilization being undermined and he persists in maintaining his blind attitude—without vision, without imagination, without the courage of a great soul.

Fault of the People.

"Once a president told our ancestors that if they were not completely happy and free the fault would be entirely their own. To be happy and free! That is the choice before us today. But we cannot make that choice under a successor of Washington who goes on talking about everything except the country's crucial peril and who ignores the paramount question of prohibition while the moral character of the nation is being destroyed." [Prolonged applause.]

The republican rebels were welcomed to Chicago by Bernard W. Snow, chairman of the Republican county central committee, who told them that this city was proud to welcome what he described as "a gathering of earnest, honest men meeting to clarify a social and economic question inseparably bound up with the future of their country."

TOURIST TRADE AVOIDS DRY U. S. SHIPS, SAY OCEAN LINE OWNERS

Washington, D. C., March 4.—[Special.]—The practice of running "cruises to nowhere" aboard palatial foreign owned ocean liners was attacked by American shipping interests today at a hearing before the senate commerce committee.

The committee is considering two bills introduced by Senator Wallace S. White [Rep., Me.], which would prohibit foreign companies from competing with American ships by operating cruises to such ports as Havana in the winter when the liners are not in trans-Atlantic service.

Franklin D. Mooney, president of the Atlantic, Gulf, and West Indies Steamship lines, told the committee the bill would "effectively stop and should stop the 'voyages to nowhere,' the vicious character of which is publicly known." He headed a large group of shipping men who protested that American vessels could not compete on even terms with foreign vessels equipped with bars and unhampered by dry laws.

David E. Grange, president of the Marine Cooks and Stewards union, declared foreign competition would throw many Americans out of work, then added:

Ask State Board to Revoke Licenses of Four Doctors

Revocation of the state licenses of four physicians was included in the recommendations made by a committee of five doctors to the state board of registration and education and announced yesterday by Assistant Attorney General Philip Ringer. In addition the committee recommended the suspension of the licenses of two doctors for a year and of two others for six months, as well as the suspension of the license of a physician appealing from a conviction of manslaughter.

The committee recommended the revocation of the licenses of Drs. Amante Rongetti, C. Judson Spruce, David Andrew Stevens, and William Loeser. Suspension of the licenses of Drs. Joseph T. Duffy and Maurice J. Rabbins for one year and the licenses of Drs. Ray H. McMahon and Ethel Marie Fikany for six months was recommended.

Twenty Days for Appeal.

Notices of the recommendations were mailed to the nine physicians yesterday, Mr. Ringer said, and they will have twenty days in which to appeal from the findings before director M. F. Walsh of the state board of registration and education. Mr. Walsh's action, after the appeals, will be final. The committee that made the recommendations is composed of Drs. M. L. Harris, chairman, Wilbur H. Gilmore, A. H. Geiger, Gilbert Fitzpatrick, all of Chicago, and Dr. John R. Neal of Springfield.

Suspension of the licenses of Drs. McMahon, Duffy, and Fikany, and revocation of the license of Dr. Spruce was recommended for "making false claims as to their skill and the efficacy of their medicine and for professional association with Lester Tilton, who is not a licensed practitioner." Tilton is an alleged cancer quack of Clinton, Ia.

Mr. Ringer explained the action against Dr. Rongetti, which is the second recommendation for revocation of his license, as being a new case upon which definite action can be taken, while the first action remains tied up by an injunction. Dr. Rongetti is in Leavenworth penitentiary, serving a sentence for violation of the Harrison narcotic act.

The revocation of Dr. Stevens' license was recommended because of his conviction in Los Angeles on a statutory charge. He is in San Quentin penitentiary, Mr. Ringer said. Suspension of Dr. Rabbins' license was asked because he is serving a sentence in Leavenworth for violation of the narcotic act. Dr. Rabbins was a veteran police surgeon.

Revocation of Dr. Loeser's license was recommended because of his conviction on a narcotic charge. He is in Leavenworth penitentiary, Mr. Ringer said.

Suspension of the license of Dr. Thomas J. Ney, who is appealing a conviction of manslaughter by abortion, was recommended pending the appeal. Previously revocation of his license was recommended, based on his conviction. If the appeal should be granted by the state Supreme court, however, the revocation of his license would be annulled under the recommendation, Mr. Ringer said.

BAY STATE WILL STICK BY SMITH, LEADER INSISTS

Cambridge, Mass., March. 4.—[Special.]—Frank J. Donahue, chairman of the Democratic state committee, today declared that not only would Massachusetts elect a 100 per cent Smith delegation to the national convention, but added the delegates would vote for the former governor until released by him.

"We will be for Smith from first to last," said Mr. Donahue, thereby disposing of the report circulated by some of the Roosevelt people in New York city that Massachusetts would only cast a complimentary vote or two for Mr. Smith and then switch to Roosevelt.

Mr. Donahue said that despite "overtures" from the Roosevelt forces which had been made, there would be a complete Smith slate. He did not know whether the Roosevelt people would enter their candidate's name in this state.

FARMERS OF U. S. EYE BRAZILIAN COFFEE BURNING

Experiment Is Tried to Control Surplus.

BY PAUL POTTER.

In line with the action of congress in reducing the federal holdings of 180 million bushels of wheat by authorizing a 40 million bushel distribution by the Red Cross, attention of American grain growers, who are asking for another measure which would enable the dumping of surplus wheat outside the national borders, has been turned to such a plan already operating in Brazilian coffee.

The federal farm board, according to Chairman J. C. Stone, sustains a loss on wheat held for stabilization purposes in excess of 102 million dollars. Carrying charges are adding an estimated 2½ millions monthly to this loss.

Plan to Destroy Coffee.

But in Brazil, where since 1902 the problem of overproduction of coffee has caused political upheavals, revolutions, and the threatened jeopardy of national credits, the National Coffee council announced plans for destroying 39 million dollars' worth of coffee by May 1. In addition the destruction of between 300 and 400 million coffee trees in the state of Sao Paulo is being financed by the government.

Fresh unroasted coffee [Santos] was selling in New York this week for 9 cents a pound. In September, 1929, it was selling for 22 cents. The difference has been made the prime factor in national and international schemes fostered by Brazilian growers to a point exceeding those in any other food commodity, by reason of coffee's being a fairly unperishable product.

Under a federal plan of centralizing all shipments of coffee in one selling agency, financed by an export tax, Brazil farmers found good prices for several years, beginning in 1924. Production rose between 1925 and 1930 from 15 to 29 million sacks of 132 pounds each. The coffee bill they collected from the United States alone in 1926 exceeded 721 million dollars.

Millions of Trees Planted.

Under the promise of government aid in keeping up prices, millions of young coffee trees were set out, to come into bearing in two to four years. By May of last year world production had mounted to a point where almost a year's consumption requirements were piled up in reserve.

And Brazil was carrying this load. The total accumulations of five previous years reached 22,586,000 sacks of coffee, of which over 21 million were stacked up in warehouses in Sao Paulo. Production in the six other principal growing countries had increased from 7 million to 8 million sacks annually in the same time.

A year ago Brazil called spokesmen of the other coffee exporting nations into conference. A proposal to arbitrarily reduce production was advanced by the Brazilians, similar to the Chadbourne plan adopted by sugar exporting countries. It was declined, and Brazil's politicians, who admitted they could not continue in office unless they satisfied the coffee industry, tackled the problem alone.

Trade Treaties Negotiated.

Trade treaties were negotiated with many importing nations to secure outlets for Brazil coffee. An export tax of 5 shillings per bag imposed on coffee was voted. On this a loan of 100 millions was secured in New York by the government, and the National Coffee council immediately began destroying 12 million sacks of coffee over the period of a year.

Great stacks of coffee were piled up near warehouses and in public squares, soaked with kerosene and ignited. Only the fine grades of coffee held as security for loans were retained.

As growers rejoiced in the conflagrations, city folk objected to the odors and the poor tried to reclaim enough for their needs. So the council loaded up ships with 594,000 sacks (last June) and dumped them into the ocean 17 miles out. Other supplies were pressed into bricks and used as fuel in locomotives.

Burning Spurs Growers.

The burning has continued throughout the winter, in spite of objections, as the export tax raised more money to destroy surpluses. But the more they burned and dumped, the more the growers fertilized their trees and pressed them into early, heavy production.

In the seven states of Brazil a crop of 24 million sacks has just been harvested. As this is 6 million bags more than last year's exports and 10 million more than Brazil sold in 1929, the government must finance and destroy about 15 million bags this year. On top of this burdensome "forced situation" the growers will be compelled by law to kill between 300 and 400 million trees, receiving a small bounty.

Brazil Tries Bartering.

The economic story of Brazil's coffee deals includes many attempts to "barter." Last year the farm board exchanged 25 million bushels of its stabilization wheat for 1,050,000 bags of Brazil coffee. American millers declared this shut off private markets for flour, while coffee roasters asked assurance that their trade not be interfered with in any more such deals.

Since Brazil has negotiated for purchase of 11 Italian airplanes and Russian wheat in exchange for coffee, but protests became so vehement that the South American country recently announced it would discontinue the bartering entirely.

MANHATTAN VOTES DRY 2 TO 1, BUT IT'S KANSAS, NOT NEW YORK

New York, March 4.—[Special.]—Only Manhattan, a town in arid Kansas, voted in favor of continuance of prohibition in the first returns from ten additional cities in the Literary Digest poll, the tabulation of which was announced today. The total votes from the ten communities were overwhelmingly in favor of repeal, by 29,383 to 8,543. The figures follow:

City—	Dry.	Wet.
Aurora, Ill.	471	1,653
Fort Wayne, Ind.	700	4,508

JURY PROPOSES A MACHINE GUN GUARD AT JAIL

Would Ban Sunday Visits to Curb Escapes.

A machine gun cage in the lobby of the county jail to block future attempts at escape was suggested by the February grand jury in its report yesterday. The jury submitted the report and was adjourned before Judge George Fred Rush, acting chief justice of the Criminal court.

Action on the jury's recommendation lies within the province of the county board, which can, if it so desires, appropriate money for the cage, the machine gun, and the guards to man it.

Members of the jury said that their suggestion followed an investigation into the escape on Jan. 31 of Cornelius Russell, alias Montague, who switched places with his brother, Stanley, and walked out of the jail. Russell was held on kidnaping charges.

The grand jury revealed for the first time that before Russell's escape he had received visitors at the jail for thirteen successive days. Half of the visitors were admitted on special passes issued by the sheriff's office, according to the jury's report.

Another recommendation of the jury was that no visitors be allowed at the jail on Sundays and holidays. Russell made his escape on a Sunday, which is Warden David Moneypenny's day off, and the day on which the jail is run by George Gibson, assistant warden.

In conclusion, the jury urged that "the greatest care be exercised by both the sheriff's office and the jail attachés to prevent further escapes." The investigation into the Russell escape should be continued by the March grand jury, the report said.

Two Films Get Critic's Praise in Today's Review

Two Much Grief Is Only Fault in One.

"AFTER TOMORROW."
Produced by Fox.
Directed by Frank Borzage.
Presented at the Oriental theater.

THE CAST.

Peter Piper	Charles Farrell
Sidney Taylor	Marian Nixon
Elsie Taylor	Minna Gombell
Willie Taylor	William Collier Sr.
Mrs. Piper	Mrs. Josephine Hull
Malcolm Jarvis	William Pawley
Beardsley	Ferdinand Munier
Florence Biandy	Nora Lane
Betty	Greta Granstedt

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

This is an exceedingly interesting and well-acted little picture that has just one drawback—too much grief.

The vicissitudes and disappointments of the engaged couple who are its hero and heroine are believable and touching up to a certain point. Then the observer becomes conscious of stirrings of impatience. After all, thinks he, this is just TOO much! No use laying it on with a trowel . . .!

But this oversupply of blighted hopes is the only fly in the ointment. Otherwise "After Tomorrow" qualifies as a mighty human and well-presented photoplay.

The film has a "Street Scene-y" flavor. You are taken into a third rate apartment house neighborhood and given Peeping Tom privileges of peering into the lives of some of its residents. You become very fond of Peter and Sidney, who have been betrothed for years, but whose plans for marriage are forever dashing themselves on rocks.

Sidney has a kindly, understanding and unsuccessful father and a pretty, discontented and, finally, faithless mother. Peter is the only son of a widow—one of those fat, saccharine, jealous, weeping women who clutter up the earth.

These parents are, in the main, responsible for the prolonged unhappiness of their respective offspring. Such dear, good-looking, filial youngsters, too! You'd think they'd have a heart. [Father Taylor has, but, as Mrs. T. would say, Who does he think he is, anyway, the sap!]

The yarn is nicely worked out and the playing is all excellent. Marian Nixon and Charles Farrell make an appealing team. William Collier Sr. gives one of his reliable characterizations as Father Taylor, while many's the woman you meet on bus, street car and State street who registers the sort of impatient dissatisfaction and longing for the forbidden that makes Mrs. Taylor's comely face hard and repellent. As for Mother Piper—well, there's one elegant piece of work by Josephine Hull! Where in the world has THIS asset been hiding?

"A HOUSE DIVIDED."
Produced by Universal.
Directed by William Wyler.
Presented at the Palace theater.

THE CAST.

Seth Law	Walter Huston
Matt Law	Kent Douglass
Ruth Evans	Helen Chandler
Bess	Vivian Oakland
Mann	Frank Hagney

The story of this one is reminiscent of the program thrillers of "silent" days, but the picture is not to be dismissed lightly, for it is full of acting fine enough to slap the sneer from any critic's lips.

A fishing village on a rock-hemmed eastern coast furnishes the locale. Here lives Seth Law, a stern, stubborn and mighty fisherman who, when the picture opens, is just burying his wife. Stolid and gleaming-eyed he stands as the coffin is lowered to its resting place and the minister says the final words over the grave. Then, grasping by the arm the sorrow-bowed youth who is his son Matt, he hurries him to a saloon and dance hall where he proceeds to drown memory in whisky and fighting, and attempts to force the boy to drink, dance—"be a man." But in horror and disgust the latter runs away.

Time goes on, and, finding difficulty in keeping a housekeeper, Seth consults the catalogue of a mail order marriage agency. The husky woman he sends for doesn't come, but in her place appears a wistful, slim blond girl—to marry him and fall in love with Matt. . . .

See the film for further details. From here on the picture resolves itself into melodrama rendered intensely exciting and suspenseful because of the meritorious acting.

Walter Huston as Seth looks and performs differently than you have ever before seen him. Great characterization—but, then, great characterizations are a matter of course with this brilliant and conscientious player. Kent Douglass—O, why wasn't he Paul in "Broken Lullaby!"—gives another of his sensitive portrayals as poor Matt who hates the fishing village, the fisherand his father, and who yearns to get away some place where he can farm the good earth.

Direction is of the first water and so is the photography. Scenery and sets are splendid.

Best Makeup Requires Time for Its Careful Application

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

When you figure the amount of money that goes into facial creams and makeup, annually, you realize that the general application of all this cosmetic stuff does not show the pictorial return it should.

The reason unquestionably is that it is put on with too much hurry, with too little deliberation about the effect.

Some day when you have an hour off duty suppose you try out one good makeup application. Be unhurried, deliberate. Take cleansing the face as the first step. Use your cleansing cream and apply it over the entire surface of the neck, face and forehead in light, upward strokes. Wipe this off thoroughly and then with a good face soap wash your face in warm water. Rinse in warm water, then in cold.

Now, put on a faint film of cream as a foundation for the rouge. Then apply your rouge and lipstick coloring. Try the cream rouge and use it on both lips and cheeks. Study that face of yours a bit carefully, experiment with the rouge to find out on what spot or area of the cheek you may put it with the most flattering effect—under the cheekbones, over the cheekbones or keeping it away from the cheekbones entirely. Try even no rouge and see if perhaps you look better with only lip and eye coloring.

When the rouging is done use your large, clean puff or your cotton square, if that is what you like better. Anyway, apply the powder generously, working from the base of the neck up. Pat it gently on the skin. Whisk away with a small camel's hair brush the surplus powder. Then do your lips carefully, painting them in as evenly and as natural looking as to line as possible. Lastly comes your eye makeup, if you indulge.

The thing you will gather out of the slower motion process is that it pays to make a little rite of making up. It's a different girl you'll see in that mirror of yours from the one who gives her face a hurried cleansing cream application and a quick dab at cheek and lip.

Knowing what a difference is made, you will gradually acquire speed and you won't have to take an hour off. And you'll get better returns for your makeup expenditures.

Women Will Plan 1933 Fair Program at Meeting Today

Mrs. Harvey Fox, president of the Chicago Woman's club, will direct a meeting this morning of the Century of Progress committee of that organization, in conference with Miss Lena Madesin Phillips of New York, head of the National Council of Women, who arrives here today. The national council, a federation of various women's organizations, will sponsor an international congress of famous women at the 1933 World's Fair.

Miss Phillips, who is in Chicago to secure local cooperation in getting a million signatures on a petition to be sent to foreign countries requesting them to send women of distinction to the exposition, will be honored with a tea Sunday afternoon at the Palmer house. Among the club presidents expected to attend are Mrs. Murry Nelson of the Woman's City club; Mrs. E. Pearl Warwick, state head of the Business and Professional Women's clubs; Dr. Mollie Ray Carroll of the University of Chicago settlement; Mrs. George V. McIntyre of the Big Sisters; Mrs. Dallas Phemister of the Needlework Guild of America, and Mrs. Charles Clark of the club president and program chairmen.

New Fashions Don't Stop with Weather Talk

Umbrellas Do Something About It.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SONG writers, play writers, wits and half-wits have waded around in the rain, and despite their united efforts to do something dry and different they are still all wet, and the only man who really has accomplished anything helpful is the gentleman who invented the umbrella. What a good sport he was, even though a lot of water seems to have washed away his name . . . wonder what his first model looked like, probably no more than four spokes or ribs borrowed from some defunct dinosaur with a covering from some obliging palm tree leaf.

One rainy season after another brought forth newer models, with new gadgets and tricky ways of quick openings, till the world at large sloshed about with weird old things of lugubrious black cloth, that grew greener and rustier with each shower bath . . . then Indian punjabs and rajahs and satraps imported them for state occasions, and grew so fond of them that they carried them about, rain or shine.

The time came when umbrellas were long of handle, clumsy, but withal a good handy prodder in moments of stress or subway jabs . . . the models changed again, and during the m.uve decade, these models also changed owners and were evidently so attractive that the lenders seldom saw them again.

As Interesting as Auto Show.

But now in the year 1932 the new umbrellas are as interesting as any automobile show . . . their chassis are as engaging as any auto body ad . . . their styles as varied as all good paint jobs as advertised. Umbrella makers have gone in for interior decorations . . . the ribs of the newest models are a contrasting color . . . one of the swankiest black and white silk tops is stretched over white ribs . . . you can buy blue with silver ribs, brown silk over gold metal ribs and other color combinations that will captivate even the most utilitarian soul. Somebody with an early American period complex uses pewter handles and pewter ribs with any color of silk you think you need.

But only a woman could have planned a pearl-d umbrella . . . a model of dark blue plain silk has ribs of gray with a tiny gunmetal pearl fastened on the end of each rib . . . the handle is a huge round gunmetal pearl, and a smaller pearl of the same color covers the lower end of the handle. Umbrellas are not growing very long this year, twenty-one inches seems to be the fashionable limit . . . but what they lack in length they surely make up with chic and color and protective coverings.

Put Thurston to Shame.

Traveling about with an umbrella now-a-days is like being an understudy to some celebrated conjurer . . . even Thurston with all his legerdemain couldn't possibly produce from a very small package, no longer than seven inches and not any wider than two, any smarter umbrella than you yourself can unfold, if you buy a good looking green model that is folded and then refolded into a green leather strait-jacket, and the smallest space in your traveling bag will hold it. When properly pushed up and around it assumes the same practical dimensions of those umbrellas that haven't any traveling tricks.

Handles are not hackneyed . . . you can be doggy with a dog's head that waggishly sticks out a bright red tongue, when pressed to do so . . . you can find gayly colored crystal handles that curve persuasively around your arm . . . and hooks and rings and other equally helpful ornamental holders that will distinguish your own property wherever you park it.

American's Opera Wins Another German Success

MUENSTER, Germany, March 4.—(AP)—Richard Hageman's opera "Capponsacchi" duplicated the sensational success achieved Feb. 18 at Freiburg when it was produced tonight before a packed house at the Stadt theater. The American composer was given a score of curtain calls at the conclusion. Harry Schurmann, tenor, formerly of Massachusetts, sang the lead. "Capponsacchi" was installed in the repertory at Freiburg.

Character Is Displayed Early in Life

Children Often Surprise Even Parents.

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

They sat opposite me in the subway, the other day—a mother and two little girls. The younger was probably 5 or 6 and she had a little bag of candy from which she was cozily taking a piece every now and then.

Pretty soon her mother glanced down and I heard her say, "Where is your bay of candy—all gone?"

"No, mother, of course not," she answered. "I didn't want to eat it all up now so I put it in my pocket where I couldnt see it so I wouldn't keep taking a piece every minute."

There's character for you. Of course, if you wanted to pick flaws you might say that it would have shown stronger character if she had just held the bag of candy in her hand and not touched it. Perhaps so. But even that might bear arguing. After all, the small girl knew herself well enough to know how to get results. It took decision to put the bag away out of sight. It required another kind of decisivenss to forget that it was there. Such things are interesting to see, aren't they?

One couldn't help wondering how much of that was inherent character, which sometimes shows itself like the rock ribs of the earth in children—which makes itself so strongly manifest and scarcely seems to need nurturing. And how much of it was an intelligent fostering by the parents of certain traits, so that the little girl was well on the way to a knowledge of how to handle herself.

Look at your children with seeing eyes. It is interesting and worth while. You will see a lot and be able to help very much.

Campus Star

Urbana, Ill., March 4.—[Special.]—Miss Dorsey Connors, 162 East Ohio street, Chicago, and J. J. Luneburg, 1010 East 43d street, Chicago, have the leading rôles in Mask and Bauble, dramatic society, production, "See Naples and Die," to be staged on the University of Illinois campus March 11 and 12.

Lee Portrait Taken in War to Be Returned

Concord, N. H., March 4.—(AP)—An oil painting portrait of Mildred Childe Lee, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, leader of the confederate army, cut from its frame in the Lee mansion at Arlington, Va., during a Union raid, was restored to the government today.

The portrait of the girl, made when she was 17 years old, will be returned to its southern home, now called Arlington Mansion, and the property of the federal government.

James A. Learned of the First Massachusetts artillery, one of the federal soldiers in the raid, had climbed upon a spinet in the Lee home and cut the picture from its frame. He rolled it up, hid it beneath his army overcoat, and then gave it to his colonel for safekeeping during the remainder of the war.

When he was discharged from the army he reclaimed the portrait. For many years it had hung in the home of Mrs. Walter E. Skilton of Concord, daughter of Learned.

Recently Mrs. Skilton learned that congress had appropriated funds to restore the Lee mansion and communicated with the government. Today Lieut. Col. Frank Edwin Davis, of quartermaster corps in the First corps area, called at the Skilton home and was given the painting for the war department by Mrs. Skilton.

High Heeled Shoes Held Chief Cause of Foot Troubles

High heeled shoes were blamed last night as the greatest single origin of feminine foot trouble. This pronouncement was issued by Drs. Harry Klink, Maurice Udell, and Emanuel Demeur, executives of the Illinois Chiropodists' association, which meets at the Hotel Sherman tomorrow.

However, the executives inserted a reservation in their belief. High heeled shoes may be worn with perfect safety, they said, pro.ided the shoes are perfectly fitted, with ample room for the toes, and firm ankle supports. They added, though, that such shoes should be worn only for dress.

More than 1,000 foot specialists are expected to attend tomorrow's session. At the pedic research clinic, foot surgeons will treat without charge any unemployed persons requiring foot treatments, it was announced.

Arts Club to Enjoy Delightful Musical Program Tomorrow

Eva Gauthier Will Sing; Many Reservations Made for Buffet Supper.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE ARTS CLUB is to have another of its delightful Sunday evening affairs tomorrow night when Eva Gauthier, soprano, will give a program at 8:30 o'clock. Before the program, at 7 o'clock, there is to be a buffet supper and among those who have made reservations to entertain guests are Miss Rue Winterbotham and her fiancé, Alfred P. Shaw, Miss Winterbotham's brother-in-law and sister, the Shreve C. Badgers, the Walter S. Brewsters and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Hodges, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Frederick B. Tuttle, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fisher [Ruth Page], who will have among their guests Harold Kreutzberg, Miss Nellie Carpenter, David Hamilton, Arthur Meeker Jr., Thomas Furness, Mrs. Pauline Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs, and Miss Emily Larned.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, whose house guest Mme. Gauthier is for the week-end, will entertain at dinner at their residence, 209 Lake Shore drive, for Mme. Gauthier before the recital, and today Mrs. Swift is giving a luncheon at her apartment for Mme. Gauthier and Mme. Florence Austral, the English soprano.

Artists Help Make Tea Success.

Probably the tea party at the Arts club yesterday would have been a success without them, but I am sure the presence of the artists whose exhibitions were being opened had something to do with making the party the great success it was, from every point of view.

And, of course, the fact that the artists were two young and very attractive men did not detract any from the way the women felt about the party! Mrs. Potter Palmer and Miss Alice Roullier, who were a sort of informal reception committee, were kept busy introducing Isamu Noguchi, whose drawings were in the large gallery and whose sculpture was in the sculpture hall, and H. E. Schnakenberg, whose paintings were hanging in the small gallery.

Some of those at the party were Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, wearing a new and very smart pancake beret of brown straw with a brown gown and coat, Miss Rue Winterbotham, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic C. Bartlett Jr., Miss Marie Rozet, Miss Elinor Farwell, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, Mrs. William H. Hubbard, Mrs. William S. Ennis, Mrs. Lobdell Atwater and her mother, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell.

The tea table was stunning with white wicker baskets of calla lilies and laurel at both ends and a crystal candelabrum in the center. An innovation—and a good one, I should say—was the placing of small tables at the sides on which platters of sandwiches and cakes were put so that the center table, from which the tea and coffee were served, was not constantly surrounded by people trying to get a sandwich or cookie.

Honor Girl Scout Officials.

A few blocks south on Michigan avenue another delightful tea was given yesterday, at the Woman's City club, for Mrs. Walter Cavanaugh, regional director of the Girl Scouts, and Miss Alice Conway, community organizer of the same organization. Mrs. Murry Nelson received and introduced Mrs. Cavanaugh and Miss Conway, both of whom made very interesting talks about the expansion and development of the Girl Scouts during the last twenty years.

The Girl Scouts are celebrating their birthday this month, you know, having been started in this country just twenty years ago by Miss Juliette Lowe of Savannah, Ga., whose grandmother was a Chicago pioneer. Miss Conway spoke particularly of the need at this time for giving girls the proper recreation, simple, natural things, to take the place of the commercial amusements which are not so much in the foreground—fortunately, the Girl Scouts officials think—just now, and to postpone sophistication in our American girls.

Mrs. Cavanaugh, who lives in Kenosha, told something of the organization of the Girl Scouts and of its spread—did you know that there were 280,000 Girl Scouts in 29 countries of the world?

Pouring at the tea tables, which were gay and springlike with bowls of lavender sweet peas and yellow daffodils and yellow candles in silver candelabra, were Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr., Mrs. William S. Monroe, and Mrs. Hal Crompton Bangs.

English Union Delays Luncheon.

Because of the current flu epidemic and the absence of many of its members on winter vacations, the English Speaking union has postponed the luncheon it was to have given today for Dr. Jacob Viner until the last week of this month.

The supper that the Chicago Drama league had planned to give for Dr. Allen D. Albert tomorrow evening at the Blackstone has been indefinitely postponed.

The American Opera society will hold a musicale and tea tomorrow afternoon at the Three Arts club. Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. Bowman Lingle, Mrs. Gerhardt Meyne and Mrs. Americus F. Callahan will pour.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Nitze of 1220 East 55th street are giving a luncheon tomorrow for M. Weiller, the new French consul, and Mme. Weiller.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Charles Stepan of 3000 Sheridan road are giving a tea tomorrow afternoon for Miss Suzanne Russell, the fiancée of their son, Charles Edward Stepan.

Mrs. Waller Borden and Mrs. Walter B. Wolf will give the second of a series of buffet luncheons Wednesday at the Arts club in the interest of Representative Robert M. Woodward's campaign.

News of Late Winter Travelers.

Mr. and Mrs. William R. Odell Jr. of Lake Forest are away on a cruise to Havana. The senior Odells have been at the Lake Shore Drive hotel for the winter and probably will reopen their Lake Forest residence soon.

Mrs. Howard Linn is expected to arrive at home today from a round of visits in the east and the southeast.

Mr. and Mrs. Hayden B. Harris and Mrs. Townsend McKeever will return tomorrow from a trip to Mexico City and New Orleans.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert H. Wetten of 209 Lake Shore drive left yesterday to spend the week-end in New York. Their daughter, Miss Mildred Wetten, and Mrs. Bennett Harvey will return the middle of March from Chandler, Ariz.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. McLennan of Lake Forest are planning to spend the Easter season at the Virginia Hot Springs, which always is a popular resort at that time of year, especially with parents whose children are at school in the east and have not a long enough Easter vacation to come to Chicago. Katherine McLennan is at Dobbs Ferry.

Mrs. C. W. Lobdell Returns Home.

Mrs. Charles W. Lobdell of Hubbard Woods and her small sons have returned from a month's visit in New Orleans. They enjoyed the Mardi Gras season and it brought back memories, no doubt, to Mrs. Lobdell of the time when, as Ruth Bush, she was the queen of the carnival. Mr. Lobdell was with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell of 2716 Prairie avenue, while his wife and children were away. Mrs. Charles Lobdell is expecting her mother, Mrs. Reuben G. Bush of New Orleans, for a visit later in the spring.

Mrs. Sherwood Platt of Evanston, who worked industriously in the Junior League Theater for Children this winter and also in amateur dramatics at the Country Club of Evanston later, has left for an eastern motor trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Buck of Hubbard Woods are not taking their customary cruise this winter but instead have gone to Florida. On their way home about April 1 they will stop in Sewanee, Tenn., for a visit with Mrs. Buck's sister, Mrs. Roland Hale, at the old Kirby-Smith place, Powhatan hall.

A. of C. Will Honor Business Women at Luncheon Program

As its gallant gesture toward official recognition of business women's week, which will be celebrated nationally next week, the Chicago Association of Commerce has determined to turn over to the Alliance of Business and Professional Women the conduct of its regular noon luncheon on Wednesday. Brief addresses will be made by Judge Mary Bartelme on boys as future citizens, by Mrs. Mabel C. Reinecke on women in politics, by Mrs. Ora H. Snyder on women in business and by Miss Jessamine Hoagland on welfare work among unemployed women under auspices of the Federated Council of Business and Professional Women, of which she is head. Miss Elizabeth Eckert, president of the alliance, will preside at the luncheon, which will be held in the Hotel La Salle.

Expect Dispute Over Exhibit of Isamu Noguchi

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

There are two exhibitions of interest which have just opened, the one of paintings by the late Alfred Jansson at the Midland club and the other of brush drawings and sculpture by Isamu Noguchi, and water colors and oils by H. E. Schnakenberg at the Arts club. The Arts club exhibits opened yesterday. They are, as is usual with this club's exhibitions, controversial in character. One can discuss them merrily and at length and after the discussion feel much refreshed, notwithstanding the fact that the show remains the same.

Noguchi has been favorably received in New York where, at the present moment, an exhibition of his work is still running. That accounts for the slimness of the Chicago representation. His brush drawings are extravagant in size but slim in content. The most charming is that of a suckling babe, portrayed without his mother. The finest is of a Japanese savant. The rest concern themselves with wrestlers and acrobats chiefly, although a Japanese girl is introduced as well as a group of mother and child. Now and again the drawings are consciously crude. Nor does there seem any real reason for portraying heads too round, too square, too little, or in some other way abnormal.

Noguchi's sculpture is in line with his drawings. His heads of his uncle, of Murdock Pemberton, and of Orozco are the best of the exhibit. They are a forceful note to reckon with before stepping into the smaller gallery, where hang the paintings by Schnakenberg. Of these the water colors are the most brilliant. The portrait of John Eliot is a fine piece of painting. "Flowers for Vincent" is obviously a tribute to Van Gogh, being in his exact manner. The "Cat and Kittens" is grewsome. The "Glass of Wine" is á la Braque. "The Mill Pond" is a page of realism, the clouds a little stiff, but the water excellent.

The Alfred Jansson landscapes at the Midland club are very beautiful. Winter, spring, and summer are his themes. The snow paintings are particularly lovely. The exhibit will continue to March 20 and is well worth seeing.

CALL FOR ACTION BY ASSEMBLY ON BARGE DEPOT BILL

Needed in Waterway Plan, Aldermen Told.

The Chicago Regional Port commission yesterday warned a council subcommittee that unless the special session of the legislature takes action Chicago will find itself without a barge terminal within the city limits when the Illinois waterway system is opened next year.

E. N. ANTRIM.

"E. M. Antrim, representing the commission, gave the subcommittee on harbors, wharves, and bridges a memorandum embodying a detailed analysis of Senate Bill 26, which provides for improvement of such a terminal. The site consists of 21 acres of land at South Damen avenue and the river, just above the point where the sanitary district canal leaves the river.

The land was turned over to the state by the Santa Fe and Illinois Central railroads in 1928. In exchange, the state waived its claims to a strip of land nearby, bordering the old Illinois and Michigan canal, and adjoining the railroad right of way.

Property Is Improved.

The land given the state is improved with deep water slips, docks, railroad sidings, a covered transfer platform and a modern concrete grain elevator with a capacity of 1,000,000 bushels. In addition, the railroads agreed to pay $200,000 for further improvement of the area, but the attorney general has held that legislative authority is necessary for the expenditure of this sum.

Expenditure of $200,000 will not cover all of the improvements ultimately needed at the terminal, but it will provide facilities which will suffice for some years, Mr. Antrim's memorandum stated. The executive committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce also adopted a resolution yesterday urging the passage of the bill, which was introduced by Sen. Arthur A. Huebsch of Brookfield.

Col. Clark C. Wren, general counsel for the Inland Waterways corporation, who was appearing before the subcommittee on another matter, recommended the terminal site as the best possible one within the city.

Aldermen Question Engineer.

Maj. Rufus W. Putnam, engineer for the port commission, was asked by the alderman if the traffic of lake steamers through the river to the terminal would not increase to such an extent as to constitute a serious interruption of street traffic through bridge openings.

"When that time comes," Maj. Putnam said, "the city, at a very modest expense, can construct a breakwater which will permit the exchange of freight between barges and steamers at Navy pier. The barges would be able to pass the bridges when closed."

N. U. STUDENTS FLEE FROM FIRE IN SWIFT HALL

More than 100 Northwestern university students fled yesterday when a fire burst through the roof of the Swift hall of engineering, on the Evanston campus at Garrett place and the lake.

Evanston firemen extinguished the flames after damage of about $10,000 to $15,000 had been done to the $400,000 four story stone structure, which was built in 1907. Lieut. Samuel McKimmons on Engine company No. 3 was injured when a portion of the roof, under which he was working, collapsed. He was taken to the Evanston hospital.

Prof. William C. Bauer, dean of the engineering school, expressed a belief that the fire, which started about 4 p. m., was caused by a defective motor on an elevator. Several hundred university students watched the firemen make their fight.

LESLIE M. SHAW CRITICALLY ILL IN WASHINGTON

Washington, D. C., March 4.—(AP)—Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury under President Roosevelt, is critically ill with pneumonia at the Wardman Park hotel.

His daughter, Mrs. John McMillin of New York, said today bronchial complications seemed to be making him "sink very rapidly." Mrs. Shaw is with him.

Shaw, a native of Denison, Ia., is 83. After leaving the cabinet he entered the banking business, from which he retired several years ago. He and Mrs. Shaw have made their home in Washington for the last ten years.

Polish Lancer Writes of His Thrills in War

Boleslavski, Now Film Director, Is Author.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

RICHARD BOLESLAVSKI is known as a man of the theater. He began as an actor in the Moscow Art theater. Later he became a director of the Moscow Art Theater No. 2. After the war he directed and acted in many plays and films in Warsaw — for the Polish State theater — and in Berlin and in Vienna. He had a season in New York with his Moscow Art theater, he helped with Reinhardt's "The Miracle" and he directed the American Laboratory theater. He is now a film director in Hollywood. If Boleslavski had written a volume of reminiscences dealing with the theater it would undoubtedly have been a volume filled with intellectual excitement.

RICHARD BOLESLAVSKI.

But for a few years in his life events in no sense intellectually exciting happened to him. He was face to face with stark reality, not as it is portrayed on the stage but as it is actually lived with death lashing at his heels and life tensed to barely endurable passion. Those few years were the years of the war. He was a lieutenant in the Polish Lancers, who were allies of the Russians fighting the Germans and the Austrians, because the Russians had promised Poland freedom if the Allies won. The Poles often fought their own brothers who had been drafted into the service of the central powers because they had emigrated to Germany or Austria. The Poles had no special feeling of loyalty to the Russians, he makes clear. They were a group without a country, passionately eager to have a country of their own, restored to them.

But "Way of the Lancer," is not a record of the political passions of a group of men. It is a volume of excitement recounted by one who lived through it [though many times it looked as if he never could survive]. It is the story of the last days of the fighting with the Russians, and of the rise of the Red army who became their enemies as they had previously been their allies. The Polish lancers [except in two or three individual cases], did not accept sovietism, the author says, and the saga which he narrates is the record of the diminishing strength and final annihilation of the Lancers.

The author is undoubtedly what is known as "a born story teller." His story telling is famous. It was because his stories made such an impression on a group at a party in Hollywood that the book came to be. Helen Woodward, author of "Through Many Windows," and the wife of W. E. Woodward, author of "Meet General Grant," etc., saw in the stories in which the world at large would be delighted, and she persuaded him to set them down, with her help.

The narrative is continuous in the sense that it chronicles the main events of the years which the author pictures with such thrills, but it is really composed of separate, vivid events, a rosary of thrill, told each bead apart, as the song has it. Each hour receives its full due of thrilling memory as he "tells each one apart."

The author is obviously "agin" the soviet régime. He thinks order Number One was a crime against civilization. He tells of hearing both Kerensky and Trotsky talk to the soldiers. "I hated everything Trotsky was trying to say. And with all my heart I wanted Kerensky to be right."

But it is not Boleslavski's political picture of the soviet rise which interests readers, but the sheer excitement of the tales which he tells—not unusual tales of war, perhaps, but told with a certain broadness of gesture and speech, a certain jauntiness that makes one echo the author's own words at the brave rebellion of one of the officers of the Lancers.

"Way of the Lancer," is the March choice of the Literary Guild of America. And yesterday, to celebrate, the Guild and the Bobbs Merrill company [its two publishers] gave a coming-out-party for the book in honor of the author and his collaborator.

Doctor Tells Women How to Be Natural

Hunts Happiness Lost by Introspection.

BY JOHN ERSKINE.

"The Art of Being a Woman," by Olga Knopf. [Little-Brown.]

THIS book is compounded of scientific knowledge, experience, and common sense. We do not often find more wisdom to the page, and many readers will agree that here is the best advice men and women are likely to find on the difficult art of getting on with each other. For, of course, everything Dr. Knopf says about women is equally interesting to man, who causes at least half of woman's problems.

Dr. Knopf, a trained physician, writes for the large majority of us who have read Freud, who are saturated with the improvised psychologies of certain modern novelists, who know so much about the mechanism of our bodies that even our most romantic moments have a clinical twist, and who are so well up on anthropology that we can name over all the points in which, for historical reasons, women have the worst or the best of it. Dr. Knopf apparently—and no doubt with justice—imagines that modern women are so encumbered with theories that they cannot enjoy a proper relation to the other sex nor to other women. The young girl nowadays follows two policies at once, and ties herself into a bad knot. She clamors for equality with men without clearly defining the term, she exercises more and more political and economic rights, but no less than her remote female ancestors she lets loose upon man, at proper times, an irresistible appeal to his chivalry and to his protective instincts. If two women argue with each other whether they should enjoy political rights, the question for them is only by which method they can exert a greater power over their men.

I do not discern in Dr. Knopf's book any solicitude for the men, nor any desire to rescue them from the women. She wishes only to restore women to a happier way of life. "Restore" is the proper word, for the art of being a woman, as Dr. Knopf sees it, is merely an intelligent acceptance of the truths which women once accepted instinctively. There is, says Dr. Knopf, less difference between the sexes than we have taught ourselves to think. Certainly a physiological difference, but this has been exaggerated, and much of it in older times was accidental, the result of economic conditions or of education. A woman has certain aptitudes which are superior to the average man's, but some men also have the instinctive gift which we usually call feminine. Dr. Knopf thinks we should waste no time in explaining these differences or parallels, but should start promptly with the assumption that men and women are human beings and pretty much alike.

It is true that women in the past have not been in certain fields creative. Not in art, for example, nor science. But if only a few women have been great poets, or painters, or scientists, the statistics are of little significance. Creative work in art or science calls for immense energy of which women have as large a share as men, but they usually squander it in fighting against artificial obstacles, against the obstacles which society has set up in a false code of feminine conduct, or against the obstacles which they set up for themselves, conceding too easily their own inferiority.

The equality which men and women should seek has very little to do with the legal rights. The point is clear if we make it of men alone, omitting for the moment all reference to women. Equal property rights, or equal rights in the franchise, are no doubt advantageous, but they have little to do with real equality. One man may feel inferior to his neighbor, though both have the same income and though both have the vote. The happiness of women as women, therefore, will come when they are making a contribution to the world equal to that of the men, and when they are conscious of making this contribution.

Recall Early Rejection of Popular Work.

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON, March 4.—[Special.]—A new novel by Charles Morgan, whose "Portrait in a Mirror" had such a success in England two or three years ago, is shortly to be published. It is called "The Fountain!" "Portrait in a Mirror," which I did not read, had an unusual history. It was not Mr. Morgan's first novel; but when it was first shown to his publishers the book was considered a disappointment after the excellence of its predecessor. Mr. Morgan was urged to withhold it from publication. This he refused to do. The MS. was taken to another publisher, was instantly accepted, and the book, as soon as it was published, was generally acclaimed by critics and public alike. It was regarded as the outstanding novel of the season.

HILDA VAUGHAN.

Such an experience does not often befall an author of Mr. Morgan's quality and position. He is the dramatic critic of the London Times, and his previous novel, "My Name Is Legion," had attracted much attention. The success, therefore, of "Portrait in a Mirror" was to be expected, unless that book proved to be without merit. In view of what followed its publication, it can only be supposed that the original publisher was at fault; but all who have ever "read" for publishers know how extraordinarily difficult it is to judge a book in advance. Everybody will hope that "The Fountain" will have a success equal to that of "Portrait in a Mirror," and that it will establish Mr. Morgan's reputation finally.

Mr. Morgan's wife, known to readers by her maiden name of Hilda Vaughan, is also a novelist of parts. And she, too, is represented in the spring publishing lists. Her new book is called "The Soldier and the Gentlewoman." In this, as in former books, Miss Vaughan sets the scene in her native land of Wales, and the story is described as a very powerful one. Both the Morgans are fastidious writers, who do not haunt the publishers' announcements with hasty products; and this fact makes the news of a new book from each of them especially interesting. Among English husbands and wives who write books they must take a high place.

Indeed, they have few rivals, for the only pair I immediately recall who write novels of high quality are Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Muir. But of course there are other literary husbands and wives of great distinction. For example, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lynd.

Europe's Hidden Wars Within Social Order Are Revealed Here

One of the most vivid indictments of European conditions of today is called "The Terror in Europe" by H. Hessell Tiltman [Stokes].

This book is a well documented exposé of the Matteoti murder, the persecution of Amerdola, and Italy's Siberia where the avowed opponents of Fascism are confined. The author also reveals the intellectual restrictions imposed by the Mussolini régime. He likewise describes the conditions under which the enforced labor camps are run in northern Russia.

Politics Learns to Reckon with Women Chiefs

Ward Leaders Get Lesson in Evanston.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

A GOOD old time politician with a derby and a stogy and a handful of specimen ballots may know the "ins and outs" of the election game, but what is his influence when a pretty society matron is working on the corner opposite? This is one of the problems candidates for office in Evanston have been called upon to consider in recent years as women of the north shore suburb have shown an increased interest in the whole subject of government and politics.

This year is no exception.

As the annual spring political pot begins to boil, Evanstonians seeking election are bidding for the support of this important group of voters, while the women are dropping no hints of their sympathies but discussing the qualifications of the candidates long and seriously.

One of the most influential groups in a political way is the Women's Republican club of Evanston which Mrs. Nelson Wilcox, the president, explained yesterday, is really nonpartisan, although it bears the tag of one party. There are several hundred workers, and women's political groups from all over the county have come to the Evanston club for advice.

Study Holds First Rank

"Study is the most important phase of the program," Mrs. Wilcox said, "for it is our intention to learn the framework of local government and about public affairs that we may go to the polls and vote intelligently. Several times a year authoritative speakers come to Evanston to discuss some important subject and the club holds morning sessions to study the branches of government."

When it comes to the recommendation of candidates, a secret committee is appointed to study each one as he appears on the political horizon. A preliminary report is made to the executive committee, then a final one which is taken up by the membership as a whole. In case a member of the club has a relative in politics, she remains inactive during that period.

"It's hard to realize how thorough this study of candidates is," continued Mrs. Wilcox. "When it comes to working on election day it is a matter for the women of each ward to decide. One of the amazing things is the way the members iron out their differences. Frequently they come to board meetings ready to argue all sorts of points, but they always seem to depart friends.

Young Women Take Up Politics

"It is also interesting to know the way young women have taken up politics," she went on. "Some of them are the daughters of our members, others are young matrons, and several girls have become interested in the work just after graduation from college."

In fact Miss Theresa Rew is the corresponding secretary of the Republican club. The other officers include Mrs. Alfred Tyler, Mrs. Edwin Sherman, Mrs. Cassius Biggert, Miss Estelle Frances Ward, Mrs. Howard Greer and Mrs. Wallace Patterson.

Another group of Evanston juniors that takes its politics seriously is the young women's auxiliary of the Women's Club of Evanston. Mrs. Horace Dawson said yesterday, these girls have spent long hours studying national, state, and local governmental affairs. Then the Junior league decided to go beyond Robert's "Rules of Order" last year and hear a series of lectures on government and politics. Alan Healy gave one of these talks on the Evanston administration and the duties of each officer.

The story is that a coterie of Junior league girls [not officially] saved the day for a young candidate for precinct committeeman three or four years ago —a young man they "believed in" and campaigned for. It was the deadline for filing petitions when he decided to "run," and, unable to locate any of his friends, called an old friend of his family for advice.

How Campaign Got a Start

"What precinct am I in?" he inquired.

"The Third precinct of the Second ward [or some such figures]," came the reply, "but why do you want to know?"

"Why, I'm running for precinct committeeman," said the young aspirant as he discovered the "old friend of the family" was a political boss and leader of the opposition.

"O, no, you're not."

"Yes, I think I am."

"Well, do you know who you're running against?" It happened to be a prominent resident of the town.

"No."

"Well, you're a great young fellow," was the concluding advice. "You don't know what ward or precinct you live in and you don't know who you're running against. Still you're running."

This was the opening gun. To the present time this young man attributes his success in that campaign to the support given him by many of Evanston's fairest. Since that time many another young gentleman has made his début in Evanston politics. Witness this year's slate which bears the names of James Simpson, Alan Healy, Cranston Spray, Gordon Canning, and Merritt Humphrey. It would seem the advice of Winston Churchill for "more young Americans to go into public life" has been taken seriously. What Evanston's feminine contingent will do this spring for the candidates is the next chapter of the story.

Winnetka Fashion Show

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Helen Bell, Elizabeth Hoyt, Margaret Hamill and Virginia Lamson. Pretty little Elizabeth Hoyt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Hoyt of Winnetka, gave her friends—and her beaux, incidentally—a chance to see what a bewitching looking bride she will make in the fashion show given Wednesday afternoon and evening at the Winnetka Community House for the benefit of the furnishing fund of Community House. Helen Bell, daughter of the Laird Bells, Margaret Hamill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph C. Hamill, and Virginia Lamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Warren E. Lamson, all of Winnetka, were Miss Hoyt's smartly clad attendants.

Spring Dress Uses Both Wool and Silk Crepe

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

Many of the new spring dresses will combine woolen with a rough pebbly finished silk crêpe. The dress shown is a chic example of the new dresses. The skirt, crushed belt, and sleeve trimming are a sapphire blue woolen and the silk bodice is a pale pink shade—a smart combination. Black Canton-faille crêpe topped by a white crêpe bodice is conservatively smart and dignified.

The pattern, 2655, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material for the skirt with 2⅛ yards of 39 inch material for the bodice.

Patou Ties a White Flannel Jacket Over Frock with Box Plaited Skirt

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Jean Patou has designed some of the cleverest sports clothes to be found in Paris this spring. He distinguishes between his spectator and active sports clothes by making the first decorative and the second practical. However, both kinds are given white flannel jackets in many cases, and this jacket has already become a sign of chic for the smart sportswoman, whether she plays or watches the game.

Patou makes no use of the brass buttons that flourish in other houses, and for this reason his flannel jackets are the most distinguished to be found in Paris. His best jacket of this type is shown in our sketch, and, as you see, it is simply tied on by a narrow flannel belt at the waistline. Nothing could be smarter. The flared peplum, the tailored collar and revers, the red and white flowers in the lapel of this white flannel jacket—all combine to make it noteworthy. It is a spectator sports wrap and is worn with a frock of red crêpe marocain. This dress is extremely simple in effect and made smart by cutting and stitching.

The skirt is made ample by box plaits having a two inch space between, and down the center of each space runs a line of stitching. The plaits are stitched down to the hipline and then released. The two front plaits extend above the waistline and are rounded. The belt is made of red marocain.

York State Bill Aimed Straight at Gold Diggers

Proposes No Alimony for Girls Under 25.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

A bill has been introduced at Albany by State Senator Julian S. Berg of New York, which, put through, would reduce appreciably the annual divorce figures for New York state. The pity is that it is not made a piece of legislation covering every state.

The bill referred to denies alimony to all divorcées under the age of 25 who have no children. If there is an argument in favor of granting alimony to women under the circumstances named, we cannot conceive what it might be.

But we can see where the alimony racket is going to be delivered a terrific wallop if the bill goes through. In the face of all the evidence compiled by the marriage racketeers themselves it's about time that the unhealthy sentiment toward these gold diggers was thrown into the ash can, and time for men to stand together in a solid body against these romance pirates.

Why should a young and able-bodied woman without children be permitted to get away with the game she's been working in the name of betrayed love? She has not been betrayed. She went into the adventure because she wanted to give it a trial. She was neither dragged nor forced into it. She went into it of her own free will. If she turns out to be an alimony grabber, you can count on it that she went into marriage with the idea of bettering herself somehow, someway.

Well, if things did not turn out as rosily as she expected, why should she be permitted to collect on her own mistake? No matter how leniently you try to judge her character, you cannot, in fairness, attribute decent motives to alimony collecting by the type described. The motive, boiled down and honestly presented is to make the man pay for her failure, her selfishness or spite.

Because of the preponderance of first year marriage failures, with the passage of the bill the divorce figures would not only be reduced, but with the gilded escape cut off fewer marriages would be entered into with the intention of early abandonment if things didn't go smoothly. And that would help to restore to marriage the dignified consideration it deserves—and, in our current era, needs.

Here's hoping the bill goes through with a bang! And that the other states will do their share to stop the alimony racket of able bodied, childless young wives.

New Company Will Operate Opera in N. Y.

Form Group to Continue Metropolitan.

New York, March 4.—[Special.]—Organization of a new membership corporation to be called the Metropolitan Opera association, to continue the presentation of opera at the Metropolitan Opera house is under consideration and probably will be consummated by the end of this month.

The present operating company, known as the Metropolitan Opera company, which is organized under the stock corporation laws, will suspend operations at the end of this season if the new plan is carried into effect.

Alfred F. Seligsberg of the law firm of Wise & Seligsberg, counsel to the management of the present company, explained that the chief purpose of the new plan was simplification. He added that there was every likelihood that in the new association there would be the same board of directors, the same executives, and the same singers. It was pointed out, however, that under the new plan it would be necessary for all agencies —including singers, orchestral musicians, and even the real estate company which owns the site and the opera house—to come to terms with the newly organized association. This would mean that the new group could either take over the contracts of the old company or insist upon new contracts. This, in turn, would mean perhaps that the new company could in various ways reduce the operating expenses of opera presentation.

Since the present company has already been forced to cut salaries and since patronage this year has fallen off to a great extent, there have been rumors that there would be no opera at the Metropolitan after this season. The news of the working out of the new scheme gives definite assurance that there will be no discontinuance of opera at this house, which has been open since 1883.

It was indicated tonight that the organization of the new association under the membership corporation law of New York state might mean the democratization of the governing powers of the opera company. For under this form of organizaiton, it was pointed out, it is not necessary to buy stock to become a member and any one may be invited to become a member and perhaps make contributions toward an endowment or operating fund.

He wouldn't give in till I fooled him

JIM always pooh-poohed the idea that caffeine affected him. He had been working awfully hard and getting increasingly nervous. It really was beginning to tell on him. He didn't sleep well and he looked worried.

One night, I changed the coffee — gave him Kellogg's Kaffee Hag Coffee. He never even noticed it, except to say, it tasted unusually good. But from then on, I noticed a change. He began to sleep like a top. I told him about "the coffee that lets you sleep" later on. Now he won't drink anything else.

Kaffee Hag Coffee is the purest, finest coffee — with 97% of the caffeine and the indigestible wax removed. You can't tell it from the best cup of coffee you ever tasted.

Try Kaffee Hag Coffee for a week and see if you do not sleep better, feel better — put more enthusiasm and zest into your work. Kaffee Hag Coffee will benefit you, aside from its freedom from caffeine — for you need a warming, cheering beverage at supper. It aids digestion, encourages relaxation and sounder sleep.

Serve it for your evening entertainments. All your guests can enjoy coffee without risk of a sleepless night. At a new low price. If you aren't entirely satisfied, return the can to us and your money will be refunded. Roasted by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Quality guaranteed.

Duncan Baby Parts Famed Sister Team

Vivian Prefers Her Home to Stage Career.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Hollywood, Cal., March 4.—[Special.]—There was a touch of the pathetic in the scene at the railroad station when Rosetta [Topsy] Duncan took leave of Vivian [Eva] to go to New York and crash the stage there alone. It is the first time in more than ten years of their work as a stage and screen team that the sisters came to a permanent professional parting, although they were separated temporarily for a year while Vivian was in Europe as the bride of Nils Asther, returning after an extended stay with Baby Evelyn Rosetta Asther last summer.

Recent bankruptcy proceedings here brought Rosetta to a decision to reembark on stage work as soon as possible. The sisters had plans to revive their song and patter act, but were delayed by questioning directed by the bankruptcy officials. Then tentative plans were laid for them to make another film appearance, on the heels of which came a scheme to do a parodied and modernized version of "In Old Kentucky."

Vivian, however, found that a baby is such an exciting and interesting creature that she now prefers to stay home and enjoy the company of little Evelyn. Thus a little child has parted the stanchest sister team Hollywood ever knew.

Wiser and poorer by something like $20,000, Mary Pickford gave word for dismantling her famous midget golf course, with the modernized artificial trees and their zigzag branches, today. A steam shovel is ripping up the concrete paths, pools, and shrubbery to make room for prosaic shops.

Yola D'Avril, actress from France, who played a Gallic charmer in "All Quiet," "Three French Girls," and also recently appeared in "Right of Way" and "God's Gift to Women," is suffering the effects of too rapid reducing. Miss D'Avril sliced her poundage from 135 to 115 toward the end of last year, and has not been well since, having suffered three setbacks when she seemed to have recuperated. Her physician now has her in bed for an extended stay, and expressed grave fears because of the possibility of respiratory trouble.

While Maurice Costello was ill in California Lutheran hospital following his recent stroke, Vivienne Sengler, former office girl, who sued him for $100,000 for asserted breach of promise in 1929 and then dismissed the suit, attempted to visit him, according to hospital officials. Costello had the girl ejected. "There never was any basis for the suit," he said.

When a score of women friends, actors, writers, and wives of film directors gathered for a baby shower for Mrs. John Miljan, the actor came home from his studio early and presented each woman guest with a different colored camellia from trees in his own garden. Miljan has perhaps the most lavishly gardened yard in the film colony, and his boast is that he set out every tree, shrub, and flowering plant himself. Gardening is his hobby. When he is not working Miljan ordinarily keeps a Japanese gardener and often a second man working in his garden all the time. He recently completed a birdhouse and took the lady guests to view twelve newly hatched canaries in the aviary, alluding to the fledglings as "my babies."

Cacti Popular for Apartment House Gardens

BY PAUL POTTER.

Like the range in sizes of buttons in grandmother's sewing basket is the variety of shapes and sizes to be found among the cacti which lend themselves so well to the window box or miniature garden of apartment popularity.

In the cultivation of the cactus, treatment which approximates their natural conditions suits them best. Keep them warm and dry in winter, with little watering.

As spring arrives, adding water gives them the natural urge to begin growing. They will continue during the warm season and it is then the varied flowers of great beauty reward the grower's patience.

Quite unusual effects may be secured by grouping cacti of different species artistically. A sandy soil, open and porous, is required. A little lime may be added to keep the soil from "souring" or becoming acid.

Seeds of the cactus can be sown in pots the bottoms of which are filled with pebbles or chips of broken pottery. Press the seeds down into the soil in these pots and cover with a thin layer of soil. A top layer of gravel on the surface is sometimes found advisable.

Temperatures around 70 degrees are most favorable for the growth of the seeds. Such cacti as have branching stems will be found to root quite readily from cuttings placed in sand or light soil. Little watering should be done until roots form.

SORE THROAT

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel less sore! Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve—it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Chapelle is the owner of Flaxen's Casino, near the water front of Port Bal, which was established by her first husband of dubious color, who had fathered her daughter Aya, and was the refuge of her second husband of dubious morale though unimpeachable antecedents, who had brought his little daughter Faire to the island and remained there until his death.

Malice Bookes, aid de camp of Sir Philip Persian, governor and commander in chief of the Tama islands, Bal and St. Rosario, obtained an invitation for Mrs. Chapelle and her daughters to attend the government house ball. Faire's pride makes her reject the belated honor because the Chapelles had until now been left out of the ball list. Mrs. Chapelle and Aya believe it is because she doesn't want to go in their company. Faire admits to herself, with misgivings, the truth of their accusations. She prefers to remain in the casino, where she and Aya had been trained to work by their mother. She strolls over later to watch the gayety of the ball from a sheltered grotto in the governor's garden. She sees Mira Worcester, a faded beauty, and young Robert Grand, the governor's secretary and ward, steal away to a secret rendezvous. The governor follows them out and finds Faire. He requests her promise of secrecy regarding the incident. Faire is stung by his formal treatment of her. She overhears him tell Bookes that he is leaving at dawn for St. Rosario, where trouble is brewing. From a high knoll over the deep water Faire waves the governor a mocking farewell, but as she does she slips and falls down the cliff and is rescued from the water by the governor. Sir Philip is anxious to save his young ward from a scandal. Worcester has become suspicious and has threatened Mira. Bookes promises to save the boy by proving it was another girl and not Mira he'd been meeting.

INSTALLMENT VI.

OFFICIAL BUSINESS.

So the governor worked as he always did, driven by the devils within him, while other men rested, but drifting across the maps and confusing the contractor's figures came, unasked, the face of that wild girl from Flaxen's, who had dared to wave him out on his secret errand in the dawn, who had looked at him untamably from her smoky eyes. And he knew that the eyes were beautiful and had the changing, fiery quality of black opals.

And setting his long, hard lips into their long, hard line, he resolved to close Flaxen's. His next duty, when this St. Rosario business was over, would be the investigation of that café on the water front. He would close it, deport them. Ma Chapelle would take her girls away.

His butler came in softly with the 6 o'clock "sundowner" on a silver tray. There were two glasses beside the whisky and the soda.

The servant, like all his servants, spoke perfect English: "Your excellency, the Lady Worcester is here, on her horse, asking to see you. Very important business."

"Show her ladyship in."

He rose to receive Mira Worcester, more haggard than ever in the severity of her jhodpurs and riding coat and straight felt hat. He looked at her so piercingly that she hated him for it. Never, he thought, had he seen such fear and desperation in a woman's eyes; and then his hand, resting on his desk, touched the frame of the portrait and he knew with a bitter thrust of memory that, yet, he had once before seen such fear and desperation; and no salvation came.

"Why, Mr. Brookes! This is a pleasure," cried Mrs. Chapelle.

"How d'you do?"

"How d'you do, Phillip? I'm——" She swayed. She was really and truly pitiably exhausted.

"You're riding too early."

"I had to come."

"Please sit down." She sank into a long chair.

Persian filled, without asking, the glass that the butler had brought for her and he saw how her hand shook.

"Philip——"

"I know it all, Mira."

"But you don't know what Cecil's been like!" She spoke of Worcester. "He's been terrible. For weeks when he's been off to the club after dinner he's had Bobbie watched. He's watched the little bungalow."

"We'll save you, Mira."

"O, Philip! We've had a ghastly scene today! Horrible! I've denied everything. But if it comes to the worst——"

"I'll do anything on earth to prevent Robert marrying you."

"O! You're brutal!"

"If you count on that boy throwing his life away for 'honor,' reckon with me. 'Honor.' You're 38. You've doped this little fool of 23. Mira, you're going to stay with the man you've got. He's equal to you."

"You're a hard man. You've never loved——"

She veered: "I've come to beg you to do anything you can to influence Cecil——"

"One man knows when another has been driven beyond the limits of any 'influence.' If your husband finds anything tangible against you he'll throw you out as you deserve."

"What shall I do?" she moaned.

"I've put you and Robert in Bookes' hands. Do what he tells you."

"I never quite trust Malise," she said faintly.

"He's a wonderful strategist," said Persian in his glacial voice. "And if he will take on your dirty work you must be thankful." He rang the bell.

"Ask Mr. Bookes to join us."

Malise Bookes came in and bent, with the solicitude he showed to all women, over Mira. Persian watched.

"Bookes, take Lady Mira into the drawing room and have a straight talk over her difficulties." He stood beside her. "Good-by, Mira. I have a very busy evening and I want my bath and change. Bookes will take good care of you."

The governor put the Worcester affair from him. His discipline of himself was so hard, so perfected that he could do thus. For anxiety on young Grand's behalf, intense as it was, must be pigeonholed while he went forward with the bad business in St. Rosario.

Dusk found Malise Bookes at the Chapelle's small red roofed house. Events—he thought—were playing into his hands. He had ridden home with Mira Worcester, found Worcester quiet, sullen and dangerous, tossing off his third sundowner.

Up at government house she had told Bookes all. She was in such fear that she begged help humbly and cravenly. Worcester had stumbled upon the truth, had followed up his surmises without her realization . . . the only hope was that he might be brought to believe that he had made a staggering mistake.

Bookes had the geography of his scheme very clear. Did she think she had been seen actually leaving her bungalow to meet Grand? No. She thought not. Worcester's accusations had been that his spies had seen her come furtively through the overgrown tangle of trees and shrubs to the other bungalow, the unoccupied one that lay so lonely with tropical vegetation, unchecked, hiding it a little more deeply every day.

As she had talked tremblingly Bookes had thought: Her bungalow is directly above the Chapelles'. The empty one lies nearer government house. From the Chapelle house and the Worcester bungalow three-quarters of a mile away the same path might easily be taken to reach the rendezvous.

"Well, you understand what you have to do," he said soothingly to Mira at parting.

"You think the girl won't talk afterwards?"

"Leave that to me."

So here he was, in the quick falling darkness, at the Chapelle house.

The woman and the two girls were all there, Mrs. Chapelle and Aya drowsy and blowsy from the night before and the champagne breakfast party that they had had the morning after.

Neither Mrs. Chapelle nor Aya had even noticed the arrangement of her hair to conceal her hurt head.

"Why, Mr. Bookes! This is a pleasure," cried Mrs. Chapelle, jumping up and looking so profoundly arch that Bookes said distastefully to himself, "God, I'd love to shake up the old cow!"

She smiled from him to her daughter Aya and proceeded:

So there he was, in the quick falling darkness, at the Chapelle house.

"How d'you do?" said Bookes, looking at Faire with a certain triumph in his eyes.

"O, what a delightful evening it was!" cried Mrs. Chapelle. "I always say to my girls—there's the nicest society in Bal if only they weren't so shy! Happy to be in each other's pockets, never seeming to want social life—very sweet, but such a mistake, I say."

Bookes was still looking steadily at the fair girl. "God!" he thought with a thrill, "what contempt! Little devil," he thought, "you'll learn from me before you're much older. I wonder if you are remembering that I kissed you last night?" And he returned Mrs. Chapelle's pleasantries with a sharp official look, quick and arrogant.

"I have urgent business here, ladies," he said curtly.

Mrs. Chapelle became suddenly quieter; her face became astute, then carfully and innocently blank. Aya exhibited surprise, her full mouth dropping open. But the girl Faire looked him in the eyes. And she thought to herself: "The trouble's come."

"You wish to see me alone, Mr. Bookes?" Mrs. Chapelle purred propitiatingly.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Louise answered: "Go on home, then! You're a fine customer!"

So you want to know how to vary the usual angel food or sunshine cake, do you? Well, we leap into the breach with thanks to tell you. I'm assuming before we start that you all know how to make a truly good cake of this feathery variety, as I have given you recipes and methods some time ago. They are still available, however, if you have mislaid yours, so let us know, for you will need them for the following recipes and suggestions.

You may turn a plain angel food dough into a fruit or nut cake by the admission of the fruit or nuts to the dough before baking. Put half the dough in your angel food pan and drop on top of it about half a cup of candied or brandied cherries which have first been cut in pieces. Or, if you want nuts, take the same amount and have them previously chopped very fine. Or, if it's raisins you want, use one-half cup and add these whole or cut. But you might like a fruit mixture, for which you combine one-fourth cup each of any two fruits and place on this layer in the pan. Fruit should be well drained for the addition of extra liquid will spoil the angel food.

The next step is to put the remaining dough on top of the fruit or nuts and spread it evenly with a spatula. Now take your spatula and run it through to the bottom of the cake pan and gently mix the dough and fruit all the way around the pan. Bake the cake just as you do angel food, and when you lift it from the oven, let it hang in the pan until the cake is cold.

Angel fig cake is made the same as angel cake except that it is baked in two layer pans, and it does not require as much time for the baking. Forty minutes is generally sufficient. The palatable charm of this cake, aside from its regal appearance, lies in the filling from whence it acquires its name. Make an icing with the whites of four eggs and flavor it with vanilla. Spread a layer of icing and then a layer of finely chopped figs that have been cooked twenty minutes in slightly sweetened water and have been well drained, between the two cake layers. Spread the figs with another layer of icing, and place over it the top layer of the cake.

Here you will want to reverse the order of procedure somewhat. Put on a layer of icing and then finish with a layer of figs. Remember to treat the sides of the cake in the same manner that you do the top. If you intend to use soft figs for the filling suggested, they need not be cooked but may be made ready for use with a short soaking in sweetened water.

I have another recipe for marshmallow cake that is good for either the sunshine or angel food base, but that will have to wait for another morning. If you want it before I find time to list it here, I shall be glad to forward it.

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

Today's hand might have been entitled capital and labor, the East hand representing capital and the West hand representing labor. Certain it is that West did the work while East supplied the wherewithal. Typical of many a wage conference, East and West sparred around a bit and finally got together and, once the basis of their contract was settled, went ahead without interruption to a perfect result. This was the hand:

NORTH
♠—K,10,8
♥—5,4
♦—9,6,4,3,2

WEST	EAST [dealer]
♠—6,4,3,2	♠—A,Q,J
♥—9,8,7,6,3	♥—A,K,Q,10
♦—8,7	♦—0

SOUTH
♠—9,7,5
♥—J,2
♦—A,K,Q,J,10,5
♣—Q,4

East dealt and made a forcing bid of three clubs. South, without any great hope but unable to resist the lure of 150 honors, overcalled with three diamonds. West passed. Since South, by his bidding, had kept the bidding open, West can most easily show his trickless hand by a pass. A bid of three no trumps after South's overcall would not show a bust, but would show strength, whereas if South had not bid at all West would have shown his trickless hand by a take-out of three no trumps. North passed and East bid four diamonds. This not only showed West that he could take the first trick in diamonds, but forced West to take him out in his best suit. The situation was perfect for East's bid. He was perfectly willing to play spades, hearts, or clubs, and West was naturally forced to bid one of these three suits or to go into no trumps. After South's pass West took out with a bid of four hearts. North again passed and East, reassured as to the trump situation, immediately went six hearts, which closed the bidding.

North opened the ♦ 9, dummy trumped with the ♥ 10, South played the ♦ 5, and West the 7. Dummy next led out the ♥ A and ♥ K, clearing the trump suit, and then followed with the ♣ A and ♣ K. To the sixth trick East led the ♣ 3, which declarer trumped in his own hand with the ♥ 7. Declarer now led the ♦ 8, which dummy trumped with the ♥ Q. To the eighth, ninth and tenth tricks dummy led out the ♣ 8, 6, 5, on which West discarded the ♠ 4, 3, 2. The eleventh trick was taken by dummy's ♠ A, and the twelfth and thirteenth were, of course, taken by declarer with the trump 9 and 8. A little slam bid and made, plus one extra trick.

NORTH

Weddings

Cyrena Van Gordon's Chicago friends yesterday received announcements of her marriage to Howard Dunbar Smith on Saturday, Feb. 27, in New York City. The announcement was made by the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murphy Boyd. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are at home at 1133 Fifth avenue, New York City.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Nell Godshaw, daughter of Bruce Godshaw and Mrs. B. H. Hamilton of 7222 Yates avenue, to Harry James Burmeister, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Burmeister of 7537 Oglesby avenue, will take place at 8 o'clock this evening at the First Presbyterian church of Woodlawn. A reception will follow at the Chicago Beach hotel.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage on Thursday of Mrs. Jessie Fremont Bartlett Hooper, daughter of Mrs. Alice Bartlett of the Edgewater Beach hotel, to Charles B. Smith, president of Stewart-Warner corporation. The wedding took place at the Fourth Presbyterian church at 5:45 o'clock, after which Mr. Smith and his bride left for a three weeks' honeymoon in California. They will reside at the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Mr. Knute Mehl announces the marriage of his niece, Miss Vivian Sjoberg, to Mr. Allan F. Carlson. The couple were married by the Rev. J. G. Hindley at the Park Ridge home of Mr. George Field. Mr. and Mrs. Carlson are now sailing to Sweden on their honeymoon.

Volunteers Enroll for Study Courses on Social Service

Although the new training course for volunteers to aid social agencies in handling poor relief work does not begin at the Chicago Council of Social Agencies until March 15, several appeared for enrollment at the volunteer service headquarters yesterday in response to the urgent appeal for more workers. More than 350 volunteers have been assigned to assist staff members of social agencies since last fall.

"Volunteers for social service are needed in summer more than in winter because paid staff members go on their vacations and other volunteers go away for the summer," Mrs. Edward Brown, director of the council's volunteer service, explained yesterday. "There are all kinds of work to be done, from weighing and measuring babies to acting as case work aids for the United Charities and Emergency Relief committee. Each woman who takes the training course is asked to give two half days a week."

Registration is being made in room 1304 of the council's offices at 203 North Wabash avenue. High school graduates who are willing to work without compensation are accepted. Among those who have completed courses and are now aiding in the administration of poor relief are club women, society women, housewives, and young women just out of college.

ENGAGEMENT

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Kitching, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward John Kitching of Melrose, Mass., to the Rev. Paul T. Shultz Jr., assistant to Dr. Duncan H. Browne of St. James' church. Miss Kitching is a graduate of Boston university and of the school of social science at Simmons college. During the last year she has been assisting the Joint Emergency Relief commission in Chicago. The Rev. Mr. Shultz is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Paul Theodore Shultz of Emaus, Pa. He is a graduate of Moravian college, Princeton; Princeton Theological seminary, and the Episcopal Theological seminary at Cambridge, Mass. The wedding will take place in the late spring.

Follow These Rules:

1. Each day for 48 consecutive days (except Sunday) the Chicago Daily Tribune will print a United States Crossword Puzzle. The name of one of the 48 States in the United States will be in each puzzle. You are invited to solve the puzzle and name the State.

2. The Chicago Tribune will pay $5,000.00 in Cash Prizes to persons who send in the nearest correctly solved complete sets of puzzles in accordance with these rules. Note: This means that you do not necessarily have to solve each of the 48 puzzles correctly to win. The prizes will be paid to the persons whose entries rank highest.

3. This offer is open to everyone—men, women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

4. Puzzles are to be submitted only in complete sets. Do NOT send in each puzzle separately. Hold all puzzles until you have the complete set of 48. Then send them to "Crosswords," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All entries must be in by midnight 15 days after Puzzle No. 48 has been printed.

5. Each entry must be sent by First Class Mail, postage prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will be returned by the Post Office Department. Make your entry simple and neat. Neatness will count.

6. You need not buy the Chicago Tribune. You may copy or trace the puzzles and send them in. The Chicago Tribune may be examined at any of its offices or at Public Libraries free of charge.

7. The judges will be appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Their decision will be final. In case of ties a duplicate award will be paid to each tying contestant.

HAWKS WHIP AMERICANS, 6-1; TAKE 2D PLACE

GOLDEN GLOVES TEAM TITLE OFF TO ROCKFORD?

'No!' C. Y. O. Boxers Answer.

4,000 Tickets

THERE are more than 4,000 tickets available for the Golden Gloves finals at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night. They are in the $1 and $2 sections. Every spectator is assured of an unobstructed view of the ring.

The team championship in the finals of the fifth annual Golden Gloves tournament, which will be held Wednesday night at the Stadium, apparently rests between the Catholic Youth Organization of Chicago and the team from Rockford, Ill. Rockford has qualified five boxers for the finals and so has the C. Y. O., but three of them are in the 118 pound class.

Three boxers from Johnny Coulon's gym are entered in the finals, and they have an outside chance to win the championship. First place in the finals will count five points. Second place will be scored three points, while each of the defeated semi-finalists will receive one point. This is the same method used last year.

Rockford Sure of Five.

By this method Rockford is certain to score at least five points even if all five of its boxers lose in the semi-finals. The luck of the pairings will determine much, for the runner-up will contribute three points to the team total.

Rockford will depend on Joe Romano in the 126 pound class; Al De Shepherd, in the 112; Billy Celebron in the 147; Armand Peila in the middleweight division and Adam Smith in the heavyweight. Romano, Celebron and Smith are rated at least the equal of any contestants remaining in their divisions. If all should win, Rockford undoubtedly will take the team trophy.

The C. Y. O. has Al Soukop in the flyweight division, Max Marek in the 175 pound class, and three bantamweight boxers, John Ginter, Leo Rodak, and Edward Sparrow. The C. Y. O. is assured of at least 7 points. Five of these will be scored in the 118 pound division, but since Rodak and Ginter are favorites to win the title the point total probably will be more.

Marek is the outstanding light heavyweight. He is the C. Y. O. champion and he has an excellent chance to win Golden Gloves. The greatest number of points the C. Y. O. can score is 19. Rockford can score 25 points if it wins five titles.

Phagan Is Coulon Hope.

The chances of Coulon's gymnasium rest on Johnny Phagan in the welterweight class and Charles Neigo and Ambrose Geoghagen in the middleweight class. Coulon's best score would be 13 with two champions and a runner-up.

The featherweight champion will be an out of Chicago fighter. There is at least one Chicagoan left in each of the other seven weights. Jimmy Walsh of Janesville, Wis., state champion; Joe Roman of Joliet, Geno Salvatore of Streator, and Romano of Rockford are the featherweight finalists.

Ticket sales for the finals continued brisk yesterday. All $3 seats have been sold, but good $2 and $1 seats remain on sale. They may be purchased at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, at the public service office branches at 1101 East 63d street and 4152 West Madison street, and at The Tribune Tower lobby. No mail orders will be accepted.

24 on Chicago Team.

All fighters in the finals must report at the Stadium before 6 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon for physical examinations and to be weighed. A one pound allowance will be permitted in each weight.

The pairings for the semi-finals will be made by lot as rapidly as the fighters report and the schedule of bouts will be announced. The first semi-final bout will start at 8:45. All 16 semi-final matches will consist of two minute rounds. The eight championships will be decided in bouts of three minute rounds.

The 24 boxers on the Chicago team, which fights New York in Madison Square Garden March 28, will be selected immediately and all notified to report at the Illinois Athletic club on Thursday. Active training will begin Friday morning.

Get Your Golden Gloves Finals Tickets Now!

Tickets for the Chicago finals of the Golden Gloves tournament are on sale at THE TRIBUNE Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, its two branches at 1101 East 63d street and 4152 West Madison street, and The Tribune Tower lobby.

The finals will be held at the Chicago Stadium next Wednesday when the team of 16 boxers, the best in Chicagoland, will be chosen to represent Chicago against New York's stars in the intercity bouts at Madison Square Garden March 28. Tickets for these bouts will be $2 and $1. All $3 seats are sold. Get your tickets now!

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Blackhawks, whose flying talents have been doubted somewhat in recent contests, soared back to the second branch of the National hockey tree at the Chicago Stadium last night with a 6 to 1 triumph over the New York Americans. The victory was most convincing and satisfying to 8,000 patrons.

The goal total, assessed on no less a person than Roy Worters, oft reputed the most gifted gatekeeper in the game, was the second largest evolved by the Chicagoans this season, only the 7 to 0 pogrom against Toronto ranking above it. The victory placed the Hawks a half a game ahead of Detroit in the American division and set to rest any fears that they might be absent from the playoffs.

Tommy Cook accounted for three of the six goals. Lolo Couture was next with two, and his probably were more remarkable, for it wasn't until nearly fourteen minutes of the first period that the Gottselig-Ripley-Couture line began to function. Within 36 seconds Lolo had embarrassed Mr. Worters twice with the assistance of Gottselig.

An American Makes Debut.

The importance of the contest appeared to weigh heavily on both teams, since each started its most talented lines, although the Americans submitted one stranger in Burmeister.

The rambunctious Cook line followed the Gottselig combination and took almost the length of its stay and its combined genius to get the puck past Worters for the Hawks' first goal. Thompson started it, passing the puck to March, and the latter transferred it to Cook in time for Tommy to score in 8:55.

The Gottselig troupe returned to add another goal to the Hawk account. Ripley transported the puck past the blue line, booted it to Gottselig and Johnny shoved it back to him, whence Vic pushed a shot by Worters in 13:40.

Scores by Pairs.

The first ten minutes of the second period produced a good deal of scurrying up and down the rink, but all of it was without revenue in the goal department.

Brydge served time in the little house for what was called holding, although the procedure did not seem to involve holding, for it left Lowrey flat upon the ice. Wentworth was made to sit in the penalty box for hip checking, a hitherto unheard of misdemeanor.

The Hawks wearied of the incessant commuting and finally produced their third and fourth goals through the collaboration of Couture and Gottselig. Gottselig shot and Lolo grabbed the rebound in 19:20. Thirty-five seconds later Johnny again dashed through and passed to Lolo for a 4 to 0 lead.

Americans Score One.

The Americans came out for the last period in a submissive mood. This resigned attitude was not developed to a point, however, where the Hawks could augment their advantage immediately.

If the Americans were taking their ease, they disproved the case by scoring a goal, much to the surprise of Gardiner, who had, up to this point, spent one of the most listless evenings of his career. It was Bill Burch who delivered the score, taking a pass from Filmore in 7:15.

The Hawks got back on a productive basis by sending forth the Cook line. March stole the puck on the right side of the rink, passed it to Cook, and Tommy drove it by Worters in 11:45. Cook came right back then and pilfered the puck from Dutton near the blue line. He dashed through, unassisted, to make the score 6 to 1 in 12:30. However, officials decided Thompson should have an assist on the play.

Joe Bound to Win When Roman Meets Romano

BY FRENCH LANE.

There is a battle in prospect at the Chicago Stadium next Wednesday night which may cause all sorts of confusion among the spectators in the huge crowd.

If it develops—and it most likely will—it will have the crowd in a turmoil as to who is who. For it will bring together Joe Roman and Joe Romano, and it so happens that they both are featherweights. They are of Spanish descent and their names are so near alike the spectators may not know who they are cheering for nor who they will want to see win.

These Latin-American boys are among the most interesting to fight their way through the Tournament of Champions earlier this week. One of the Joes—Joe Roman—hails from Joliet. The other Joe—Joe Romano—comes from Rockford. They are of about the same size and build, of course, weigh the same, and their ring style is similar.

In certain ways they look alike, but Joe Romano and Joe Roman never met until somebody introduced them in the dressing room at the Stadium last Wednesday night just before each polished off an opponent and reached the semi-final round in the fight for the Golden Gloves.

Roman is a chauffeur in Joliet and has been in amateur boxing for three years. He fought for the Golden Gloves in 1930 and became the runner up in the bantamweight division that year. He has 34 knockouts to his credit and his aggressive style throughout this year's Tournament of Champions has attracted wide attention. He appeared to be a 100 per cent improved boxer over his 1930 form and in the intercity battles of 1930 he whipped his New York opponent.

Roman devotes all his athletic activities to boxing, but Romano is not only a good boxer but he is a star amateur golfer and is also a bowler of note. He has made remarkable progress lately with his boxing, for in his last 15 bouts he has been the winner 12 times and 10 of his victories have been rolled up on knockouts. He doesn't devote all his time to amateur athletics, for he keeps the wolf from the door by working as a draftsman with a milling machine company in Rockford.

But how is it going to sound in the Stadium next Wednesday night when half the crowd starts yelling "Come on, Roman" and the other half shouts back, "Come on, Romano."

N. U. and Purdue Battle for Big 10 Title Tonight

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The basketball championship of the Western conference is the stake for which Northwestern and Purdue will play tonight at Patten gymnasium. If the Wildcats win, they will tie with the Boilermakers for the championship, conceding that Purdue whips Chicago in its finale Monday night at Lafayette.

JOHNNY WOODEN.

Northwestern has the same opportunity in basketball that Purdue had last fall on the gridiron when Purdue defeated Northwestern in the charity game at Soldiers' field and manufactured a three-way tie for the title between these elevens and Michigan. However, Northwestern's chance is a product of the regular schedule.

Six thousand, a record crowd, will see the game which winds up Northwestern's season. Many hundreds more would attend if tickets were available.

Wooden Leads Scorers.

Johnny Wooden, co-captain of the Boilermaker quintet, also leads the conference in individual scoring and with only fair success tonight and Monday he should continue in front. Joe Reiff, who led last year, finishes his 1932 competition tonight, but he has one more year of play, while Wooden is a senior.

Purdue will depend on Wooden tonight to show his mates the way to victory. But he will be backed up by the best balanced offensive quintet in the Big Ten. Eddy, Fehring, Kellar, and Parmenter all are dangerous at the net. In the first game against Northwestern each of the regulars scored at least six points.

Purdue's advantage tonight rests primarily on speed. Northwestern will have a slight advantage in height on the court, although at center Dutch Fehring outjumped both Elmer Johnson and Bob McCarnes. This gave Purdue possession of the ball, and the Boilermakers capitalized immediately in the first half to take the lead in the first contest.

Wildcats Must Watch Fouls.

Northwestern was without the services of Johnson and McCarnes in the second half of the game at Lafayette, both being sent from the game on four fouls. The Wildcats' chances tonight will rest as much on whether the starting five plays all the game, as any other item.

Tonight's lineup follows:

NORTHWESTERN.		PURDUE.
Reiff,f		Kellar,f
McCarnes,f		Eddy,f
Johnson,c		Fehring,c
Farber,g		Wooden,g
Smith,g		Parmenter,g

MAROONS MEET ILLINI

With only the traditional ability of Maroon teams to "rise" for their Illinois games to buoy them, the Chicago basketball team ends its home schedule against the Illini at the Midway fieldhouse tonight. With nine defeats and one victory in their book, a victory for the Maroons tonight would do more for their spirits than their record, since there will be no two ways about the season final at Purdue Monday.

Five players will make their last local appearance for Chicago tonight. They are Capt. Harry Ashley and Bernard Wien, guards; Paul Stephenson, Scott Rexinger, and Kenneth Fraider, forwards.

Illinois defeated Chicago, 30 to 20, in their downstate match earlier this season, and there is no good reason to believe that the sharpshooting Champaign boys will not repeat.

AFTER 3 YEARS SOX FIND BALL PARK IN TEXAS

All Things Come to Him Who Waits.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 4.—The Chicago White Sox, in their third successive spring training season in San Antonio, finally have got around to make the ball park their training base. Hasty negotiations with the local Texas league nabobs this morning effected arrangements to use their premises for the remainder of the three weeks' stand in this city.

The first time the Sox came here to train, in 1930, they took a blind shot and came down to find no adequate place had been provided for their athletic activities. Through the grace of John J. McGraw, who had the league park for the Giants that spring, and some gracious Mexican athletic magnates who had a lot with a fence around it, they got by, in a manner of speaking.

Lew Makes Another Motto.

Last year they had an athletic field controlled by the school board, and while it had some advantages in dressing room facilities, it was not a baseball park.

This year the Sox had expected to use the athletic field again, but found it somewhat boggy, and so, in one of those whirlwind shifts of plans, the Sox this day arrived in a ball park.

Manager Fonseca was well pleased with the ability to close the deal and immediately wrote a motto:

"Everything comes to him who waits."

The athletes were pleased to get in the regular baseball enclosure and the friskiest workout of the training season to date was held in the afternoon, a three hour postponement being the only interruption, due to the shift of plans.

Every department worked out and Manager Fonseca expects to line the boys up within a few days for the first of the intraclub games.

Appling Has Ideas.

With fences to run against, the battle of the outfielders is expected to be on in full swing and there also has developed some evidence that Blue, Hayes, Cissell, and Selph are to have some serious challenge.

Luke Appling has the notion that he will be a better third baseman than he was a shortstop and Fonseca is going to give him a chance to show it. Jack Ryan also has ambitions to stick by at least showing himself a formidable understudy for Cissell at shortstop. Jack is a pretty slick fielder and thrower, but he may have to work pretty hard to laugh off his .276 batting average with Atlanta last season.

In lieu of the morning practice the boys had themselves measured for their new uniforms, a matter that is mere routine in itself but which brought about information that made the athletes very happy. The dark blue road uniforms again have been abandoned, this time, perhaps, forever.

Grube Is Ailing.

Decision to do away with the hot and heavy blue regalia was made shortly after Lou Comiskey became owner of the club, but had not been imparted to the athletes until the tape measure was applied today. The athletes also learned of a uniform change that impressed them less than the one doing away with the blue outfits. The Sox emblems, which looked like dollar signs at a distance, also have been junked.

All of the players continue in excellent physical condition, excepting Frank Grube, who is threatened with the flu. Not a pitcher has reported the slightest arm soreness, a matter which the Mineral Wells bath-house folks are expected to report in their next pamphlets.

Morris, Red Sox Pitcher, Buried at Flomaton, Ala.

Flomaton, Ala., March 4.—[Special.] Big Ed Morris, Boston Red Sox pitcher who died yesterday at Century, Fla., was buried in Oak Grove cemetery, near here, today. Morris, who was 31 years old, died of knife wounds suffered in a fight last Monday night.

Cubs Polish Their Party Manners for Giant Visit

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 4.—The Cubs polished up on their company manners today. They are to entertain guests, the first of the year, here tomorrow and Sunday. The visitors will be Mr. John McGraw's New York Giants, who will oppose the Cubs in a ball game each day. The expense of the Giants' trip to and from Los Angeles is to be borne by the Wrigley interests, so Mr. McGraw is bringing more than sixty people, which is about all he could possibly muster for the party.

The games here, the first of a series of eight spring engagements between the two ancient rivals, will be only a portion of 48 hours of activity planned for the New Yorkers. For one thing, they'll see what a real training camp should be. They'll also be treated to auto rides over the mountains, boat rides along the island's rocky coast, a barbecue at Phil K. Wrigley's fancy ranch, and free movies and dances.

Recruits Down Regulars.

As part of the polishing up program this afternoon the regulars and recruits went through another seven inning intracamp game, which was heated up more by the sun than the competition. Much of the usual zest of such meetings was absent because of the daring manner in which the recruits hammered out a 9 to 2 victory against two supposedly high class pitchers—Guy Bush and Bob Smith. In justice to Guy Bush, however, it should be mentioned that they were more considerate of their arms than their reputations.

The regulars were of little consequence as hitters, because of their inability to make any inroads against Pat Malone or Les Sweetland. Malone is in pretty fair trim and the regulars soon discovered this to their sorrow. He allowed one harmless single in the first inning and in the second was frisked for a triple by Richbourg and singles by Grimm and Hartnett.

Errors Help Youngsters.

Sweetland labored through three innings and gave up nothing more than singles by Stevie, Grimm, and Hartnett. All these were bunched in the sixth for the regulars' second run.

The regulars' hitting was just about on a par with their fielding. Billy Herman made a bad chuck to first base trying to complete a double play in the third inning and it helped the recruits to a run. In the sixth inning Bob Smith messed up an easy bunt right at him. This filled the bases. On the next batter, Jurges, another error was perpetrated, this one by Hack at third.

It was such little things that figured in the scoring of five recruit runs in that inning. Blair was the only second stringer to blunder in the field. He stepped on his toes just as he was going to pick up a grounder. That's why the boys call him Foots.

Hornsby Picks Best Front.

Against the Giants tomorrow the Cubs will offer the best they have in opposition at this time. Hornsby will start what he hopes is going to prove his regular lineup. Some of the more skilled rookies will play in the later innings.

Lon Warneke and Ed Baecht, both of whom are in condition, will do the pitching. Sunday Johnny Welch and Lyle [Bud] Tinning will pitch. The latter, purchased from Des Moines, is the stocky right hander who is rated as the choicest of the freshman mound candidates. Just who will hurl for the Giants is something McGraw himself probably doesn't know yet.

Notre Dame Is 37-26 Victor at Marquette

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., March 4.—[Special.]—Notre Dame's basketball team ran its victory string to fifteen straight tonight by defeating Marquette university before 4,000 in the Milwaukee auditorium, 37 to 26. It was the second time this season the Irish have whipped the Hilltoppers.

But it was a ball game, Marquette's offensive awakening to the work at hand early in the second half to tie the score at 21 all after the visitors had led by margins ranging from one to nine points. Then, just when it began to appear that the Golden Avalanche might snap Notre Dame's streak, its attack fell off and the Irish had no trouble pulling away, especially in the final minutes.

Illini Gymnasts Beat Champion Chicago Team

The University of Illinois gymnasts defeated Chicago's championship turning squad last night at Bartlett gymnasium. Michigan took third place in the three way meet. The Illini squad overcame a 12 point deficit in the final event, tumbling, to win by the smallest margin ever recorded in conference competition, 1,159½ to 1,157½. Michigan scored 976½ points.

INDIANA DEFEATS FOUR BIG 10 FOES ON MIDWAY TRACK

Table of Points

Indiana	44	Northwestern	8
Minnesota	34¾	Purdue	5½
Chicago	17¾

The strongest track team in Indiana university's athletic history declared itself a formidable contender for the conference championship last night at the University of Chicago fieldhouse by defeating four of the foes it will face in the Big Ten title meet on the same site next week.

Scoring in nine of the ten events and running away with the distance races, Indiana scored 44 points while Minnesota, which had been reckoned as a conference possibility, could accumulate only 34¾. Largely on the performance of its hurdlers, Chicago finished third with 17¾ points. Northwestern was fourth with 8 points and Purdue, 5½.

Two Periods Broken.

Two Big Ten records, the half mile and the mile were bettered by Hoosier entries. Henry Brocksmith, miler, loped around seven laps of the track with a long steady stride to finish in 4 minutes and 17 seconds, four and six-tenths seconds under the conference record of 4:21.6 established by Dale Letts, of Chicago, last year, and fifty yards ahead of the field. Only records made in the championship meet are official, however.

In the half mile Charles Hornbostel fought his way to victory in 1:55.6, a tenth of a second faster than the official record established by Orval Martin of Purdue in 1930. The 440 yard event, which Ivan Fuqua, Indiana's sensational sophomore, undoubtedly would have won, was scratched for a lack of a sufficient number of competitors.

Ford Pulls Tendon.

Zack Ford of Northwestern, who tied the world's 40 yard dash record last month, pulled a tendon and probably will be lost to the Purple for the conference meet. Ford won his heat in the 60 yard dash in :06.4 but limped the last few yards and had to retire.

Minnesota's strength was well distributed with Clarence Munn leading by outdistancing the shot put field by five feet. Purdue's best effort was Charles Popejoy's second in the mile. Summaries:

60 YARD DASH—Won by Thomason, Minnesota; Brooks, Chicago, second; Hass, Minnesota, third; Crouch, Indiana, fourth. Time, :6.3

MILE RUN—Won by Brocksmith, Indiana; Popejoy, Purdue, second; Payne, Northwestern, third; Neese, Indiana, fourth. Time, 4:17 [betters conference record].

70 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Black, Chicago; Scheifley, Minnesota, second; Haydon, Chicago, third; Foland, Purdue, fourth. Time, :8.8.

TWO MILE RUN—Won by Watson, Indiana; Currell, Minnesota, second; Kemp, Indiana, third; Seller, Minnesota, fourth. Time, 9:31.2.

70 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Scheifley, Minnesota; Black, Chicago, second; Brooks, Chicago, third; Crouch, Indiana, fourth. Time, :8.2.

POLE VAULT—Hess, Minnesota, and Beecher, Indiana, tied for first; Divich, Indiana, third; Birney, Chicago; Mithun, Minnesota; Hollingsworth, Purdue, and Jones, Purdue, tied for fourth. Winning height, 13 feet 4 inches.

ONE MILE RELAY—Won by Indiana [Streicher, Parks, Martich, Fuqua]; Northwestern, second; Chicago, third; Purdue, fourth. Time, 3.26.6.

HIGH JUMP—Won by Beecher, Indiana; Hackle, Minnesota, and Read, Northwestern, tied for second; Mandelbaum, Northwestern, and Roberts, Chicago, tied for fourth. Height, 6 feet 1 inch.

MICHIGAN IS FAVORED.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 4.—[Special.]—Michigan, Illinois and Ohio State will compete here tomorrow night in a track meet which is expected to be an indication of the outcome of the Western conference meet a week hence. Michigan is favored to win, chiefly because it appears strongest in the relays which will be good for 10 points each.

HUSBAND BITES, SAYS SWIMMER ASKING DIVORCE

White Plains, N. Y., March 4.—[Special.]—When a man bites a dog, that's news. And when a bridegroom bites his bride——

Anyway, biting as a cause for separation was advanced today by Mrs. Helen Meany Balfe, former Olympic diving champion, in an action brought in Supreme court of Westchester county against Harry R. Balfe, wealthy Manhattan food broker.

The Balfes were married Sept. 25, 1930.

Chuck Wiggins Loses $200 Decision to Court

BADGER COUNCIL MUST ACT TODAY ON NEW COACH

Or Regents Will Do It Next Week.

Madison, Wis., March 4.—[Special.]—The Wisconsin athletic council will meet tomorrow in a final effort to name a football coach. The board of regents will meet Tuesday and Wednesday of next week and if the council cannot agree on the man to recommend, it is probable that the regents will take charge of the matter.

For weeks the council has been divided regarding the successor to Glenn Thistlethwaite, resigned. The three alumni members, H. G. Marks, Chicago; Walter Alexander, Milwaukee, and Jerry Riordan, Madison, have voted solidly for Dr. Clarence Spears, Oregon coach. They have been supported by Harold Smedal, Madison, class of 1932, and member of the crew. Smedal is the student representative on the council.

Faculty Opposes Spears.

The six faculty members, Prof. J. F. A. Pyre, chairman; Otto Kowalke, Scott H. Goodnight, J. G. Moore, E. R. Schmidt, and Business Manager J. D. Phillips, have voted against the appointment of Spears.

The faculty members are attempting a compromise with Chet Wynne, Auburn coach, as the man most acceptable to all concerned. Others who have been mentioned are Jimmy Phelan, Washington; Harry Mehre, Georgia, and Ray Morrison, Southern Methodist.

The regents favor securing a coach of national reputation. They feel that only such a coach can save the situation at Wisconsin after a number of lean years. The matter of salary is of second consideration to the regents, the money for the coaching salary coming from the athletic department receipts.

Egstad Leads Opposition.

That there will be a final battle by the four favoring the candidacy of Dr. Spears was certain today, with Herman Egstad, Wisconsin alumni secretary, leading the move for Spears.

"The university council owes it to the student body and the alumni to secure a football coach of national reputation," Egstad said. "I will gladly support a man of the caliber of Dr. Spears, present Oregon coach. He has been successful wherever he has coached. Our first game with Marquette in 1932 would more than pay the additional salary necessary to bring him here," Egstad continued.

Greg Kabat, captain-elect of the football team, has written a number of letters to the regents individually, stating that the boys who will represent Wisconsin next fall want a coach with a national reputation.

Sundt Still in Running.

In the meantime, Guy Sundt, Wisconsin backfield assistant, remains in the running. The council has adopted the attitude that if no coach of national renown can be secured Sundt will be named.

Sundt, however, has grown a bit tired of these repeated statements, and today said he would not consider the position unless at a considerable increase in salary.

This was a blow to the council, which felt that Sundt would be willing to accept the job at the same salary he was paid as assistant to Glenn Thistlethwaite.

Life's a Bowl of Cherries as Red, Red Robins Drill

BY BOB BECKER.

Judging by the activity of big flocks of robins which we saw in Florida early in the week there's a bunch of these populuar birds coming north well drilled to pick cherries and other fruit when the northern summer has ripened the crop.

One morning just before leaving Florida for Chicago we found hundreds of robins massed in palm groves along Myrtle creek on the west coast, and the way these chirping, busy migrants were tearing into the clusters of palm berries at the tops of the palms augured ill for northern fruit crops. We could hear the birds banging around in the dried fronds as if a banquet were in progress. Every tree gave the diners excellent practice.

Already this popular songster, which is welcomed in the north every spring, has proved quite a problem to many Florida residents because of its strawberry appetite.

When the big flocks of vagabond robins [which loaf in Florida during the winter] locate a ripening strawberry patch, the way the birds gobble up the small berries gives the poor truck gardener a real headache. A few weeks ago when we were heading for the Florida keys to get on speaking terms with the famed bonefish we heard in intimate detail just what an awful nuisance a good bird "gone wrong" can be.

In one part of north central Florida the flocks of robins ganged on the strawberries so seriously that the owners all but had to call out the militia. In fact, the harassed truck gardners did establish guards in the fields to keep the birds from taking the fruits of hard labor. Boys armed with guns of all kinds had to keep moving in the garden in order to rout the robins or there would have been no berries to go to market.

The other morning when we watched the robins attack the clusters of palm berries we apparently intruded into a regular bird congress, which halted our bass fishing because it was so interesting.

It was a bright hot morning on the stream. Rounding a bend almost obscured by the big oak tree draped with Spanish moss we began to hear the rustling of the robins in the palms.

They were having a great feast. Then several cardinals started to whistle in high shrill tones. Behind this concert from some trees beyond the creek we could hear the gurgling, musical songs of mocking birds. The only discordant note in the setting was a cormorant. Somehow or other this ugly fish eater "didn't belong."

EARLIER CHICAGO.

DEAR WAKE: Under the terms of an original ordinance passed Aug. 25, 1851, designating four public grounds, famous old Union Park on the west side, still existing, was bought and later dedicated March 6, 1854. Here is the ordinance:

Section 1. Be it ordained by the common council of the city of Chicago, that the block of ground known as Block 39 in the original town, upon which the courthouse is erected, shall hereafter be known and designated as "Jefferson square."

The public ground on the east side of Michigan avenue from the north side of Randolph street to the south side of Lot 8 in Block 31 in fractional Section 15 shall hereafter be designated as "Lake park."

The public ground in Fort Dearborn addition, between Randolph and Washington streets and west of Michigan avenue, shall hereafter be known as "Dearborn park."

The ground purchased of S. S. Hayes, W. S. Johnston Jr., William S. Davidson, Isaac Shelby Jr., and S. L. Baker, except Lake street on the north, Reuben street [now Ashland] on the west, Warren street on the south, and two diagonal streets on the east, shall hereafter be known and designated as "Union park."

Section 2. No person shall play at ball, cricket, or at any other game or play whatever in any of the inclosed public parks or grounds in this city under the penalty of $5 for every offense. BEN W. ALPINER.

Trial Wanted.

Dishpan hands and such;
I hate washing, ironing clothes,
Things like that, so much.

Music soft, I dote upon,
Paris frocks and hats,
Fancy dogs with pedigrees,
Suave gentlemen with spats.

Maybe if I had those things
I wouldn't crave them so—
I'd like to try it for a while,
Then I'd really know!

Boilermakers and Purple.

Purdue and Northwestern will repeat in basketball tonight a final game similar to that of the football season except that conditions are reversed. On this occasion Purdue is the strong favorite, who must win to gain the Big Ten title, while Northwestern, by a victory, would emerge in a tie with Purdue for first place. In a previous game Purdue won by a wide margin on its home floor.

Too Many Free Throws.

Harve: Too many basketball games are being ruined by the free throw rule. As a remedy, I suggest the rule be retained only on fouls committed while a player is shooting from beneath the basket.

On fouls outside the free throw line, let the offended player receive the ball on the side of the court like an out-of-bounds play. On fouls inside the free throw line, except directly under the basket, let the player offended receive the ball out of bounds under his own basket.

WALSH, GOLF PRO, NEAR RECOVERY FROM CAR CRASH

Frank Walsh, golf professional at the Bryn Mawr Country club, who was hurt in an automobile accident near Phoenix, Ariz., several weeks ago, was reported well on the way to complete recovery yesterday by physicians who have been attending him at his home, 6620 Normal boulevard. Walsh, who suffered a basic skull fracture, arrived in Chicago two days ago.

Kearns Attorneys Agree on Divorce and $12,000

Jack Kearns, fight manager, and his wife, Legana, ended their two year marital battle in Cook county courts yesterday when attorneys agreed to a divorce and a cash settlement of $12,000 for Mrs. Kearns. The divorce hearing was continued until March 14 in expectation that Mrs. Kearns, who is ill of pneumonia in New York, will be able to come to Chicago and ask Circuit Judge Daniel P. Trude for a default decree on grounds of desertion.

Michigan Is Swim Victor Over Purple

Winning six first places out of eight events, Michigan's swimming team defeated Northwestern in Patten pool last night, 44 to 31. It was the first defeat of the season for Northwestern and established the Wolverines as a strong favorite to retain its Big Ten championship at the conference meet next week.

Johnny Schmieler, Michigan's all around swimmer, provided the only record breaking performance when he outstroked Merton Wilcox, Northwestern sophomore, in the 220 yard free style in 2:15.1. The former record of 2:16 was held by Osborne of Yale. Schmieler defeated Wilcox by two yards.

Wilcox Gets Nine Points.

Wilcox scored nine points for high scoring honors. The former Schurz High school star tied for first place in the 100 yard dash with his teammate, Highland; placed second in the 220 yard swim, and swam anchor man on Northwestern's 400 yard relay team. Schmieler was second with eight points.

Two sophomores, Drysdale of Michigan and Murphy of Northwestern, hooked up in a heated battle in the 150 yard back stroke, the former touching out the Purple star by inches. Drysdale's time was 1:40.3, only one second removed from the national intercollegiate record.

Purple Poloists Win, 7-0.

COLLINS, APPLEBY CONTEST FOR 18.2 CUE TITLE TODAY

French Lick, Ind., March 4.—[Special.]—Percy N. Collins of Chicago tied for the lead by defeating Dale H. Goslin of Los Angeles, 300 to 239, in 32 innings in the national amateur 18.2 balk line championship tournament this afternoon. Collins came from behind with a run of 78 and after getting in front never surrendered the lead. Goslin's high run was 47.

Edgar T. Appleby of New York, defending champion, moved into a tie with Collins at four games won and one lost by beating Monrad C. Wallgren of Everett, Wash., Pacific coast champion, in the only game played tonight. Appleby won, 300 to 133 in 27 innings, having a high run of 51 to Wallgren's 27. Appleby and Collins will meet tomorrow afternoon in the deciding game.

In the first afternoon game Ray V. Fessenden of Madison, Wis., the western champion, triumphed over Arie Schaap of Chicago, 300 to 177, in 28 innings.

St. Patrick and St. Mel went into a tie for the north section heavyweight basketball championship in the Chicago Catholic High School league last night when St. Mel defeated St. Patrick, 25 to 24, at St. Patrick's gymnasium. A playoff will be held Tuesday night to determine which team will represent the section in the finals next Friday.

St. Patrick, which was in the first place by one game, led until the final minutes of the contest, the score being 24 to 23. Then Hughes, St. Mel guard, sank a long shot to give St. Mel the victory.

Lights Also in Tie.

A tie for the lightweight championship also was created and a playoff also will be held between De Paul and St. Mel. De Paul ended its season with a 26 to 16 victory over St. Michael, while St. Mel ponies defeated St. Patrick, 31 to 27.

In the south section, Leo heavyweights defeated St. Ignatius, 35 to 22. By the victory Leo is assured of a tie for the sectional title.

Crane Beats Roosevelt.

Crane Tech lightweights reached the final round for the Chicago Public High School league championship by eliminating Roosevelt, the last north section team in the title series, 26 to 21, at Marshall gymnasium. Crane will meet the winner of the Tilden-Phillips contest, which will be played today at White City, for the league title.

Bowen and Calumet will clash in a heavyweight semi-final game at White City today. In the other semi-final contest Marshall will face Crane at the 132d Infantry armory, Rockwell and Madison streets. Marshall holds one victory over the Crane heavyweight squad, handing it a 21 to 20 defeat for the west section title last week.

Morton upset New Trier heavies, 38 to 22, at Cicero. As a result of the defeat New Trier now shares the Suburban league championship with Oak Park, which defeated Proviso, 30 to 18. Each scored eight victories while losing two. Morton captured the league lightweight title, defeating New Trier, 34 to 14.

CITIES SLUMBER AS HINTERLAND DEMANDS ROADS

BY HAL FOUST.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 4.—[Special.]—The governor's road commission, closing three days of public hearings this afternoon, had received petitions for approximately $75,000,000 worth of rural pavements. Although about 4,000 men, mainly farmers and local politicians, appeared before the commission, only about a fourth of the state's area was represented. So it is estimated that the highway demands of the hinterland will exceed $200,000,000.

DAVID HUNTER. [Tribune Photo.]

The larger cities of the state, including Chicago, which pays probably 75 per cent of the local highway bill, have not listed their needs with the commission. From a through traffic viewpoint, these municipal connections and extensions of highways are the weak links of the state system.

City Motorists Unorganized.

The farmers are banding together under leadership of minor politicians to continue the concentration of highway expenditures on rural roads. The city motorists are unorganized. The city property owners, while refusing to pay new special assessments to accommodate through traffic, have not been represented before the commission which will report to the 1933 general assembly recommending the future course of state road construction.

Representative David Hunter of Rockford, chairman, announced that further public hearings will be held here on March 15 and 16.

Justify City Arteries.

The Chicago Plan commission has made studies showing that the city's growth will be stifled by traffic congestion unless work is started on urban superhighways with continuous grade separations as soon as credits and business return to normal. By 1950, according to the planners, Chicago should have a fan of these superhighways extending in all directions from the loop to the perimeter of the built up area.

The total cost of this Chicago system probably would approach a billion dollars and, according to experts, the expenditure could be justified economically, by its benefits to vehicular commerce, easier than the farmers can justify their demands for concrete where gravel would accommodate the light traffic. The needs in most other Illinois cities are proportionate to those of Chicago.

FUNERAL HELD FOR VICTIM OF RARE DISEASE

Funeral services for Mrs. Andrew Nelson, who died on Wednesday in her home in Norwood Park after a six months' battle against the rare Addison's disease, were conducted yesterday at 3918 Irving Park boulevard. Burial was in Irving Park Boulevard cemetery.

Mrs. Nelson, the mother of six children, was stricken in September. She became a center of interest in the medical world as science fought to save her life at Billings Memorial hospital. Cortin, a rare and costly serum, obtained from certain glands of cattle, was rushed here by airplane from the University of Buffalo. The patient improved with the administration of the extract. Later she was removed to her home.

Mrs. Nelson is survived by her husband and her children, Peter, Irving, Marie, Jane, Eleanor and Andrew Jr.

YOUTHS IDENTIFIED AS BANDITS.

Billings, Mont., March 4.—(AP)—Plenty Coos, chief of the Crow tribe who represented the American Indians at the burial of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington cemetery, died today at his reservation home at Pryor, south of here. For many months Chief Plenty Coos had been ill, blind, and crippled. He was 85 years old.

Known as a chieftain particularly skilfull in negotiations with the government, Plenty Coos was often the central figure in ceremonies honoring celebrities coming to this section. Among the notables he inducted into the Crow tribe were Marshal Foch, Vice President Curtis, former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, and Maj. Gen. James G. Harbord.

Several years ago the chief gave his home and the surrounding forty acres to the United States for use as a public park and as a perpetual reminder of the friendship between the tribe and the white race.

WOMAN TURNS SLEUTH; STICKUP PAIR IS CAPTURED

The observing eyes of Mrs. Dorothy Dillon, 4208 Montrose avenue, wife of an electrician for the A. D. T. watch service, led to the arrest yesterday of two bandits, Morris B. Omens, 20 years old, of 920 North Hamlin avenue and James Abena, 19, of 1442 Larrabee street.

She noticed two men holding up George Rosenthal, 5329 Dorchester avenue, clerk, in the hat shop at 46 South Clark street. She followed them to the second floor at 29 South La Salle street, where the A. D. T. for which her husband works has offices. Then she summoned Harry Paulson, an operative. With several other operatives he arrested the men. The prisoners identified themselves as Omens and Abena and were identified by Rosenthal, who said they stole $55 from him.

Another robbery victim, Morris Levin, a haberdashery store owner at 107 North Wells street, identified Omens as the man who earlier had taken $74 from him, but given $50 back. Levin said he surprised Omens with his own gun a moment later, recovered the $24 balance, but let Omens go.

A. T. BOWEN DIES; LEAVES MILLION TO PROTECT BANK

Delphi, Ind., March 4.—[Special.]—Abner T. Bowen, 80, millionaire and head of A. T. Bowen & Co., pioneer private bank here, died today at the home of his brother, E. W. Bowen, from pneumonia. His business associates said he had left his entire fortune of more than one million dollars to safeguard depositors and that he had requested that present employés and policies of the bank remain in force.

His father established the A. H. Bowen banl. in 1837. He organized the A. T. Bowen bank in 1880, and also organized a bank under that name in New York in 1893, which he operated until six years ago.

In 1912 he organized an A. T. Bowen bank at Logansport which later became the Farmers and Merchants bank of that city. He organized a second bank there which later was sold to the Citizens Loan and Trust company.

Ira Seymour, Publisher, Dies at Home in Batavia

Ira E. Seymour, publisher, and business leader of the Fox river valley, died of pneumonia yesterday at his home in Batavia. He had been ill for several days. Mr. Seymour, who was 46 years old, was president of the Household Publishing company at Batavia, secretary treasurer of the Campana corporation, makers of Italian balm; president of the Batavia school board, and head of the Community hospital at Geneva. Surviving Mr. Seymour are his widow and two sons. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock tocorrow. His Masonic lodge will have charge.

WIFE IS KILLED, ENGINEER HURT IN AUTO CRASH

Woman Is Hit by Two Cars; Dies.

Mrs. Florence French, 54 years old, wife of Charles A. French, 293 Blackhawk road, Riverside, a consulting engineer for the International Harvester company, was killed last night in a collision between their car and another machine at 147th street and Broadway, Harvey. Mr. French was slightly injured.

The Frenchs were driving north in Broadway, directly behind the machine of Claude Boland, 15425 Myrtle avenue, Harvey, a special delivery carrier for the postoffice, when Boland turned suddenly into 147th street. Mr. French was unable to veer in time and the front of his car struck the rear of Boland's machine a deflecting blow and swerved to the side of the road and against a pole.

Police took Mr. French and his wife to the Ingalls Memorial hospital, where the wife was pronounced dead. Police are holding Boland.

Two Cars Kill Woman.

Two automobiles struck and killed Mrs. Herman Dubbert, 37 years old, 6649 Sohl street, Hammond, Ind., last night, and the drivers of both cars sped on without stopping. Mrs. Dubbert was crossing the intersection of Calumet and Standard avenues, Hammond, when the first machine struck her, knocking her into the path of the second. Both automobiles were driven south in Calumet avenue at a high rate of speed. The victim, who was a sister of Detective Fred Lute of the Hammond police department, was pronounced dead in St. Margaret's hospital.

The death of Mrs. French and two others in Cook county yesterday increased the toll since Jan. 1 to 192. The other victims:

Calogero Milazo, 67 years old, 216 West 23d place. Died at the county hospital from internal injuries sustained yesterday when he was struck by the auto of a hit and run motorist. He was found in the rear of 2019 West 19th street.

Frank Manske, 53 years old, 811 South State street, a tailor. Killed at State and Polk streets by a newspaper delivery truck. The driver was not held.

A coroner's jury yesterday exonerated Policeman James Smith of Chicago Heights of blame for the death of Mrs. Arline Coombs, 29 years old, of Springfield, Mo., who lost her life as the result of an accident while she was riding in Smith's car on Feb. 15.

Smith testified that the automobile turned over in Butterfield creek near Chicago Heights. He was injured and Mrs. Coombs was knocked unconscious. After dragging her out of the car he went for help, leaving her on the bank. When he returned with help it was found that Mrs. Coombs had rolled into the creek and drowned.

BARTELS, SCREEN COMEDIAN, DIES; SEND BODY HERE

Hollywood, Cal., March 4. — [Special.]—Louis John Bartels, stage and screen comedian, died tonight. The cause of death must be determined by an autopsy.

Police Surgeon Sauer found the actor dead at the house on responding to a call from Charles Bartels, the father. Sauer said he had treated Bartels several times recently for acute alcoholism.

The body will be taken to Chicago, where Bartel's wife, Martha, is appearing on the stage.

Bartels was 36 years of age and a native of Bunker Hill, Ill. On the stage since his youth, he achieved fame in New York about six years ago in "The Showoff."

Funeral Services Held for Mrs. David Landes

Funeral services were held yesterday at Keithsburg, Ill., for Mrs. David Landes, mother of Charles H. MacDowell, president of the Armour Fertilizer works, and Dr. G. A. MacDowell. Mrs. Landes, who was 84 years old, was born at Lewistown, Ill., and spent most of her life in that vicinity. Recently she had lived in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charlotte Abrams of Los Angeles, where she died on Monday.

SUBCOMMITTEE CALLS ON SENATE TO BAR BANKHEAD

Washington, D. C., March 4.—(AP)—A senate elections subcommittee found today that Senator John H. Bankhead of Alabama was not elected in 1930 and that his seat should be declared vacant.

The Bankhead-Heflin contest subcommittee divided along party lines on the report prepared by Chairman Hastings, holding that the election was fraudulent because of widespread violation of election laws.

Democratic members of the committee, Bratton of New Mexico and George of Georgia, will submit a minority report.

The Republicans who agreed to the report, in an executive session, were Watson, Republican leader, and Glenn of Illinois, in addition to Hastings.

The subcommittee report will be submitted to the full committee and must be approved by it before reaching the senate.

Hastings in the majority report, which was agreed to by the Republicans, held that Bankhead not only was not elected but that his nomination was invalid because of an illegal primary.

The Democrats said in their minority view that they would take a directly contrary position.

"We take the position," Bratton said, "that the irregularities do not affect the result of the election; that they were mere irregularities and that Bankhead received a majority of the legal votes cast."

Pair Attempts Holdup in View of Police; One Shot

Anthony Coduti, 24 years old, of 1110 Polk street, was shot in the right hand early this morning by police after he and a companion, who escaped, allegedly tried to hold up Frank Kaiser, 47, attendant at the oil station at 3024 South Halsted street. The attempted holdup was witnessed by Policemen Edward Robinson and John Heeman of the Deering street station, who fired on the pair, and Kaiser was shot.

ROBBERS SLUG AND BIND AGED COUPLE IN HOME

Two young robbers slugged and robbed George S. Wedge, 77 years old, a retired farmer, in his home in Antioch yesterday. The pair escaped with $20 and two gold watches. Mrs. Wedge, who is 75 years old, opened the door when the men said that they wanted to use the telephone. Wedge was in bed. One of the robbers walked to the telephone and pulled the cords out. "We know you have a lot of money here," he said. "Hand it over."

Wedge appeared in the doorway. One of the outlaws slugged him to the floor with a blackjack. Then the two went to a small safe, which was unlocked, and began to sort out the contents on a table nearby. Wedge managed to slip a wallet, containing $300, to his wife, and she slid it under a chair cushion.

The robbers bound the hands and feet of the couple and fled in a car. Wedge and his wife were released by James Watson, a hired man.

HOLD TWO TO U. S. GRAND JURY.

INSULL STOCKS DECLINE AGAIN ON MART HERE

Report of Selling by Banks Denied.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Insistent liquidation in the shares of the Insull operating and holding companies yesterday proved a drag for stocks on the Chicago exchange and the market generally finished below Thursday's closing level.

The selling of the Insull shares came through a number of brokerage houses, particularly several that have sponsored the issues in recent years. It was ascribed to heavy liquidation of customers whose margin accounts have been impaired by the long and drastic decline in the Insull investment and holding company issues, coupled with the recent sharp drop in the shares of the operating companies. With this necessitous selling breeding still other liquidation, the load became too heavy for the market to stand and prices broke sharply all along the line.

Report of Bank Sales Denied.

Reports abroad that the banking interests which hold these stocks as collateral against loans to the two Insull investment trusts were liquidating part of the loans were denied in well informed quarters. There is approximately 242,500 shares of Commonwealth Edison pledged at New York and Chicago banks which represented the total holdings of the two trusts in that stock. This, together with the 57,987 shares of Public Service of Northern Illinois common, which is also pledged, is held intact, it is understood.

The banks also hold 3,646,671 shares of Middle West Utilities common as collateral. Corporation Securities and Insull Utility also held on Dec. 31 410,430 shares of Middle West common which was unpledged.

Edison Closes at 86.

Edison, which only a few days ago broke through par for the first time since 1908, was quoted yesterday as low as 85¾ and closed at 86. Trading in the issue was the heaviest since the present down swing began with 7,875 appearing on the tape. Only 225 shares of Public Service common came into the market, but in the absence of support the price dropped 7¾ points, to 83¼.

Middle West Utilities common turned over in large blocks and sold at a record low of 2¼, at which price it closed today. Transactions in the issue approached 48,500 shares. Middle West preferred broke 4½, to 10½. The uncertainty of the outlook for Insull Utility debentures was reflected on the tape as the issue dropped to 9⅝. As general unsecured obligations of an investment trust which has suffered terrific loss, the debentures are now selling at less than 10 cents on the dollar.

Bullish operations in other securities were effectively checked by the sick conditions of the Insull shares. Some issues displayed mild buoyancy during the day, but nearly all reacted before the close and finished lower. Except in the utility group net changes were meager.

A. N. Williams Is Elected Western Indiana President

Albert N. Williams has been elected president of the Chicago and Western Indiana and Chicago Belt Line railroads. He succeeds E. H. Lee, who retired at his own request and was voted the title of "president retired" by the directors of both roads. Mr. Williams will assume his new office on April 1. He has been general superintendent of the Soo line.

1932 OUTLOOK BRIGHTER FOR ROCK ISLAND

Savings and Higher Rates to Aid Road.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Although the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad operated at a loss last year and was forced to discontinue dividends, there is a fair prospect that it will more than earn its dividends this year. The annual report, made public last night by Charles Hayden, chairman, and J. E. Gorman, president, shows an operating deficit of $386,544 and a final deficit of $4,253,427 for 1931, which compared with net income of $7,700,228 for 1930.

Messrs. Hayden and Gorman estimate that the 10 per cent wage reduction accepted by employés on Feb. 1 and salary reductions of officials will total about $4,500,000 a year. In addition, the increase in freight rates granted by the interstate commerce commission is expected to produce about $2,000,000 a year, based on 1931 traffic, while restoration of grain rates will amount to about $1,500,000 and adjustments in live stock rates should produce an additional $400,000 a year.

Thus, if freight traffic this year is no worse than last year, the Rock Island should benefit by approximately $3,400,000 by lower wages and higher rates, which would be nearly twice as much as the 1931 deficit. The difference would be more than enough to account for dividends, which totaled $3,456,000 for the first half of 1931 and then were discontinued.

Will Unify Properties.

Another bit of news contained in the report is the announcement that the Rock Island proposes to unify all of the properties comprising the system into one property, all owned by the operating company. This is termed the "most constructive matter we now have before us.

"The purpose of this unification is to provide a foundation for financing in 1934, when the first and refunding and two other moregages mature," the report explains. "If the plan is consummated, the new mortgage to be executed in 1934 will be a direct lien on all the railway properties of the system and the railway company's corporate and financial structure will be much simplified. In addition, we hope to eliminate the expense of maintaining separate corporate organizations and, in some instances, separate operating organizations. The matter will be submitted to the annual meeting of stockholders on May 5."

The report says that gross revenues for 1931 were $99,069,563, which was the lowest since 1917, and approximately $24,000,000 below 1930. Part of the shrinkage was attributed to increasing competition of motor trucks and loss of passenger traffic to the automobile.

MONTGOMERY WARD

George B. Everitt, who has been president of Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago mail order and chain store concern, resigned from that office yesterday at the annual stockholders' meeting. He was succeeded by Sewell L. Avery, who was made chairman of the board of directors last November. Mr. Avery also will retain the title of chairman. Mr. Everitt was reelected as a director and Thomas P. Riordan, assistant secretary, was elected a director to succeed the late F. Edson White.

The retirement of Mr. Everitt as president of Montgomery Ward had been expected in La Salle street, as the active management of the company has been largely in the hands of Mr. Avery since he joined the executive staff.

"In common with all business, our January and February results have been quite adverse," Mr. Avery explained to the stockholders. "Our situation seems to be, everything considered, on about the same percentage basis as exists in other fields. Within the last ten days, however, there has been a noticeable improvement in both the mail order and chain store situation. The change is of such dimensions that it is going to improve noticeably the February showing, which nevertheless will not be good.

Tells of Confidence.

"While earnings have been bad, there has been nowhere any reason for anything but confidence in the soundness of this great institution. As the result of the stress of business which we have had to meet, improvements have been evolved and are about to be put into effect."

Mr. Avery explained that revisions of store rentals and locations are going on. About 40 stores, mostly in the south, have been closed and a few more will be closed. The majority of the original retail store leases expire next year. Later in the day the company made public its monthly sales figures. Sales for February totaled $11,963,366, compared with $15,244,975 in February, 1931, a decrease of 21.53 per cent. Sales for the two months this year totaled $23,991,420, compared with $31,865,213 for the same period last year, a decline of 24.71 per cent.

West Needs Larger Citrus Fruit Market

BY SCRUTATOR.

Brisk demand and good prices for citrus fruits in recent years have encouraged producers to plant thousands of additional acres of orange and grapefruit groves.

The effect of this expansion has not yet been felt, because trees do not begin to produce until they are five years old and full production is not attained until they are fifteen years old.

But there are enough of these youngsters coming along to warrant the belief that permanently high prices for oranges and grapefruit are out of the question unless the rate of increase in consumption can be stepped up considerably.

Unless this is done the orange and grapefruit growers may follow the California grape producers around to the farm board's back door for a handout before many more seasons pass.

Meet Harder Competition.

"It would appear that per capita consumption of winter oranges has about been reached," M. B. Rounds, Los Angeles county farm adviser, said recently.

"Therefore, with the competition of increased crops from Florida, other states, and foreign countries, it may be necessary to accept lower prices than the average for the last several years."

Paul H. Armstrong, general manager of the California Citrus Growers exchange, the other day in a talk to Arizona grapefruit orchardists at Phoenix, urged the adoption of progressive advertising and a concentrated sales campaign.

"We must advertise," he said. "We must maintain a superior product. We must encourage new uses, such as the use of grapefruit at other meals than breakfast.

"The present per capita consumption of grapefruit in the nation is six per year. If we can increase that by just on fruit per person per year we will have created a market for 3,000 more acres.

"There is no use denying that grapefruit is in a sense a competitor of the orange, and that pushing one fruit may be to a certain extent at the expense of the other, but these things will adjust themselves automatically as new markets are opened for the fruit of the southwest."

More Grown Each Year.

During the last ten years the combined production of grapefruit and oranges has averaged an increase of about 6 per cent per year. Last fall the number of trees in groves was about double the number in 1920.

The 1930 census disclosed that 69 per cent of the trees were of "bearing age." Many of these, however, were young trees that were producing some fruit, but not in paying quantities.

According to a more recent estimate, only about one-third of the orange and grapefruit trees in the country have reached or are approaching the age of full production.

Some groves have been planted in new districts where the growing of citrus fruits is more or less experimental. Variations in the weather will affect crops. Nevertheless, it is becoming apparent that rapidly increasing production will have a definite effect upon prices received by growers.

The export market can hardly be relied upon to absorb larger surpluses of American citrus fruits. Foreign countries, too, are increasing production. Australia, South Africa, Palestine, Egypt, Italy, and Spain are leading producers.

Favors Empire's Oranges.

Canada last June placed a duty of approximately 75 cents per box on American oranges, but left oranges from British dominions on the free list. Trial shipments to Canada have since been made from South Africa and Australia.

The lemon growers do not face the same difficulties. Lemon acreage, practically all in California, has increased little in the last decade, and the United States still imports an average of about 900,000 boxes of lemons from Italy each year.

Week's New Bond Offers in New York $40,506,000

New York, March 4.—(AP)—New bond offerings in this district in the last week totaled $40,506,000, compared with $5,872,000 in the preceding week and $157,690,044 in the same week last year.

UNITED STATES RUBBER REPORTS $9,473,404 DEFICIT

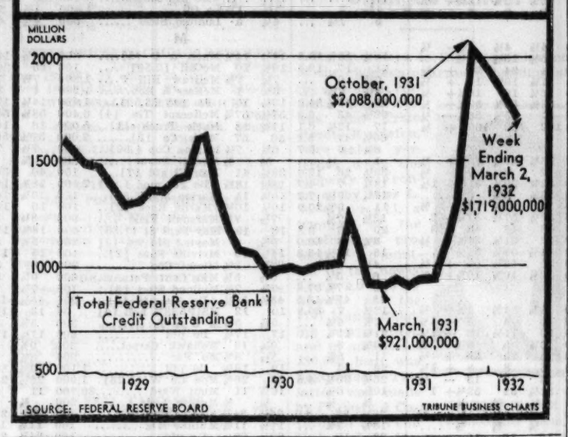
New York, Mar. 4.—(AP)—The United States Rubber Co. was able to report a relatively more favorable earnings statement for 1931 today, than it did for 1932, as the result of a more stable rubber market, and consequently less drastic inventory writedowns.

After all charges and adjustments, the company reported a net deficit for 1931 of $9,473,404, as reduced from a deficit of $18,063,799 for 1930. The smaller deficit for 1931, however, was after crediting $2,034,149 representing a saving on the redemption of bonds and notes through being able to purchase them in the depressed market at levels well under their redemption prices, and after crediting $2,160,641, as an adjustment of prior reserves.

The net profit from operations, before interest on bonds and depreciation, was $5,523,594, as against $6,505,672 in 1930. Inventory writeoffs for 1931 were only $2,716,206, as reduced from the drastic inventory loss of $11,083,799 in the previous year. Charges for depreciation of plants, however, were $9,672,924, or about $2,300,000 larger than for the year before. foreign exchange losses amounted to $1,214,497.

Total sales for 1931 $114,132,054, as reduced from $157,074,760. The company reported as of Dec. 31 current assets of $62,605,969, of which $13,181,028 was in cash. Current liabilities were only $7,625,033.

FEDERAL RESERVE CREDIT HAS BEEN CUT NEARLY FOUR HUNDRED MILLION DOLLARS SINCE LAST FALL



COLOMBIA HAS DEFICIT AND OWN RELIEF CORP.

Other Latin Republics Feel Pinch.

BOGOTA, Colombia, March 4.—(AP)—Colombia's treasury deficit for the fiscal year 1931 was $9,700,000. The 1932 budget will cover the difference. The bank of the republic lowered the rediscount rate of agricultural loans today from 5 per cent to 4 per cent. Six weeks ago the rate was cut from 6 per cent to 5 per cent.

Silvestre Samper Uribe, distinguished banker, has been appointed manager of the new Colombian Credit corporation whose function will be to liquidate debts owed to the national banks. Esteban Jaramillo is chairman of the board.

Gold production this year in the Antioquia district will reach $7,000,000, the operators estimate. That is $2,000,000 more than last year. Most of it will be held by the National bank under the decree prohibiting gold export.

San Salvador Suspends.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of El Salvador, March 4.—(AP)—The government today temporarily suspended payments on El Salvador's foreign debt, due to decreased revenue and the necessity to attend first to maintaining forces to "combat communism."

The country's debt to the United States is $12,900,000 and to Great Britain $4,469,000. Dr. Miguel Tomas, the new minister of finance, said he intended to resume payment of the debt shortly.

Emergency in Ecuador.

QUITO, Ecuador, March 4.—(AP)—The government today issued an emergency decree suspending for 90 days all payments between banks on obligations that already have been contracted for.

At the same time the government representatives were withdrawn from the directorate of the Central bank and national funds, including those destined for the service of the foreign debt, were removed from the institution.

"This emergency decree," the government announcement said, "was dictated by the situation which was created when the directorate of the Central bank refused to lend the government 15,000,000 sucres [normally about $7,000,000]. The decree will be submitted for the consideration of the next congress."

FRANCO-ITALIAN TRADE COMPACT NEARLY SETTLED

ROME, March 4.—(AP)—France and Italy today signed an operating agreement for the regulation of commerce pending the completion of a new treaty. Simultaneously Italy and Austria signed a convention facilitating the transportation of credits and other phases of their commercial relations.

The Italo-French accord will replace a commercial treaty of 1922 which was denounced by France Dec. 17, 1931. Representatives of the two nations will meet at a date still unfixed for the purpose of formulating a new permanent treaty.

Variation in the exchange rate and the changing economic situation in both countries were understood to be the reasons for the denunciation of the old pact.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and the ambassadors of France and Austria put their signatures to the two accords.

The Austrian convention laid the groundwork for an Italo-Austrian commission to regulate rail shipments and for the creation of a permanent credit organization of mixed Austro-Italian capital to aid exports.

Barnsdall Corporation Has $3,268,637 Loss in '31

Barnsdall corporation yesterday reported a net loss for 1931 of $3,268,637 after interest, taxes, depreciation, depletion, intangible development costs, and other charges. This contrasts with net income of $5,130,890 in 1930, equal to $2.27 a share on the combined class A and B stocks outstanding at the end of the year. The current position of the company was sharply improved.

Leipsic Trade Fair Plans Pushed Despite Troubles

SECURITY EXCHANGES INVESTIGATION VOTED; SHORT SELLING FIRST

Washington, D. C., March 4.—[Special.]—A "thorough and complete" investigation of the securities exchanges of the United States was ordered by the senate today when it approved the resolution of inquiry submitted by the senate banking and currency committee.

The committee will meet next Tuesday to draw up organization plans. Though a final decision has yet to be reached, it is probable that the committee will first take up the question of short sales and progress from there into the broad investigation provided for by the resolution. It is expected that the full banking and currency committee will begin the investigation, with a subcommittee to be named later to carry on the job after the groundwork has been laid.

The resolution came onto the senate floor today from the committee on audit and control, where the $50,000 authorized to be taken from the contingent fund of the senate was approved.

KRUPP STEEL REPORTS LOSSES; BUSINESS DULL

ESSEN, Germany, March 4.—(AP)—A total loss of 13,415,000 marks [$3,179,455] was shown today in the report of the Krupp steel interests for the year ended Oct. 30, 1931.

Of this sum 9,000,000 marks were covered from the reserves and the remainder was carried forward.

Directors expressed the opinion that revival of the world's economic life and a restoration of confidence can be expected only after "definite cancellation of international war burdens."

All products from coal to steel have slumped heavily, the report said, and this drop continued even into the first quarter of the new business year.

Road Would Use U.S. Loan to Pay Part of State Tax

Bismarck, N. D., March 4.—(AP)—An agreement whereby the Soo Line railroad will pay at once 75 per cent of the taxes levied against it in 32 North Dakota counties was reached in federal court here today and was approved by Judge John Sanborn of St. Paul. Attorneys for the road said it has borrowed $450,000 from the Federal Reconstruction Finance corporation and is prepared to pay $458,000. That is 75 per cent of the taxes assessed against it. The road is asking a tax reduction.

VALUE EASTERN RAIL MERGERS AT 9 BILLIONS

Hearings Started on Trunk Line Plan.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—(AP)—A nine billion dollar figure—the estimated value of the railroads which seek to merge under the four system plan for the east—was tossed into the consolidation hearing today by the interstate commerce commission.

As the commission sees is, the properties involved are worth more than a third of all railroads in the United States, the entire value of the lines being placed at approximately $26,000,000,000. In the event, however, that the application to group the eastern lines into four systems—the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Baltimore and Ohio, and the Chesapeake and Ohio-Nickel Plate—is approved, the railroads probably will tell the commission they disagree with the figures placed in the record today. The commission's ideas of what the railroads are worth and the ideas of the railroads themselves have been at variance almost since the commission began its work.

Values of Various Mergers.

The figures today were brought to Jan. 1, 1931, by taking the valuations arrived at in the years from 1915 to 1920, adding net additions, betterments and retirements, and subtracting accured depreciation. On that basis the value of the 13 roads included in the New York Central system was fixed at $2,502,719,622. This, however, and the other estimates did not include roads assigned to two or more systems under the grouping plan.

The value of the 15 lines in the Pennsylvania system was estimated at $3,143,048,636; the 16 roads in the Baltimore and Ohio, $1,639,049,245, and the 22 in the Chesepeake and Ohio, $1,581,791,290.

Among lines jointly assigned, the Virginian, which would go to the Pennsylvania and Chesapeake and Ohio, was given a valuation of $108,643,942, and the Delaware and Hudson, which would go jointly to all four systems, was valued at $106,941,022.

If the railroads accept the commission's figures, they would probably be used as a basis for rate making and the issuance of securities. If the railroads object, as they usually do, the courts would have the final say. After a recess, oral argument on the consolidation proposals will begin probably on April 25. The commission then will take the question under consideration for its final verdict.

Roads Borrow Nearly 25 Million.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation to date has loaned to the railroads of the country a total of $24,979,850 out of $83,973,081 drawn from the treasury.

The largest of these loans, $7,500,000, was extended to the Southern Railway company on March 2 for the payment of maturing principal installments of equipment trust obligations and toward meeting interest and rental requirements. The second largest went to a railroad in the hands of receivers—the Wabash. This loan, in the amount of $7,173,800, was extended to meet principal obligations maturing on Feb. 15.

In addition the corporation has made extensions on loans to the Alabama, Tennessee and Northern, $274,550; Western and Pacific, $2,102,000; Chicago and Eastern Illinois, $3,629,500, and Missouri Pacific, $4,300,000.

Gen. Electric Sales Drop; Dividend Cut

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 4.—Declaration of a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on the stock of the General Electric company today places the issue on a $1 annual basis. That is in line with predictions heard in financial circles recently to the effect that some downward revision would be ordered in the rate. The company had been paying 40 cents quarterly, or $1.60 a year, since the last split-up on the stock in January, 1930.

Reduction in the dividend apparently was determined by the earnings for last year. That report, issued today, disclosed that net income available for dividends amounted to $40,956,996, equal after dividends on the special stock to $1.33 a share on 28,845,927 shares of no par value common. For the previous year the company earned $57,490,915, or $1.90 a share on the same number of shares.

However, dividends of 60 cents on the special stock and $1.60 on the common last year amounted to $48,725,262. Of that all but $7,768,266 was earned, this amount being taken from surplus. After this deduction surplus amounted to $172,198,374 on Dec. 31, 1931.

Sales Show Decrease.

The strong financial position was indicated by its holdings of cash and marketable securities at the close of 1931. This item aggregated $122,178,933, compared with $141,717,851 a year previous.

"Total current assets amounted to $219,036,510, compared with total current liabilities of $28,482,788," the report said. "Investments in associated companies and miscellaneous securities were increased during 1931 by approximately $17,800,000 and amounted to approximately $222,000,000 before revaluation on Dec. 31, 1931. The revaluation of these investments and securities after consideration of cost, net worth, return on investment, market price, if any, and foreign exchange reduced the net value to $179,308,010.

"General Electric company's share of income earned by associated companies during 1931, disregarding revaluations of their securities, exceeded General Electric's share of the dividends distributed by approximately $5,000,000, which is equivalent to 17 cents a share on General Electric common stock, compared with 27 cents a share in 1930."

Radio Corporation Delays Action.

Directors of the Radio Corporation of America today postponed until the next meeting of the board on March 18 action on the quarterly dividend on the "A" preferred stock.

Directors of the Schulte Retail Stores have notified the stock exchange that dividend action on the company's preferred stock due April 1 has been postponed until June 2, at which time a special meeting of the board will take place. The company has been paying dividends on the stock, which is cumulative, at the rate of $2 quarterly.

Directors of the McKesson & Robbins company took no action on the dividend on the preferred stocks, due at this time. The rate previously in effect was 87½ cents quarterly.

An extra dividend of 25 cents a share, the same as three months ago, and the regular quarterly of 75 cents, were announced on the common stock of the Mead Johnson company.

A dividend of 20 cents a share was declared today on the common stock of Federated Department Stores. Previously dividends were paid at the rate of 25 cents quarterly.

The Eastern Equities corporation, formerly American Glue company, will pay liquidating dividend consisting of one share of Minnesota Mining and Manufacturing company for each two shares of Eastern Equities. Dividend in liquidation of $2.50 in cash also will be payable March 14 to owners of record March 3.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 4.—Considering its heavy handicaps the share market performed rather impressively today. Some fairly heavy foreign buying appeared in the early dealings and local traders generally showed a disposition to carry the advance into generally higher ground.

But around noon there came the announcement of the cut in the General Electric dividend and a little later the news that the senate had voted to undertake its long threatened investigation of market operations and the show or ardor cooled off sharply. Demand dried up, prices sagged all along the line, and trading turned dull.

Final Prices Mixed.

Final prices were mixed. Most of the pivotals finished slightly under their previous closing levels, but gains of 1 to 3 points were to be found scattered among less active issues. Turnover approximated 1,500,000 shares.

There was no news of importance from industrial centers, outside of the General Electric dividend cut, to influence sentiment. The weekly bank reports, particularly those of the New York member banks, were accepted, however, as providing further evidence that the deflation movement is being arrested and market letter writers were pretty generally agreed that the country's financial position is improving. Board room gossip reflected a growing conviction that given a moratorium on official interference, the market, along with business in general, might well make this as a starting point for a long pull forward.

One good feature of today's dealings was that the trading showed a tendency to pick up on advances and to fall off on declines.

News Is Discounted.

The reduction of the General Electric dividend had been pretty well discounted marketwise, but the announcement of the board's action in cutting the rate to a $1 basis with the declaration of a quarterly payment of 25 cents a share as against Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 6,000; sheep, 3,000.

Hog values were boosted again yesterday on abnormally light supplies. The peak price went to 10c to $4.60, within 5c of the highest price since middle of last November. Later buyers were able to chisel costs of medium and weighty butchers and held the general average from gaining.

The average at $4.25 included a greater proportion of droves of medium and weighty hogs, averaging 250@350 lbs that cost the same as on Thursday's market. Lightweight hogs are selling 30@35c above the close of last week, while others show gains of 25@35c for the week. Action in the wholesale pork markets continued good, despite rising prices and new highs were made. Fresh pork loins closed at 8½@11½c against 6½@8¼c a week ago and 7@10c a month ago.

Buying lately is more selective and prices are expanding with lightweights getting the benefit of the wider range. Lightweight hogs are in best demand at all places. Buffalo yesterday reported the first $5.00 hogs.

Sellers were offering contracts for May hogs at $5.25 on the futures trade yesterday and bids were up to $5.00 at the close. July and September offers were unchanged at $6.00 and bids in those months also stopped at $5.00.

Cattle Prices Irregular.

Packer buyers were idle again yesterday and permitted the cattle trade to drift irregularly lower. Despite the fact that offerings were meager, totaling only about 2,000 head, the market dragged along all day. The indifferent attitude of buyers forced a few lows to be carried over for next week's trade. Sacrificing was general all along the line and few buyers were willing to pay more than $6.00 for good fleshy cattle.

A load of fat 1,311 lb steers and a load of choice 716 lb mixed steers and heifers topped the list at $6.75. The bulk sold at $5.00@5.75 and some plain off-colored kinds, showing a fair "kill," had to go at $4.50 and below. All of the advance scored earlier in the week has been erased. Butcher stock weakened again. Heifers showed the least decline. Calves recovered more of the losses recorded in this branch earlier in the week.

Few Loads Offered.

Only a few loads of lambs remained on sale after directs had been deducted yesterday, and these met good action at 10@15c higher prices. Considering the meager supply available the upturn was extremely mild, but reports from wholesale markets in the east lately have been discouraging and the lower level of prices for dressed lamb on the east coast has effectively checked shipping demand, leaving the market practically in local hands. Best grades sold quickly to all interests at $6.35@6.60. Aged sheep were steady and yearlings firm. Feeder lambs went to country buyers at $5.85, equaling the highest feeder sale of the year.

COPPER PACT SEEMS NEARER; PRICES ADVANCE

New York, March 4.—(AP)—Prospects that the international copper producers' meeting in New York may reach an agreement on further drastic curtailment of output brought a firmer tone to both domestic and foreign prices for the metal today.

Copper for domestic shipment, which had been selling at a low record price for all time at 5¾ cents a pound, advanced to 6⅛ cents and custom smelters were reported reluctant to sell even at this figure.

Prices for export also moved up to 6¼ cents a pound after standing for several days at 5⅞ cents, the lowest in history. When little metal was available at the 6¼ cent price, quotations for the foreign trade were advanced to 6⅝ cents, the former official price of Copper Exporters, Inc.

Conversations between domestic producers and representatives of the important Belgian Katanga mines of the Congo continued today. All the conferees are said to have agreed that more curtailment is necessary and the only remaining point at issue is the percentage of capacity at which mines shall operate. American producers have proposed that this percentage shall be 17½, while the Belgians are said to have insisted on a slightly larger figure.

INTEREST LAGS IN WHEAT PIT; TRADING IN RUT

Prices Are Held Within Narrow Range.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Need of new incentives to get the wheat market out of the rut is becoming more imperative. With the exception of the development of a cold wave in the west and southwest there was nothing in the news to encourage operations on either side of the market yesterday, with the result that speculative interest decreased somewhat and prices held within a range of around ¾c.

Scattered selling of wheat futures was in evidence at the start, but under 61c for May. Fair support developed and a rally followed, but there appeared to be plenty of grain for sale above that figure which checked the advances, and the finish was ¼c lower to ¼c higher, with September showing the most strength. March closed at 57⅜c; May, 61@61⅛c; July, 62⅞@62⅞c, and September, 64¾c.

Export Demand Slow.

There was no snap to the export demand for North American cash wheat, and sales were confined to a little hard winter at the Gulf to Greece and scattered loads of Manitobas. Cables from abroad have intimated for several days that a good demand could be expected, but so far it has not materialized.

Traders spent considerable time in discussing the possible effect of the movement in congress to donate 40,000,000 bu farm board wheat to the Red Cross for relief purposes. Some took the view that the gift would result in semi-demoralization in the milling trade and materially reduce the milling demand for grain owned by the producer. Others felt that there would be some increase in consumption as the result of this action, and that the ultimate effect would be favorable to a higher level of prices. At least it was believed by all interests a way had been found to dispose of part of the government's large holdings, which were recently placed at 180,000,000 bu.

Farm Board Stocks.

In some quarters there was a belief that the setting aside of this wheat for relief purposes was a preparatory move on the part of congress to impound the farm board stocks. While there was nothing in the news to account for this idea, it seemed to have some following. The theory expressed was that there had been so much agitation of late regarding relief that congress could not act to impound all of the grain without providing some way of making a certain amount available in case of immediate need. Rumors that the government grain would be held off the market have been repeatedly denied by Chairman Stone of the farm board.

Temperatures near zero, with rain or snow, were reported over part of the southwestern wheat belt yesterday, but there were no reports of damage received during the day. Owing to high winds, the snow drifted badly in some sections.

Heavy exports were reported from the southern hemisphere, with Argentina and Australia placing 11,211,000 bu wheat afloat during the week, compared with 1,070,000 bu the previous week and 7,335,000 bu last year. Liverpool closed ⅝@⅞c per bu lower, with May at 59¾c, while Winnipeg was unchanged to ⅛c lower, with May at 67c in Canadian funds. The latter were firmer at 10½ per cent discount.

Corn Unsettled.

Trade in corn futures was largely of a local character, with prices holding within a range of ⅜@½c, with the finish ¼c higher to ⅛c lower. March closed at 36½c; May, 39¾@39¾c; July, 42¾@42½c, and September, 43⅝c. Country offerings to arrive were again small, only 15,000 bu being booked, while shipping sales were 8,000 bu. A good part of the local receipts were applied on previous contracts.

Commission houses were fair sellers of oats early, but the market was dominated to a large extent by the action of other grains. May finished at 24⅝c, and July at 25⅛@25¼c, with prices unchanged to ⅛c lower for the day.

Reports of a marked improvement in the European inquiry for rye gave that market independent strength and it closed ⅝@¾c higher, with May at 48¾@48½c, and July at 50⅞c. Germany was said to have asked for offers of rye for April and May shipment, and seaboard reports indicated the possibility of a good general business before long.

COTTON DULL BUT FIRM

Cotton market showed a firm undertone. An advance in sterling exchange led to selling in the Liverpool market and lower cables, but the sellers replaced by purchases in New York. This class of buying had considerable influence on American markets and with reports of a good demand for spot cotton at a firm basis, futures advanced moderately and closed with net gains of 1@4 points in Chicago and 3@7 points in New York and New Orleans.

In addition to the English buying there was also some purchases by Japanese brokers, while the trade and the continent were also on the buying side. Selling by the south and the cooperatives was less in evidence than of late. Spinners takings for the week were 275,000 bales compared with 274,000 bales the previous week and 259,000 bales last year. Estimates on the acreage this season show decreases of 10@20 per cent. Spots were 5 points higher with New York 7.15c and New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, 7c. Prices follow:

IONIZED SILVER KILLS BACILLI.

A peculiar feature of ionized silver is its harmlessness to certain small forms of life such as yeast and its effectiveness in killing bacilli such as tuberculosis.

CASH·GRAIN NEWS

A moderate amount of hard winter wheat was sold at the gulf to go to Greece and, with scattered lots of Manitobas, constituted the export business on Friday. At the same time cables continued to express the belief there would be a large demand for North American wheats in the immediate future. There was a much more general demand for rye from abroad, but no sales of consequence were reported.

Chicago handlers sold 22,000 bu wheat, 8,000 bu corn, 42,000 bu oats, and 2,000 bu barley to the domestic trade, with 100,000 bu corn sold to go to store. Deliveries on March contracts aggregated 55,000 bu wheat and 5,000 bu corn.

Cash wheat was in fair demand from mills, with the basis showing little change. No. 2 red and hard winter was quoted at 2½@2½c under May, with No. 2 yellow hard 2¾@3c under and No. 2 mixed at 2⅛@2¾c under the future.

Movement of cash corn has fallen off rather sharply of late and with a fair demand the basis in the local market was steady to ¼c higher. Discounts as compared with May follow: No. 2 mixed, 3½@4c; yellow, 3@4c; white, 3@3½c; No. 3 mixed, 6@6½c; yellow, 5¾@6¼c; white, 5¾@6¼c; No. 4 mixed, 6½@7c; yellow, 6½@6¾c; white, 6@6½c.

Offerings of cash oats were smaller and the basis steady to ¼c higher; No. 2 white was 1@1¼c under, and No. 3 white 2@2¾c under May. No. 2 rye was 1@3c under the future.

Official receipts of grain at Chicago Friday: wheat, 42 cars; corn, 97 cars; oats, 12 cars; rye, 1 car; barley, 9 cars.

BUTTER AT NEW LOW

Butter prices dropped ½@¾c early to new all-time lows on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, working back to close unchanged to ¼c lower. Egg futures were unchanged to ¼c lower. March butter struck 20c and April 20¼c for the new lows. Selling was induced by continued bearish storage and production reports, the four markets taking out 224,000 lbs less than last year. Interest in October eggs continues to increase, although the price movement has porting outside call for alfalfa and for clear sioned a bit better support. The four markets reported a storage movement 8,000 cases less inward than last year and receipts again were lower. Sales: Butter, 96 cars; eggs, 36 cars. Deliveries: Eggs, 7 cars. Prices follow:

LARD FUTURES LOWER

Strength in the hog market and small receipts had no effect on cured product. Scattered selling of lard futures by packers found the demand slow and the close was 5@7½c lower. There were no deliveries on March contracts. Bellies were neglected and closed unchanged. New York reported 1,963,000 lbs lard cleared for export. Movement of hogs in the west was smaller than a week ago and below that of last year, while prices were steady to 15c higher with the top the highest since early in January. Prices follow:

NEWS OF THE CROPS

"Unfavorable reports continne from parts of the west and southwest, while comment from other parts of the belt is generally good," said the Modern Miller. "Recent warm weather caused the crop to green up over a considerable area, with no damage of consequence revealed as yet in the territory east of the Missouri. Moisture conditions in the American northwest have been improved by additional rain and snow during the last week. The three Canadian provinces also received some moistnre."

BORROW $30,000 TO REORGANIZE EVANSTON FLATS

Property at Maple-Crain Changes Hands.

Further steps in the reorganization of the eighteen apartment building at the southeast corner of Maple avenue and Crain street, Evanston, were taken yesterday when the property was conveyed by Miss L. V. Crowell, a nominee of the bondholders' protective committee to the newly formed body known as the 1147 Maple Building corporation, and in addition a $30,000 loan was negotiated. This latter was made by Peabody & Co., through the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company for five years at 6 per cent, and will be used to pay for the property which was purchased a few days ago at foreclosure sale for $30,000.

CHARLES E. FOX. [Blank-Stoller Photo]

The apartment building was erected in 1923 and was financed at the time by a Leight & Co. first mortgage real estate bond issue of $115,000, at 6½ per cent. This has since been reduced to $92,500. It defaulted both principal and interest in Jan., 1930. According to Fred W. Heide, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, 94 per cent of the bonds have been deposited. Bondholders were given a pro rata amount of stock in the new corporation.

Kempner Heads Committee.

Adolph Kempner of the Rosenbaum Grain corporation, is chairman of the bondholders' protective committee. George S. Ballard is vice chairman. The other members are: Charles E. Fox, Gerald J. Caraher, M. A. Cushman, John P. Dickes, E. L. Pulfrey, and Albert E. Leight. Kirkland, Fleming, Green & Martin and Gottlieb & Schwartz are attorneys.

J. Arthur Friedlund, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee of bonds sold through the Home Mortgage and Investment company, reports that the Alper building property, at the southwest corner of Sacramento avenue and George street, will be offered for sale by the master in chancery on March 18. The committee recently submitted a definite plan of reorganization to the bondholders, giving them until March 7 to deposit their bonds with the Chicago Title and Trust company.

In the deluge of defaults and other depressing news of the real estate mortgage bond situation, it's cheering to get this item from Andrew Z. Olsen, of 5027 North Bernard street: "I'm quite sure this bit of news will be of interest to the readers of your real estate bond column. The semi-annual interest on the Carmen avenue apartments will be due on March 7. Coupons will be promptly paid at the First Union Trust and Savings bank. "To me this is very important and it will show that many owners of buildings are still trying to meet their notes in spite of high taxes and lower rents."

Sweetheart of Lindbergh Baby's Nurse Seized at Hartford, Conn., as Suspect in Kidnaping
